WAR CLOUDS ALARM EUROPE

Today

War or Not? And When?
Germany's Poor Guessing.
The Eggs Knew.
Thirty Pineapple Cars.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

THE QUESTION in Europe, important to us, while we sweetly talk of peace is WAR OR NO WAR and if war WHEN?

German governments seem not good at guessing what other nations will do. In the big war their guesses were about 100 per cent wrong. They guessed that England would keep out of the fight, and look on. She did not. She blockaded Germany.

They guessed that Italy would stick to the German-Austrian-Italian entente. Italy joined the Allies. Hitler seems to have guessed wrong about Italy once again. He sent his man to discuss with Mussolini an Italian-German Fascist brotherhood, expressing deepest detestation of Britain and several other countries.

Italy has always avoided quarrels with England, and Mussolini, having sent Hitler's envoy about his business, informs the other allies that he is ready to check Hitler's pretentions and has no sympathy with his threats of war.

GERMANY MIGHT again see France, Italy, England lined up against her, with Russia this time an uncertain element, and the United States keeping out, from start to finish. No "he-kept-us-out-of-war" nonsense followed by a "nose-dive" costing this country scores of billions.

GERMANY MIGHT have done better guessing had she employed in her diplomatic service the keen intellects of some of her Jewish citizens. But the former Kaiser would have no Jews in his sacred diplomatic service, or any position of rank in his army.

And Hitler carries the idea farther. Von Bernssdorff, Germany's war ambassador in Washington, admitted that exclusion of Jews from the diplomatic corps was a harmful mistake.

Bismarck, who, with Von Moltke the Dane, made the German empire, would not have made that mistake.

AND THE BRITISH did not make it. They sent Disraeli, a Jew, to the important diplomatic gathering at Berlin. Disraeli returned bringing back "peace with honor," and Cyprus tucked under his arm, as a present for Queen Victoria, whom, by the way, he made empress of India.

Bismarck, after the war seeing pictures of Gladstone and Disraeli on the same wall, ignored Gladstone and, pointing to Disraeli, exclaimed:

"The old Jew, there was the man."

Any one of a thousand intelligent German Jews could have saved Hitler from various mistakes that will end in his downfall.

CAN MEN or other animals transmit "acquired characteristics" to their descendants? That question is perhaps most important of all to the future of the human race. The question means can the next generation inherit characteristics, new kinds of ability or knowledge not possessed by generations preceding? Scientists say not, but common sense does not agree with science in this case.

You see the puppy of a hunting dog, its eyes barely open, lift one foot and bend the knee at sight of a baby chick. Its ancestors have been taught to do that at sight of a game bird.

INSECTS WERE inheriting acquired knowledge and characteristics for millions of years before men appeared on earth. The spider is born knowing the complicated pattern of its web and understanding important principles of engineering.

The "worker" honey bee knows how to construct the comb, with the marvelous many-sided cells for honey. The mudwasp never sees its father or mother but is born understanding difficult surgery and anaesthesia which it applies to fat caterpillars.

And now comes the most astounding instance of inherited knowledge. Breeders of carrier pigeons have always wondered how the birds find their way back. They may be carried from their cote in a dark basket, 1,000 miles, by winding roads. Released, they circle around for a few moments then fly straight home.

HOW COULD they do it? No one could answer. But consider this. An English pigeon breeder took eggs laid in his British home, carried them across the channel and had them hatched out in France. Old enough to fly, and released, the young birds at once flew back to the real place of their birth, the place where the eggs were laid in England. Explain that, if you please. CERTAINLY the human brain inherits acquired characteristics and knowledge, otherwise how could it need or use the four quadrillions of separate dynamos that Dr. Crile, of Cleveland, assures you, go with each human brain?

IT WILL please those who know the value of vitamins in the diet of adults and children, to learn that a solid trainload of 30 cars of canned pineapple, more than a million cans, started eastward from Oakland, across the San Francisco Bay terminal a few days ago.

It has been proved that canned pineapple, which means fruit picked ABSOLUTELY RIPE with all the vitamin value of the sun packed away in it, contains a vitamin value, for which there is no substitute.

MOTHERS, CONSTANTLY wondering "what to give the children for dessert" should try canned pineapple, of which there are a number of excellent

COYNE READY TO NAME 16 SLEUTHS

Goes in Huddle With Herron to Build Political Fences

State Senator James J. Coyne today began fixing his fences for the campaign of Mayor John S. Herron for re-election. He had 16 pieces of timber for the job in the form of 15 newly created places in the detective division, with one vacancy.

Today Coyne and his candidate apparently went into a huddle on where the fences needed fixing most.

COUNCILMEN THERE

Also present at the conference were Councilmen W. Y. English, George S. Oliver and William J. Soost. Harmar D. Denny, Jr., the public safety director, traipsed from his own office to the Mayor's sanctum. Coyne left via the door leading into council chamber.

At the conclusion Herron explained it was just a social call, the first by Coyne, since Herron fell heir to the magic rug of the resigned and convicted Charles H. Kline. Herron said Denny would announce the list of detective appointments today.

Before the powwow began Denny had held a conference with Police Supt. Franklin T. McQuaide and Detective Inspector Frank R. Boyd.

SEEK REINSTATEMENT

Organization members from various sections have been demanding the reinstatement of men dropped in the economy move a few months ago. Ten of those let out for economy reasons are said to have been bringing tremendous power to bear, with the result that at least five of the old guard will return, and this number might be increased to ten.

The political leaders will have to scramble for the other six jobs and Denny's program of rewarding policemen for meritorious service probably will result in Patrolman George Puff being made a detective.

Puff engineered the capture of two escaped penitentiary convicts, for which Denny publicly congratulated him.

EX-SLEUTH APPEARS

Robert Patton, retired at the first of the year, reported at detective bureau today and was present at the "standup," but made it plain that he is not on the force. However, it is known that he has strong backing. Director James M. Clark refused to re-instate Patton a couple of days before Clark was dismissed from office, even though Patton had a letter from Superintendent McQuaide. Joseph Foster, dismissed during the economy move, is among the first five suggested for positions. He is a friend of Councilman Harry A Little.

A. S. Schreckengost, lieutenant of Councilman William J. Soost and Charles Weisenhofer, protege of Councilman William English, are said to be in line for reappointment.

GOES TO JAIL TO SAVE SANDY

Master Loses Liberty Rather Than Kill Condemned Dog

Frank Sechan sacrificed his freedom for the life of his dog Sandy today.

He went to jail to begin serving a six months' sentence imposed by Visiting Judge S. L. Reed. Sechan who had pleaded guilty to keeping a ferocious dog had failed to comply with the Court's decree to pay a $50 hospital bill of a bitten child and execute the dog. The jail term was the alternative.

Attorney Louis Little who stepped in as counsel for Sechan, said he would try to have him freed through habeas corpus proceedings or an appeal to Superior Court.

When Sechan, who lives at 196 Elder street, East Pittsburgh, was arraigned, Judge Reid said:

"You have refused to pay the hospital bill for this boy and to kill the dog. What have you to say?"

Attorney Little moved to arrest judgment on the ground the court was without jurisdiction, and also to withdraw the plea of guilty, holding that Sechan did not realize what his plea involved. The court refused both motions.

Mrs. Ethel Cannon, who raised a fund to save Sandy's life, was in the courtroom.

TRADE UPTURN CONTINUING

Industry in the Pittsburgh area will be quickened if the administration's public works program and relief bills are adopted at Washington, and Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company will benefit especially from the shipbuilding program, according to E. F. Sells, manager of the Westinghouse offices in Washington. At Hotel Schenley for a series of conferences with Pittsburgh officials of the company, Sells said:

"Everybody in Washington is very well satisfied with the progress made by the President. If Mr. Roosevelt gets his public bills and public works program through, it will be the greatest thing for the unemployed. Out

M'Govern Plays Czar On Park Concessions

Scores of prospective bidders for refreshment stand concessions in South Park were left waiting at the post today, while political friends of County Commissioner C. C. McGovern apparently had captured the coveted privilege without submitting bids.

Edward Collins and Ross Thomas, both reputed political allies of McGovern, were to have all concessions in South Park except a large cabin near the buffalo pen. That was to go to Mrs. Mary Schade, according to Director of Parks A. M. Marion.

McGovern, recently named a committee of one to look after park concessions, apparently acted without consulting his colleagues. Commissioner W. D. Mansfield said:

"It's all news to me."

A lease drafted by the county solicitor and naming the three as concessionaires has not been officially acted upon by the commissioners, but was expected to be approved within a few days. The county under terms of the agreement will receive 5 per cent of gross receipts.

Marion said he favored the letting out of the concessions without bids. He said:

"That will give the public good sandwiches and coffee that doesn't taste like slop."

Although one stand was open for business today, McGovern said no one had been authorized to take over the park concessions. He said:

"The Commissioners probably will receive Director Marion's recommendations and the agreement he has reached with these people tomorrow."

Waite Hoyt and His Bride

MR. AND MRS. WAITE HOYT . . . . . SHE'S THE FORMER MRS. JOHN A. BELL SIMPSON

Hoyt's Society Bride Won't Be Baseball Fan

Pitcher and Ex-Wife Of John A. Bell's Grandson Wed

Waite Hoyt brought his society bride to Pittsburgh today—and he isn't going to teach her baseball.

It was not a Pittsburgh unknown to Mrs. Hoyt. She is the divorced wife of John A. Bell Simpson, grandson of the late John A. Bell, the Carnegie banker, and has visited here several times.

Big, affable Waite, fond of his association with the Pirates, explained why he isn't going to teach Mrs. Hoyt baseball. He said:

"We don't want to get to the place where we talk shop after the game. There isn't any reason why Mrs. Hoyt should get all wrapped up in it, is there?"

Mrs. Hoyt has her own interests, principally polo and swimming. She hopes there will be horses to ride here, she said.

Vivacious, eyes a-sparkle, she told how she and the Pirate pitcher met in March, 1932, while both were on their way to Florida. Hoyt was in spring training with Brooklyn. She said:

"No, ours wasn't a baseball romance. I know nothing about the game. I saw Waite pitch yesterday, but I haven't seen many games. I don't expect to be a baseball fan at all."

Mrs. Hoyt attended Ogontz School in Philadelphia with Mrs. W. L. Mellon, Jr. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Burbank, live at Montclair, N. J., where the Hoyts were married Friday. She is an accomplished horsewoman. She studied French in Paris.

Wyoming Elects Repeal Delegates

CHEYENNE, Wyo., May 15.—(INS.)—Wyoming voters today went to the polls to vote on repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment. Voting today was for election of delegates to attend county conventions on May 18. These conventions will name delegates to a state convention May 25.

FORBES FIELD, May 15.—The Pittsburgh Pirates, tied with the New York Giants for first place in the National League, opened a long home stay this afternoon as they prepared to take on the Philadelphia Phillies.

Mermoz Plane Safe On Atlantic Flight

LEBOURGET, France, May 15.—(AP.)—The Arc-En-Ciel (Rainbow) plane in which Jean Mermoz, French pilot, took off from Natal, Brazil, at midnight Sunday for a return trip across the South Atlantic, reported its position by wireless early today, saying all was well.

The position placed the plane southwest of the Island of St. Paul in the South Atlantic.

Rheumatism to Keep King From Courts

LONDON, May 15.—(INS.)—Although his attack of rheumatism is improving, King George will be prevented from attending the royal courts on Wednesday and Thursday, it was understood today.

JAPS ADVANCE NEAR PEIPING

PEIPING, May 15.—(AP.)—The United States legation advised Americans today to evacuate Tungchow, 13 miles east of Peiping, because of rumors that the Japanese will attempt to occupy the town.

TOKIO, May 15.—(AP.)—Lieut. Gen. Yoshikazu Nichi, personally commanding his 8th Division, today attacked the town of Nanshengchuang, 10 miles northeast of Miyun, in North China, and about 50 miles from Peiping, and the occupation of Miyun was declared to be imminent.

Reports from all fronts received by the Rengo (Japanese) News Agency were that the Chinese morale was collapsing and there were many desertions.

Fight Chicago Fair Fire 630 Feet in Air

CHICAGO, May 15.—(INS.)—Firemen armed with chemical extinguishers went aloft at the Century of Progress grounds here today to put out a blaze 630 feet above the earth. A bucket of tar on the west structure of the "Sky Ride" caught fire. It was soon extinguished.

Prosecutor Accused In Parent Murder

MAYSVILLE, Ky., May 15.—(INS.)—City Prosecutor Andrew V. Fox, 27, was named in two warrants today charging the murder of his parents, Coroner Albert S. Knox announced. Officers went to Mayslick to take him into custody, the coroner added.

Shirt Factory Burns As Walkout Ends

ALLENTOWN, Pa., May 15.—(AP.)—A few hours before several hundred striking employes were to have returned to work, the D. & D. Shirt Factory at Northampton was badly damaged by fire today.

The company recently entered an agreement with employes to end a several weeks strike today. Mrs. Gifford Pinchot joined girl employes in picketing the plant recently.

Drunken Monkey Foils Earl's Chase in Plane

LONDON, May 15.—(AP.)—The Earl of Bessborough, governor general of Canada, swooped down on his Rowlands Castle estate in Hampshire today in an airplane in an attempt to capture a drunken monkey. He failed.

The monkey, Signor Tony, aged 4½ years, recently took to drink. He has destroyed birds' nests, broken down vines, and generally made a nuisance of himself to the Earl's tenants.

The Earl, a former pilot of the Royal Air Force, thought he might be able to catch Signor Tony by dropping a big net down on him. He sighted the monkey in a cart track and dove toward the earth, but Tony was too quick for him.

U. S., BRITAIN, FRANCE UNITED TO OPPOSE HITLER ON ARMS

Increased tension gripped Europe today with manifestation of a growing "war spirit" in Germany.

Paris dispatches reported a united front by the United States, Great Britain and France to face Germany at the Geneva disarmament conference Thursday.

In Berlin, Chancellor Hitler prepared to submit to the Reichstag a new disarmament plan strengthening Germany's claims to arms equality.

LONDON, May 15.—(AP.)—Increased tension in Europe was the foremost topic today in London newspapers, which wrote with anxiety of gathering war clouds. A growing "war spirit" in Germany was seen as the main danger.

The present week was regarded as a critical one for the continent and for civilization.

The Daily Times, commenting on "the inculcation of hatred of the foreigner, and of militarism" fostered by the Hitler regime, called upon Germany "to disprove—if possible to disprove—that one of the main objects of Hitlerism is to prepare for a war of revenge.

The Daily Telegraph saw a real danger to Europe in the revival of the German war spirit under a specious claim to the right to re-arm.

The Daily Herald featured a French report that Germany was manufacturing heavy guns of a type prohibited by the treaty of Versailles, and poison gases.

The speech Saturday at Meunster, Germany, of Franz von Papen, German Vice-Chancellor, in which he compared the present situation in the country with that of 1914, made a bad impression here and led to an increasing of uneasiness.

Addressing Nazi party members and Steel Helmet war veterans, Von Papen declared that through a misunderstanding of "the enormity of the spiritual evolution" in Germany, "a foreign political ring has circled us which is identical to that of August, 1914."

The News Chronicle referred to the cabinet minister's demand that mothers bear sons to fall on the battlefield as "bloody-minded

U. S. Backs Disarm Plan

By GEORGE W. HINMAN, JR.
Universal Service.

PARIS, May 15.—With Europe this week facing the threat of war, both economic and military, Edouard Herriot today had assured France that President Roosevelt's disarmament position includes fullest support for:

1—The British disarmament plan at which Germany is balking;

2—The French plan for international armaments supervision after signing of a disarmament convention;

3—No compromise that would enable Germany to obtain arms now forbidden her by the treaty of Versailles, and

4—Even "more precious collaboration" with Eu-

SEES PAYMENT RESULT IN 'CHAOS'

Trial Balloon Sent Up By Daladier Ministry

By GEORGE W. HINMAN, JR.
Universal Service.

PARIS, May 15.—France has declared openly for outright cancellation of its debt to the United States.

The declaration was contained in a featured front-page editorial yesterday in Le Petit Journal, belonging to Raymond Patenotre, under secretary for national economy in Premier Daladier's ministry.

Thus it is recognized as a semi-official ministerial trial balloon—launched coincidentally with former Premier Herriot's declaration in Marseilles that President Roosevelt "considers only the payment of the December 15 installment an indispensable condition to subsequent action on his part."

SEES 'CHAOS'

Following an exhaustive presentation of the debt problem from the French viewpoint, the editorial concludes that any solution involving payment, either by annuities or a lump sum, would lead only to chaos. It asks:

"So what remains? Cancellation!"

The editorial adds:

"Only that will avoid future upsets similar to those already known and even more dangerous, as they will affect people already economically exhausted.

"Only that will permit errant capital, which the debtor nations strive in vain to coax into unproductive settlements, to find investment in active values—that is to say, in industrial and commercial operations which alone create wealth and well-being."

Several newspapers, including Figaro and the semi-official Temps, feature Washington reports of "a campaign against France by the Hearst press," giving fragmentary quotations from an editorial appearing in the Hearst newspapers. Figaro states:

Le Temps, under a Havas News Agency credit line, states:

"It should be recalled that the Hearst press, which presents to American opinion France's position in this incorrect, malicious form, conducted a violent campaign against payment of reparations due from Germany, denouncing reparations as being the principal origin of the world's financial and economic difficulties, and accusing France of ruining the world and prolonging the troubled state of Europe by refusing to cancel reparations."

GERMANY'S DEBT STAND

NEW YORK, May 15.—(Universal.)—In reply to a radiogram sent Dr. Hialmar Schacht, head of the Reichsbank, who is homeward bound on the Europa, Universal Service received a radio message from the liner stating the Reichsbank plans no proposal to scale down Germany's private foreign debts, suspend debt payments or reduce interest.

Nor will any suggestion for discrimination between the various groups of creditors be offered by the Germans, the message said.

Dr. Schacht was asked to clarify his statement, made before he sailed Saturday night, that he will soon ask the holders of Germany's private foreign obligations to send delegations to Berlin for a conference on the best way of "meeting the present situation."

The reply received from the Europa said:

"No proposal regarding the scaling down of private foreign debts or suspension of payments or reduction of interest will be made by the Reichsbank.

"We intend to protect creditors in every respect. No moratorium for mark payments of debtors will be asked for.

"The sole problem is how to convert marks into foreign exchanges, as these are lacking because of permanent shrinkage of trade.

"Furthermore, no proposal as to discrimination between groups of creditors will come from our side. We just want to discuss the situation with all groups and get advice."

PEGGY BEFORE KIDNAP JURY

BARNSTABLE, Mass., May 15.—(AP.)—Margaret McMath, 10-year-old Harwichport girl whose kidnaping two weeks ago stirred nation-wide interest, took an hour and three minutes to tell her story to a Barnstable County grand jury today.

The little girl was accompanied into the grand jury room by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Neil C. McMath, who paid $60,000 for her safe return, and by William Lee and Harold Sawyer, business associates of her father.

The state charges Peggy's return was made contingent upon payment of a $60,000 ransom and that Kenneth Buck, 28-year-old former chauffeur, was the man who abducted the girl and took the money. The state also charges that Kenneth's 40-year-old brother, Cyril, had a hand in the extortion, although he refused an additional $10,000 in ransom money.

The $60,000 ransom was paid, but recovered later.

BAR ACQUITTAL PLEA OF MEANS

WASHINGTON, May 15.—(INS.)—A defense motion for a directed verdict of acquittal in the Lindbergh kidnaping ransom hoax conspiracy trial of Gaston B. Means and his alleged accomplice, Norman T. Whitaker, was overruled in District Supreme Court today by Justice O'Donoghue.

Indications were that the jury would get the case late today or before the noon recess tomorrow.

Means and Whitaker are charged with attempting to swindle Mrs. Evalyn Walsh McLean out of $35,000 in connection with the alleged efforts to recover the kidnaped son of Charles A. Lindbergh, after Means had previously obtained $104,000 from her. Means is now serving 15 years in prison for the latter deal.

Roosevelts, Friends On Sunday Cruise

WASHINGTON, May 15.—(AP.)—President Roosevelt is making full use of the government yacht Sequoia and the convenient Potomac River.

With Mrs. Roosevelt and a party of friends, the President went on another Sunday cruise, leaving the White House soon after 11 a. m., and returning after dark.

brands, sold at amazingly low prices.

There is no food more important to health, none that children enjoy more, especially if they are permitted to sprinkle granulated sugar over the yellow slices according to their taste.

It should be remembered that children need sugar, just as they need the vitamins contained in good fruit. To deprive them of it is harmful to growth and strength.

DID YOU speculate in wheat or cotton and did you lose? Uncle Sam can sympathize with you. He started what he called stabilizing farm prices to help the farmer when the depression struck us.

Prices were not stabilized, as the farmer knows. And old Uncle Sam learned that even his deep pocket is not deep enough to "run a corner" in wheat or cotton. What his gigantic buying of wheat cost, with grain elevator bills, etc., is hard to guess accurately.

Mr. Morgenthau, liquidating that brilliant idea for President Roosevelt, estimates the wheat loss at $160,334,480. Uncle Sam's cotton gamble was smaller. He is just winding up, by asking bids for 19,306 bales held abroad. His loss on cotton is put at $94,003,000.

Uncle Sam bought 1,300,000 bales in all. Many bales have been turned over to the Red Cross "for relief purposes," although some cannot understand just how bales of cotton could be used for relief, or what kind of relief.

The government still has a lien on 1,557,000 bales upon which it lent large sums.

Altogether on his revolving fund of five hundred million dollars, set apart to "peg prices" the government, meaning the taxpayers lost $350,000,000.

Now a new administration is trying its hand. Better luck this time.

Detroit Relief Crisis Put Up to State

DETROIT, May 15.—(INS.)—Detroit's welfare system, on which 50,000 families are depending for the necessities of life, faces collapse unless new R. F. C. help can be obtained, Mayor Frank Couzens warned today in a telegram to the State Legislature.

The Mayor urged passage of a bill providing for additional state relief—a condition which the state must fulfill before the R. F. C. will allot further funds.

Art Colony's Beer In Balance as Citizens Vote

CARMEL, Cal., May 15.—(INS.)—The literary and art giants of this famous colony flocked to the polls today to settle a vexing question—shall steins of 3.2 beer be hoisted here officially.

The election has the colony divided.

Downtowners claim that the legalized beer will be an aid to "artistic inspiration" and should be sold and drunk openly. The residential dwellers desire to retain the ol' "dry" tradition of yesteryear.

'ARMY' FRAMES BONUS DEMAND

WASHINGTON, May 15.—(AP.)—The comfortably fed but numerically slim bonus army of 1933 today got down to the business of holding a "convention" to frame cash-payment demands.

Almost rattling around in the huge Fort Hunt, Va., encampment of 800 tents—nearly 700 of which are empty—the 1,200 ex-soldiers making up the army which leaders had predicted would total 8,000 prefaced today's speech-making with a piping hot army breakfast.

Despite efforts by leaders of the original Fort Hunt contingent to reconcile the "conservatives" who accepted the camp's hospitality only after four shelterless days on the capital's streets, strained relations still existed within the army.

These 200 men, led by Mike Thomas, of Camden, N. J., continued to live apart from those they had charged were "communist connected."

MINIMUM HOUR, WAGE LAW AIM OF PINCHOT

Wife Reveals Program Of Next Assembly in Philadelphia Talk

HARRISBURG, May 15.—(AP.)—The forthcoming special session of the Pennsylvania General Assembly will be asked by Gov. Pinchot to enact minimum wage and minimum hour legislation.

This was definitely revealed last night by Mrs. Cornelia Bryce Pinchot, wife of the Governor, in an address in Philadelphia.

She said the Pinchot program of social legislation includes complete abolition of child labor in Pennsylvania, adequate relief for Pennsylvanians out of work, unemployment insurance, a minimum wage law, a state income tax designed to bear most heavily on the higher incomes, and "bigger and better" inheritance taxes.

PLAN SPECIAL SESSION

When the regular session adjourned recently it was understood at the Capitol that there will be a special meeting in November or January.

It will be called in November if the proposed $25,000,000 bond issue for relief is rejected by the voters.

All factions recognize that the next unemployment relief fund must come from new taxes, and Mrs. Pinchot's talk indicated that the Governor will press for higher inheritance taxes and an income tax levy.

SWEATSHOP ANGLE

Relief administrators say the "sweatshop" conditions have complicated the relief situation, because a number of mature workers were denied employment through the working of children and that the extremely low wages were not sufficient to keep the workers' families without aid from relief funds.

Because the Governor has fought the public utilities so long and failed in the regular sessions of 1931 and 1933 to obtain all that he desired in stricter regulation of utilities, observers say public utility regulation will be included in the Governor's call for the special session.

PINCHOT DOOMS TURNER BILL

HARRISBURG, May 15.—(INS.)—Hostility to many features of the $128,420,000 general appropriation bill passed by the General Assembly was voiced by Gov. Pinchot today when he reiterated the Turner bill will be vetoed.

Refusal of the Legislature to appropriate sufficient money, the Governor said, will force the dismissal of some state employes on June 1. The general appropriation bill is approximately $1,300,000 below the Governor's recommendations.

F. D. SUMMONS WORKS BILL PARLEY

Sales Tax Proposal Facing Test in Congress

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, May 15.—President Roosevelt today summoned Democratic leaders in fiscal affairs to an afternoon White House conference to put the finishing touches on the proposed $3,300,000,000 public works bill and to make a final decision on inclusion o fa manufacturer's excise tax.

The measure, which allows industry to combine for the purpose of maintaining wages, reducing hours of labor and controlling production, was virtually completed.

The President and his advisers were represented as believing that the most feasible way of providing $220,000,000 annual revenue to pay interest on the bonds and create a sinking fund is to levy a manufacturer's excise or sales tax of 1 or 1¼ per cent.

Congress will adopt a manufacturers' sales tax if President Roosevelt desires it, Speaker Rainey declared. He said:

"This administration can get anything it wants, but a sales tax to finance the interest and sinking fund on the public works program outlay will be the hardest thing to do I can think of."

The willingness of representatives of labor who have fought the sales tax in the past, to accept it as a means of putting hundreds of thousands of men to work on public projects was expected to allay much of the former opposition.

The alternatives suggested for the sales tax were displeasing to the majority of the members of Congress, particularly the consumption tax on sugar, coffee and tea or an increase in the income tax rates on the American middle classes.

TEACHERS WAR ON SWEATSHOPS

Opposition to continuance of sweatshop labor in Pennsylvania is voiced in a resolution adopted by the policy committee of the Pittsburgh Teacher's Association. The resolution was made public by Esther M. Smith, president of the association.

It urges the Governor to include within his call to a special session of the Legislature measures relating to minimum wages and maximum hour employment for women and school children.

League Takes Up Chaco Conflict

GENEVA, May 15.—(INS.)—The League of Nations Council met today to consider action toward ending the conflict between Bolivia and Paraguay over the Chaco region—the first declared war between members of the league since its foundation.

BISHOP CANNON LOSES APPEAL

WASHINGTON, May 15.—(AP.)—Trial of Bishop James Cannon, Jr., on charges of violation of the corrupt practices act in 1928 seemed certain today with a ruling by the District of Columbia Circuit Court of Appeals that the indictment against the churchman was valid.

The court also upheld the indictment against Miss Ada Burroughs, Bishop Cannon's former secretary.

Attorneys for the bishop planned to appeal the decision to the Supreme Court at once.

The churchman was indicted by a grand jury, but the District of Columbia Supreme Court sustained a demurrer. The ruling today reversed that decision.

JUDGE ON TRIAL BEFORE SENATE

WASHINGTON, May 15.—(AP.)—Federal Judge Harold Louderback, of San Francisco, was called before the bar of the Senate today to stand trial on five articles of impeachment.

The short, stocky Californian, eleventh federal official to face impeachment charges in the nation's history, was confident he would be acquitted of the charges of "misdemeanors in office" in handling equity receiverships.

The six House prosecutors were equally certain they would win a guilty verdict, despite the requirement of a two-thirds vote to convict.

Chain Bank Head Gets Jail Sentence

CHICAGO, May 15.—(AP.)—John Bain, head of a chain of 13 neighborhood banks that closed in 1930 with $13,000,000 in deposits, was sentenced today to serve from one to three years in the state penitentiary on a charge of receiving deposits in an insolvent bank.

His son, John H. Bain, and a son-in-law, W. Merle Fisher, both officers in the banking chain, got identical sentences.

Rochester Traction Case Up Tomorrow

ROCHESTER, Pa., May 15.—An airing of the controversy between Rochester Council and the Beaver Valley Traction Company was due in court tomorrow at a hearing on the preliminary injunction preventing the borough from interfering with operation of trolley cars.

LONE DEPUTY CHECKS MILK WAR RIOT

Farm Pickets Brave Gas Attack to Empty Trucks

SHAWANO, Wis., May 15.—Several hundred milk strikers today resisted tear gas when they dumped milk headed for a plant at Bonduel, east of here.

Deputy Sheriff Paul Roepke was struck on the head with a club. He retaliated by knocking down his attacker and then he stood off the crowd with his pistol.

The milk plant was closed against the strikers, and the milk was dumped at its doors in a cloud of tear gas released by deputies. While officers have opposed milk strikers valiantly they have been unable to prevent the dumping of the liquid in the road when militant farmers have seized milk trucks.

Two hundred striking farmers seized a motor truck caravan at Simmons Corners, in Walworth County yesterday. Overpowering 18 farmer members of the convoy and two deputy sheriffs, the mob emptied the milk from five motor trucks.

GAS BOOMERANG

Tear gas hurled by 35 deputies waiting 150 yards away at the Waukesha County line had little effect as the picketing farmers battled the milk convoy. The wind brought the tear gas fumes back upon the deputies.

The deputies later received reenforcements in Waukesha, Walworth and Racine Counties.

Several participants in the disorder were cut and bruised.

WORK OUT PRICE PLAN

WASHINGTON, May 15.—(AP.)—In what may lead to the first tangible result of the new farm law, representatives of producers and processors of fluid milk who supply the Chicago metropolitan area today sought to complete a trade agreement to bring about a better and more stable price to both producers and dealers.

They were instructed by George N. Peek, chief administrator of the farm act, "to agree among themselves" and submit the result to him.

Meanwhile, Peek conferred informally with several representatives of the cotton industry regarding the possibilities of working out a plan to improve the price and position of the crop this year. No formal action will be taken until after a commodity council for cotton has been established.

RIVERA SPEAKS; STUDENTS RIOT

NEW YORK, May 15.—(AP.)—A demonstration on Columbia University campus protesting against the dropping of Donald Henderson, an instructor who has taken part in numerous radical activities, turned into a free-for-all fight today. It was quelled by police.

Diego Rivera, the Mexican artist, whose work at Rockefeller Center was recently halted by the Rockefellers, was speaking when someone attempted to bind a black gag around the head of the statue of "Alma Mater."

Fighting broke out among the hundreds of students and outsiders assembled on the campus, and police charged the throng. One man was arrested. Police described him as an unemployed man.

Saint-Gaudens Selects Nazi Art to Show Here

BERLIN, May 15.—(AP.)—Nazi painters will be represented for the first time at Carnegie Institute's exhibition, October 18, Homer Saint-Gaudens, director of fine arts at the Pittsburgh institution, said yesterday.

He has picked 30 canvases as Germany's contingent. The Nazi artists include Willy Jaeckel, Franz Lenk, Ernst Peiffer-Warternpful and Hans Weidemann.

The Nazi canvases will appear alongside the paintings of Max Liebermann, who recently resigned from the Prussian Academy of Art, of which he was president emeritus, because he said his idea of national art was different from the prevalent one, and other non-Nazis such as Karl Hofer, Gerd Wollheim and Georg Schrimpf.

The younger generation will be represented by Lux Feininger, Franz Lenk and Frau Annot, Saint-Gaudens said:

"German art is getting much saner. We tried to assemble a representative collection of young and old, frivolous and sane."

Seabury Boomed as 'Al' Refuses Mayoralty

NEW YORK, May 15.—(AP.)—A "draft-Seabury-for-Mayor" drive boomed along today over the wreckage of a "draft-Smith" movement demolished by Alfred E. Smith himself.

Smith's statement that under "no compulsion or persuasion" would he accept a nomination for mayor in the fall election was regarded in political circles as strengthening the cause of those who seek to nominate Samuel Seabury, foe of Tammany.

Prominent fusionists, plus some Republican leaders, saw Smith's statement as clearing the air for Seabury's nomination. Archie O. Dawson, president of the Young Republican Club, said:

Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, Republican, who recently advocated Smith for Mayor, said when he learned of the former Governor's refusal:

"That takes out of consideration the best fitted man for the office at this critical time."

SIX ON RELIEF ROLLS JAILED FOR $80 DELINQUENT TAXES

40 OTHERS LACK FUNDS, FACE ARREST

Exoneration Refused Those Now on Charity Roles

BROOKVILLE, Pa., May 15.—(AP.)—Six residents of Knox Township were jailed today for nonpayment of taxes. The total delinquency, for 1931 and 1932, is approximately $80.

Each of the six is receiving relief from the county, and each contends he has no money with which to pay taxes.

W. C. Thompson, the tax collector, says that unless about 40 delinquents in the township pay their back taxes he will be unable to obtain his 1933 tax duplicates or bond. For that reason he is presssing for action.

County, school and road taxes are involved. Thompson says that if the delinquents are exonerated by the County Commissioners, the school directors and the Township Supervisors, he can go ahead with 1933 collections.

Lavelle Wilson, County Solicitor, has advised the Commissioners to waive payment.

Thompson says the School Directors and Township Supervisors have refused to exonerate the delinquents.

A conference between all factions has been arranged for late today.

Those in jail are Henry Plotner and his wife, Irene; Thomas Rankin, Thomas Moore and Francis and John Tangren.

This is the first case on record in Jefferson County of arrests for non-payment of taxes.

MITCHELL JURY MYSTERIOUSLY 'SIFTED OUT'

Loser in Bank Crash, Foreman, Dropped With 3 Others

NEW YORK, May 15.—(AP.)—After an unexpected and unexplained setback, the jury to hear evidence of income tax evasion against Charles E. Mitchell, former chairman of the National City Bank, was completed today, including two alternates to serve in case of sickness or regular jurors.

As soon as the 14 men were sworn the case was adjourned until tomorrow.

Among the four jurors excused was Isadore Amster, a coffee merchant who had said that his only contact with high finance had been his getting "caught" in the collapse of the Bank of United States.

William A. Morgan, Jr., who had been one of the prospective alternates, was excused because, in reply to a question of Federal Attorney George Z. Medalie, he said he would be embarrased if he had to serve on the Mitchell jury. Why he would feel embarrassed was not made clear.

The jury proper of 12 men was selected last Thursday, but adjournment was then taken until today and then the first thing done was to excuse four of the jurors already sworn, including Amster, the foreman. This action was taken after a brief whispered conference between judge and opposing counsel and no explanation was made public.

After that it took all morning to fill the four vacancies and select the two alternates. The jury was finally completed at noon.

Several millionaires are to be called at witnesses when the trial resumes, according to Medalie.

Mitchell is charged with evading payment of taxes of $858,429 in 1929 and 1930 on an alleged net income for those two years of more than $4,000,000. He is charged with having made it seem that he owed no tax by creating apparent losses through sales of stock to his wife and to the president of the Green Cananea Copper Company.

MILLION CACHE SNARLS DEATH MYSTERY

Scan List of Secret Ridley Debtors For Clue

NEW YORK, May 15.—(AP.)—A cache of $1,000,000 in cash popped into the Edward Ridley murder enigma today as 50 detectives sought to learn who slew the rich eccentric and his secretary in their dim sanctum 40 feet below the East Side's pavements.

The cash—hitherto unreckoned in computing the mortgage king's wealth—was discovered yesterday in vaults and accounts at a Broadway bank.

Code entries in three diaries—wherein Ridley and his secretary, Lee Weinstein, recorded a long list of secret debtors—were conned by police.

HUNT MORE RICHES

They sought to learn if it was one of the debtors who stole down to the sub-cellar office, shot Weinstein and battered Ridley to death with an antique tool amid his bales of musty records, mortgages and securities. They clung to the belief that the same killer may have been guilty of the murder months ago of Herman Moench, Weinstein's predecessor as secretary. He also was slain in the office.

A ton and a half of documents were carted from the office for study. Police said they would seek more Ridley wealth in many banks. They asked police at Norfolk and Richmond, Va., to search there to determine if Ridley had deposited money in those cities through Weinstein, his secretary. Weinstein formerly lived in Virginia.

RUM CLUE FAILS

Police announced a theory that Weinstein died before Ridley. This question has an important bearing on the disposition of Ridley's fortune, for the bewhiskered, 88-year-old millionaire left a will bequeathing $200,000 to Weinstein, provided he outlived Ridley.

Weinstein's newly discovered wife, about whose existence even his relatives were ignorant, is expected to decide soon whether she will start a legal fight to claim the money.

Police expressed the opinion that a liquor cutting plant found underground near the Ridley office played no part in the mystery. They said they believed Ridley was ignorant of its existence.

Ridley, a scion of a pioneer New York department store owner, lived like a comparatively poor man, despite his millions. Every day he commuted from his New Jersey lodging place to the dank office where his business affairs centered.

MEDICAL LIQUOR LIMIT LIFTED

WASHINGTON, May 15.—(AP.)—The pint-a-week limit on medicinal liquor is off.

Beginning today, physicians may prescribe as much as they think their patients need, and they don't have to tell the government what the ailments are that require a whisky treatment.

As a result, federal officials look for a sharp rise in medicinal liquor consumption. There is plenty on hand. Industrial Alcohol Bureau figures show 5,000,000 gallons of pre-prohibition whisky in bonded warehouses, and about 6,000,000 gallons of green stock aging in distilleries. Consumption last year was about 1,000,000 gallons.

The American Medical Association advocated lifting the regulations on liquor prescriptions. Congress complied this spring.

Under the regulations becoming effective today, virtually all the restrictions on physicians are lifted. Only when a physician prescribes for a patient for an extended period of months must he notify the government of the amount. But he will not be required to reveal the ailment except on specific request of an enforcement agent, who, in turn, must have direct authority from a superior.

HURLS HIS CO-ED WIFE FROM CAR

LINNEUS, Mo., May 15.—(INS.)—Noble Brown, a student at the University of Missouri, was held in jail today, charged with hurling his co-ed bride from their speeding automobile.

The young wife, Pauline Sportsman Brown, was taken, near death, to a Columbia (Mo.) hospital. She was soon to become a mother, Brown told police.

Mortorists found Brown, tied hand and foot. He told police bandits had kidnaped them. Regaining consciousness, Mrs. Brown said her husband had thrown her from the auto. He then admitted the kidnaping story was a hoax.

He declined to give a motive, but admitted having choked her before throwing her out, authorities said.

Judge Upholds Wife's Right to Search Pants

Judge Dickson said:

"A wife has a right to money from her husband's pockets, in that the money is supposed to be his earnings, hence community property."

Mrs. Smith had accused Smith of drinking, but a witness for Smith declared he drank only "now and then."

DANCER SOUGHT IN OHIO KILLING

XENIA, O., May 15.—(AP.)—An undentified dancing companion is sought by police investigating the mysterious slaying of Mrs. Nora Coffey, 24, of Springfield, found shot to death in the Little Miami River near here.

Without other clues, the police started the hunt on the strength of information given by the victim's friend, Mrs. Melvina Chapman, also of Springfield. The unidentified man, Mrs. Chapman said, took the girls to a dance Thursday night.

The three separated after driving about in an automobile for several hours early Friday morning, and the satin-gowned body of Mrs. Coffey, a bullet wound in the head, was found that afternoon by three boys.

F. A. PIEKARSKI MADE JUDGE

In the presence of a score of judges and several hundred friends, Frank A. Piekarski today was sworn in as a judge of County Court.

The oath was administered by Presiding Judge Richard A. Kennedy.

The commission, signed by Gov. Pinchot, was presented by the new judge's son-in-law, Attorney Blair F. Gunther. Judge Piekarski takes the place of the late Judge D. Paulson Foster.

Heart Fails Doctor As He Talks Death

CHICAGO, May 15.—(INS.)—Dr. John Winer stopped to talk with C. H. Frost about the recent death of a mutual friend. The doctor remarked:

"Life is peculiar and no man can tell when he is going to die."

Then he dropped dead of a heart attack.

WOMAN TELLER ON PROBATION

Two bank tellers, one a woman, today pleaded guilty in Federal Court to abstraction of funds and were sentenced by Judge F. P. Schoonmaker.

Miss Kate G. Taylor, 63, former teller of the Oil City National Bank, pleaded guilty to the abstraction of $8,250 of the bank's funds. She was placed on probation for two years. Miss Taylor had lost more than $100,000 in the stock market, the court was told.

Her attorneys announced she had made full restitution.

Cromwell T. Paulson, former teller of the Old National Bank of New Brighton, pleaded guilty to embezzling $1,535 of bank funds, and was sentenced to serve a year and a day in Federal penitentiary.

'GANDHI' BRINGS GOAT TO TOWN

There they were apparently—Mahatma Gandhi and his goat—and did the Pennsylvania Railroad commuters rub their eyes today as a Popeye "Blow me down" expression covered their faces.

"Gandhi" was bedecked in the famed sheets, yea! and the goat could boast of being of the same Swiss breed that the Indian leader uses for his milk depot. (The publicity man so said).

It was a stunt by the Pittsburgh Advertising Club. They just had to have a dignitary visit the Prosperity Parade which opens tomorrow at the Hotel William Penn, a display of local advertising accomplishments and exhibits of nationally known Pittsburgh products. Gandhi's big appearance will be Friday night at the Prosperity Prom that closes the annual exhibit.

Two motorcycle police escorted Gandhi's entourage (goat and two cabs) to the hotel, where he registered in proper style.

The Prosperity Parade will be formally opened at the club's luncheon tomorrow. Peter V. Bouterse, general manager of Sears, Roebuck & Co., will direct the program.

Radio listeners got the "lowdown" on this fasting business, etc., as the Sun-Telegraph Globe-Trotter interviewed Gandhi and his goat during a news broadcast.

MAUG ESCAPE AIDES HELD

Two men, who admitted helping John Maug and Edward Turpack to elude police following their escape from Western Penitentiary several days ago, were held for court charged with harboring fugitives by Magistrate Leo Rothenberg in Central Police Court today. They are Walter Swisher, 32, and Clyde Kerns, 28, both of Hays.

City Detectives Frank Morgan and his son, Thomas, arrested the pair after they are said to have admitted meeting Maug and Turpack near Hays Station and driving them to the farm of Mrs. Hilda Goempel, Baldwin Township, where they hid in a chicken coop for three days. Swisher and Kerns told Rothenberg they were afraid the escaped convicts would kill them if they refused to cover their escape.

Meanwhile another tip that started police searching the Goempel farm again for the two fugitives proved a false alarm this morning.

BOMBS SEIZED IN AUTO

INDIANA, Pa., May 15.—(AP.)—Two bombs, one composed of 18 sticks of dynamite, were discovered yesterday in a parked car in the business section of Indiana, police reported.

Patrolmen Edward Allen and Oliver Barry, who reported discovering the explosives, traced the license of the machine and arrested John Koplas as the owner. He admitted ownership of the machine, but asserted it had been stolen, the officers said.

Police declared that under questioning, Koplas revealed his real name is Vincent Dimino and that he has lived under an alias for 10 years.

Children Watch John D.; No Dimes

LAKEWOOD, N. J., May 15.—A large group of children gathered outside the First Baptist Church here yesterday to see John D. Rockefeller, who returned last week from Florida. They saw him, but he handed out no dimes.

Food Probed in Man's Death, Wife's Illness

Both state and county officials were planning an investigation today of the death of Charles Smith, 36, of 809 Excelsior street, as well as chemical analysis of a large number of food samples taken from his home.

Smith died unexpectedly last night after an illness of several hours and his wife, who was also stricken is recovering. Their four children, Shirley Ann, 2; Audrey, 9; Charles, Jr., 11; and James 13, are under the observation of Dr. G. G. Shoemaker.

An autopsy has been performed by Dr. J. W. McMeans, Coroner's physicians, but the cause of the death had not been definitely established. Dr. McMeans will hold a conference today with Coroner W. J. McGregor.

Samples of the Saturday evening meal and flour used in making pancakes yesterday morning will be analyzed by John T. Cain, of the Bureau of Food and Drugs of the United States Department of Agriculture.

Frank Hopkins, 33, and his sister, Anne, 38, who live with the Smiths, reported that they were unaffected by the food. Hopkins is a brother-in-law.

FAST REUNITES GANDHI, SON

POONA, India, May 19.—(AP.)—The Mahatma Gandhi, in the second week of his three-weeks' fast in protest of "untouchability," has broken an estrangement of long standing and been reconciled with Hiraldal, his eldest son.

In honor of the reunion and the arrival of his wife, recently released from jail, the India leader yesterday foreswore his usual day of silence and talked with them.

The reconciliation took place at the villa of Lady Trackersey, where the Mahatma was brought upon his release from jail at Yeroda soon after the beginning of his fast. The two split over a difference in views.

Heir of British Duke Turns Shopkeeper

By CHARLES A. SMITH
International News Service.

LONDON, May 15.—Heir to the fortune and vast estates of the Dukedom of Marlborough, the 35-year-old Marquess of Blandford is the latest English aristocrat to turn shopkeeper.

He is the eldest son of the ninth Duke of Marlborough by his first wife, the former Consuelo Vanderbilt, of New York, who divorced the duke in 1920 and married Col. Jacques Balsan, of France, the following year.

Meat, poultry, eggs and butter from his estate at Lowesby Hall, Leicestershire, form the basis of the new venture, and the marquess has opened up attractive premises in the heart of London's fashionable Mayfair for their sale.

Elegantly dressed women cast critical eyes over the store on the opening day and good business was reported.

Discussing his store, Lord Blandford explained that he has been running his country farm for about six years, primarily to provide work for the estate hands. The shopkeeper, who is heir to 20,000 acres and a former Guards captain, said:

"Customers are allowed to taste the butter and they realize it is very good. And our eggs are never more than two days old."

HITLER STAND WAITED

The address on the foreign and disarmament situations of Chancellor Hitler before the re-assembled Reichstag Wednesday was awaited with a mixture of hope and fear. The Daily Mail declared:

The Daily Telegraph said:

"It will largely depend thereon whether the disarmament conference is to be scuttled and sunk."

ALLIED COUNCIL URGED

LONDON, May 15.—(INS.)—The British government was called upon in the House of Commons this afternoon to reconvene the wartime supreme council of the allied and associated powers, including the United States, to halt Germany's move toward rearmament, if the Reich persists in that course.

The issue was raised by Col. Josiah Wedgwood, Labor member, after Frederick Seymour Cocks, another Laborite, had declared such action by Germany would constitute breach of the Treaty of Versailles.

U. S., Britain and France Present United Front

PARIS, May 15.—(AP.)—A three-power united front of the United States, Great Britain and France virtually has been achieved to face Germany at the Geneva disarmament conference Thursday, it was learned today.

Norman H. Davis, American ambassador-at-large, asked Foreign Minister Joseph Paul-Boncour at a 15-minute talk today to take a mild stand toward Chancellor Hitler's expected disarmament pronouncement before the Reichstag on Wednesday, it was authoritatively said, in order that the United States and Britain might be able to follow him.

The three powers through diplomatic channels were understood to be urging the German chancellor to be moderate in his Reichstag speech.

They were trying to keep the situation from boiling over, said an American spokesman, "so that a skillful bridge may be constructed from the Isle of Elba, where Hitler has placed himself, back to the mainland."

It was insisted that Mr. Davis and M. Paul-Boncour had no discussion of sanctions which might be invoked to coerce Germany, and that the international tariff truce was merely given finishing touches.

French concern about Chancellor Hitler's message to the Reichstag is unabated, but a government spokesman said France "does not expect Hitler to declare openly that the treaty of Versailles is another scrap of paper."

Instead, the French believe Germany intends to "re-arm quietly, announcing simply that France's failure to disarm has violated the treaty and that therefore Germany is a free agent.

This quiet re-arming, a French spokesman said, already has commenced in German factories which are building tanks, big guns and military airplanes.

Hitler Prepares Defense For Germany's Stand

BERLIN, May 15.—(AP.)—All energies of the Hitler regime were centered today on outlining a defense of Germany's armament policy.

Both Count Rudolf Hadolny, chief delegate at the world disarmament conference, and Dr. Alfred Rosenberg, chief of the foreign division of the Nazi party, recently in London, have been recalled for conferences today with the Chancellor.

Their talks will be preparatory to Hitler's speech Wednesday before the reassembled Reichstag, in which it is believed he will spare no means to show Germany's desire for peace, at the same time setting out a defense for the nation's stand for arms equality.

500 AUSTRIAN NAZIS SEIZED

VIENNA, May 15.—(AP.)—Boos and bayonets had put more than 500 persons behind bars today.

The boos were from the throats of Austrian Nazis and Socialists, who sought thus to express opposition to the parade of 40,000 Fascist Heimwehr (home guards), held as a demonstration of support to Chancellor Dollfuss' government.

The bayonets were in the hands of mounted police and gendarmes, who charged the dissenters. Several persons were wounded.

The Chancellor, ruling under a virtual dictatorship since the first of the year, said his government has accomplished more than a "parliamentary machine could accomplish in two years."

Germany Reported Making Poison Gas

LONDON, May 15.—(Universal.)—Germany is manufacturing heavy guns and poison gas, botn forbidden her by the treaty of Versailles, the London Daily Herald today states the French general staff has learned.

The newspaper says reports have reached France that "the Rhine Metal Works, of Dusseldorf, are making six-inch howitzers for which they have received large orders from the Reichswehr Ministry." It is also reported that the Stolzenberg chemical works are turning out poison gas.

France Sees Support By U. S. on Arms

rope, if the disarmament conference succeeds.

This collaboration would be American attendance at a conference for defining the aggressor in case of war, and, if the definition is acceptable to the United States, renunciation of the right to cloak commerce with the aggressor under guise of neutrality.

Concluding a ringing speech yesterday at Marseilles, Herriot, just back from Washington, where as a former premier he represented the French government, said:

"President Roosevelt seeks to break with the tradition of isolation followed by certain preceding administration."

Davis to Stay

Meanwhile it was learned that French finance ministry experts are insisting that the United States and Britain agree on some sort of currency stabilization before the world economic conference, even if this be but provisional. Otherwise, they declare, it will be idle to discuss tariff barriers and other economic problems.

In view of the grave developments, Norman H. Davis, American Ambassador-at-Large, has decided to stay in Paris, at least until Wednesday, to watch the course of events from here.

Wednesday, Chancellor Hitler delivers his disarmament policy address to the Reichstag. It is expected to be no retreat from the present intransigent German stand, but it is also expected to contain a plea for American understanding of Germany's viewpoint.

Thursday, the disarmament conference reconvenes to debate Germany's demands in the light of Hitler's statement. Should Germany bolt the conference a second time, the European situation would be admittedly explosive.

France now feels that any hope of obtaining anything substantial from the disarmament conference is definitely dead, and that the utter insignificance of the so-called tariff truce is glaringly revealed by the multitudinous reservations of the great powers.

Slight Benefit Seen

From Geneva, the utmost France expects is some trivial conclusions, at the best, a precarious understanding covering no vital points in the disarmament problem.

Such a Geneva agreement, it is felt here, would be in the same category as the tariff truce, of which one cabinet member says:

"To expect any result whatsoever would be to give way to reckless optimism."

The futility of the London truce, from the French point of view, is graphically demonstrated in new week-end decrees raising French trade barriers still higher — decrees fully protected by France's blanket reservations at London.

There is a growing belief here that the world economic conference should be postponed since nothing can be expected of it under present conditions. France, it is felt, had best concentrate on its own "Ottawa conference" with her colonies, beginning Thursday, for the purpose of consolidating the French trade empire as an economic union, independent of the world by virtue of its own resources.

'DUMB' LEADERS HIT BY HULL

WASHINGTON, May 15.—(INS.)—Conditions abroad are becoming intolerable and unless there is concerted agreement upon recovery measures, the world will drift steadily toward bankruptcy, Secretary of State Hull said today.

Without mentioning specifically any nation, Hull said he assumed that the people soon will kick some kind of sensibility into "dumb and blind statesmen."

His remarks, made to newspaper correspondents in a press conference, were interpreted as being directed at the intensification of the economic war and the belligerent attitude adopted by the Hitler government in Germany.

In the movement for world recovery, Hull said, the United States willing to do its full part, even to the reconsideration of policies which other countries might consider as unfair restrictions upon international trade.

This was tantamount to stating that the United States is willing to reconsider its present high tariff policy, and in co-operation with other nations embark upon program for general reduction of tarix barriers throughout the world.

Norway and Sweden, Britain Sign Pacts

LONDON, May 15.—(AP.)—Trade agreements between Great Britain and Sweden and Great Britain and Norway were signed at the foreign office today.

Something to Get Excited About

The New Super Series All-Porcelain Frigidaire

Nothing like it known before

Just a list of the new conveniences offered in these models is a revelation. Here is 1/4 more food space in the same sized cabinet—far greater ice freezing capacity—automatic defrosting and automatic ice tray releasing — adjustable shelves and double Hydrator capacity—interior lighting in a beautifully paneled All-Porcelain cabinet that in itself is a notable style achievement.

The famous Frigidaire two-cylinder compressor has been increased 20% in efficiency. So even on the hottest days current consumption is remarkably low.

But you'll have to see the new Frigidaires to appreciate their outstanding value. And a complete line now awaits your inspection. Come in tomorrow and see how easily you can have the model of your choice under our easy payment plan.

TORRENCE, FILM VILLAIN DIES IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, May 15.—(AP.)—Ernest Torrence, veteran screen actor, died today at the age of 54.

His wife, the former Ilse Reamer, was with him at the end, as were his son Ernest, Jr., and two brothers.

Torrence's home was in Hollywood. He was first stricken aboard the liner Empress of Britain on which he was en route from the west coast to his native Scotland for a vacation. When the liner arrived here he was taken to the hospital.

FUNERAL WEDNESDAY

Funeral services will be held Wednesday morning, at the Church of the Heavenly Rest. The body will be cremated and the ashes sent to California.

Torrence, who broke into the films as the villainous mountaineer in "Tol'able David," went on to success in "The Covered and a host of more recent pictures.

Audiences all over the world, familiar with his 6 feet 4 inches and 220 pounds of screen ability, were not generally aware that he once sang grand opera, became famous as a concert pianist before he went on the stage, and was a musical comedy star prior to his Hollywood debut.

He was born in Edinburgh, Scotland, and was educated in private and public schools, and at the Edinburgh Academy of Music, the Conservatorium in Stuttgart, Germany, and the Royal Academy of Music in London.

CONCERT PIANIST

About 35 years ago he launched his professional career as a concert pianist, winning critical acclaim in many European capitals. In 1900 he was awarded the Royal Academy of Music medal for operatic work and the Westmoreland prize.

In 1901 he became leading baritone of the Savoy Opera Company. His services were greatly in demand by light opera and musical comedy producers, and for several years he was featured in London and on Broadway.

He claimed the honor of being the first talking picture actor, for 20 years ago the late Thomas Edison announced he had perfected a talking picture device and scenes were "shot" at East Orange, N. J., with Torrence singing the prison role in "Faust."

Actor Dead

'G-NOTCH' GANG KILLER SLAIN

CHICAGO, May 15.—(AP.)—"Public Enemy" Rocco Belcastro, 25, recorded by police as a burglar, liquor dealer, terrorist, and member of the "Circus Gang," was found shot to death today in an automobile.

The body had been bound with clothesline and electirc cord, partly wrapped in a burlap bag, and covered with a blanket. In a shoulder holster he carried a loaded pistol with six notches on the handle.

Blood stains on the running board of the automobile, a new machine without license plates, led police to believe Belcastro had been killed elsewhere and his body placed in the car. The machine was parked on Carroll street a mile from the Loop.

Investigators theorized he had been shot by gangland enemies while bound and helpless. It was the first gangster killing in Chicago in weeks, the last major killing being that of Ted Newberry.

MAN KILLED, 3 HURT IN TRUCK CRASHES

Oliver Negley, 32, of 428 North Highland avenue, was killed, and a companion injured, when their truck collided with another near Zelienople yesterday morning. Both were employed by the Exhibitors Service Company, 1212 Forbes street. Negley was the father of five children.

Harry Kelly, 21, of 808 Galveston avenue, and Ray Smith, 36, of Reed street, were injured yesterday when their truck collided with an automobile in Beechwood boulevard, near Shaw avenue, according to a police report. William Daniels, of Conestoga road, driver of the automobile, was arrested, charged with reckless driving.

Lilly McChesney, 32, of Dawson street, was injured when she was struck near her home, according to a police report, by a machine driven by John Ring, of Darragh street.

Robert O'Hara, Jr., 9, and his sister, Isabella, 10, of Willet road, Brentwood, were injured when their father's automobile collided with another machine, driven by Benjamin Speer, of 104 West Meyers avenue, according to police.

Julius Flaherty, 5, of 2541 Fifth avenue, was injured when he was struck by an automobile near his home, driven, police said, by James Nedd, Negro, of 600 Rebecca street.

Dorothy Schultz, 4, of 511 West Eighth avenue, West Homestead, was in the Homestead Hospital with a probable skull fracture, suffered when she ran in front of an automobile near her home last night. Ben Brooks, 28, Negro, of 7431 Monticello street, was held pending outcome of her injuries.

Mrs. Albert E. Jones, of 3323 East street, was injured early today when an automobile driven by her husband collided with a machine operated by James H. Skinner, 51, of 8 East Stockton avenue, at Galveston and North Lincoln avenues. Both drivers were arrested, charged with reckless driving.

What Are You Going To Do About It?

"No Paroles for convicted racketeers."

That ultimatum against recidivist crime comes from the district attorney of the Bronx, in the city of New York, who has proved that rackets can be broken simply by protecting his witnesses from intimidation or injury and by prosecuting with relentless vigor.

Four men, found guilty of violence in the nefarious business called "the poultry racket," have been sentenced to indeterminate penitentiary terms, NOT TO EXCEED three years.

And the district attorney announces his intention that the prison terms actually served by these guilty men SHALL NOT BE LESS than that.

Heretofore, it has been all too common for racketeers, trapped by some law, to serve a little portion of their terms, obtain paroles and get right back into the old illegal business while technically they are still prisoners.

The district attorney of the Bronx now proposes that the parole racket shall be broken, along with the rest of the rackets he is after. His office will OPPOSE any paroles for the four men whom he has just sent up.

On the mere facts, this is just a local case. In principle, it is a case of NATIONAL IMPORTANCE.

A precedent in dealing effectively with racketeers has been established in ONE state.

The law-abiding citizens of America must demand that this precedent be followed in EVERY state.

In YOUR state, what are you going to do about it?

Oil Firm President Shot Down by Gang

CHICAGO, May 15.—(INS.)—Machine gun snipers today shot down A. J. Miller, president of the Power Petroleum Company.

Witnesses told police four men in a big sedan waylaid Miller as he departed from his home for his office. At a hospital, where it was found several bullets punctured his stomach, Miller averred he was a holdup victim.

John Adolfi's Ashes Sent to Hollywood

HOLLYWOOD, May 15.—(INS.)—Ashes of John Adolfi, noted film director, will be brought from Revelstoke, B. C., to Hollywood, friends were advised today by Darryl Zanuck, film producer who was with Adolfi when the latter died following a stroke of paralysis while hunting bear in Canadian wilds.

Three days of steady marching were required by members of the party to take Adolfi's body to Revelstoke.

Spurned Suitor Kills Girl, Self

EASTON, Pa., May 15.—(AP.)—Mary L. Weaver, 26, and Vernon Amey, 30, were found dead early yesterday of bullet wounds in the home where the girl had been employed as a maid.

Police said Amey shot Miss Weaver and committed suicide. They said she recently spurned his attentions.

Passenger Beats Trolley Motorman

Beaten by a Negro passenger when he refused to accept transfer, George Hathezry, 30, of 1613 Bedford avenue, operator of a crosstown street car, was in Passavant Hospital today suffering from serious injuries. The Negro escaped.

Those Fashionable COTTONS!

RIGHT at the very top of the fashion ladder . . . are cottons! Sheer cottons, heavy cottons, cottons for dress, for dancing, for street, for sports wear! And because this is National Cotton Week, we've arranged for this presentation of 10,000 yards of the loveliest, the newest cottons. And if you are watching cotton in its steady price climb, you'll realize what values these are. Models in the department will wear frocks made of these various materials.

Plain Organdie—
25 colors, pastels and darks, with permanent finishes. 48c yard.

Plume Chiffon Voile—

Powder Puff Muslin—
Lovely prints on a fabric that requires no starching, and is always fresh and smart looking. 38c yard.

Triple Ripple—

Fairyspun Chiffon Voiles—
An excellent quality and patterns for summery afternoon and dance frocks. 38c yard.

Anti-Crease Voile—

Black Linen—
The newest sensation in the fabric world—for blouses, suits, sports dresses and coats. 75c yard.

5000 Yards Plain and Printed

SILKS . . . 55c yd.

A presentation of silks that will immediately suggest countless summery frocks . . . and quite inexpensive, too — figure it out for yourself!

Fashionable new prints—small and medium sized designs—and in light and dark-toned grounds — pastel and street shades in flat crepe and a selection of more than 35 colors in a well-known and well-liked heavy silk.

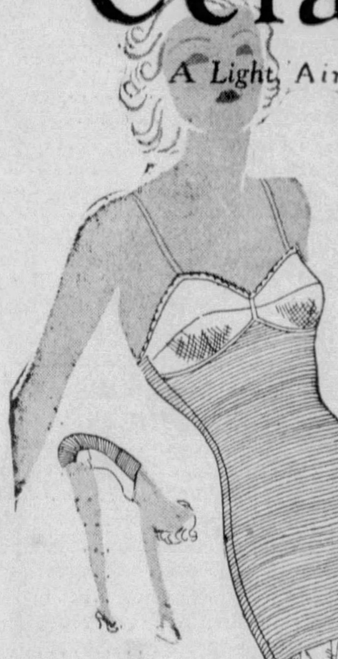
The Newest, Figure-Molding Lingerie Is

Celaflex

A Light, Airy New Lastex



A new, sheer two-way-stretch Lastex combines with a soft fabric that's non-shrinking and non-stretching—and the result . . . these marvelously supple, skin-tight undies with the bulge-eliminating powers of foundations, and the light, cool comfort of summer lingerie!

Briefs—$1.00.
Sportees—$1.95.
Undie-Girdles—$1.95.
All-in-Ones—$2.95.

WHITE HOUSE GOSSIP :-: Roosevelt Aides Interviewed; Navy Band Music :-: ON AIR TONIGHT

Russ Columbo In Hollywood Broadcast

An informal peek into the doings in and about the White House is given via NBC-KDKA tonight by two of President Roosevelt's secretaries, Col. Marvin H. McIntyre and Stephen T. Early.

"Mac" and "Steve" submit to quizzing by Martin Codel, head of the Radio News Bureau, and by George E. Durno, White House correspondent for International News Service and president of the White House Correspondents Association, respectively, from 10:30 to 11 p. m. Musical interludes on the program are provided by the United States Navy Band.

Pat Barnes Back

Two new KDKA program series bring Everett Marshall, former operatic star and now featured in "Melody," and Pat Barnes, radio character ace, to the air today on three-a-week schedules.

Marshall, supported by Al Mitchell's orchestra, occupies the spot formerly filled by the Octavus Roy Cohen mystery—7:15 on Mondays, Wednesdays and Saturdays. The Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, sponsors.

Pat Barnes, replying to the query, "Where is he?" inaugurates a Monday-Wednesday-Thursday schedule at 12:15 today.

The "Bar X Days and Nights" program goes dramatic on WJAS at 8:15, opening an episodic dramatization of the colorful history of the Lone Star Republic before it became the State of Texas.

Star Static

Star static from a distance of 30,000 light-years is to be heard via KDKA at 8:30 with Orestes H. Caldwell "tuning in."

Conrad Thibault, beginning tonight, replaces Ranny Weeks with Ferde Grofe's Orchestra on the WCAE cigaret bill at 8:45.

The vivacious Mexican charmer, Dolores del Rio, shares "Hollywood-on-the-Air" honors with Russ Columbo during the weekly West Coast broadcast over WCAE at 12:30 a. m.

Depicting the conflict between a Grecian girl of culture and the chief of a band of barbarians, who have captured her father, "Ingomar," famous old German melodrama first presented in this country in 1851, is revived by the Radio Guild players over NBC-KDKA today at 4.

Jim Hays Father Of Baby Boy

Jim Hays, WCAE announcer, became "poppa" Saturday with the arrival of a baby son to Mrs. Hays. She is the former Florence Schmalhorst, who until her marriage was secretary of J. L. Kaufman, manager of WCAE.

The afternoon and evening news flashes—at 12:15 p. m., 2:15 p. m. and 6:30 p. m.—will continue on both stations as usual.

Globe-Trotting

With the Globe-Trotter of the Sun-Telegraph and Hearst Metrotone News

—By LOUIS L. KAUFMAN—

Hello, ladies and gentlemen:

Inasmuch as all winter we asked Globe Trotters to care for the birds, Mrs. Joseph Strong, of the North Side, believes we ought to do something to protect them.

At her home on Venture street, between Perrysville and East, flocks of birds have been congregating ever since they found out that food and water was always supplied.

Now the young Daniel Boones of the neighborhood, flushed with the urge of the outdoors, pretend that the birds are ferocious and stalk them with air rifles.

Boys will be boys and I wouldn't threaten them with police or other agencies. For the most part they are not mean and destructive, but only imaginative. Maybe the parents, whose sons possess the rifles, will explain and reason with them.

It has been a most satisfying source of pleasure to receive the letters of appreciation from the various hospitals and their patients for the puzzles and books that you sent in for me to distribute. Thanks are due to Mrs. Morris G. Cohen, of Brentwood, who collected many packages from her neighbors and brought them down.

* * *

M. I. B.—William Nixon, Irwin, supplies an answer to your query. To remove a grease spot from wallpaper, cover the spot with a blotter and run a hot iron over it.

W. T. B., Uniontown—We have no record of the Gold Mining Company. Try the city auditor or controller at Braddock.

Racketeers 'Muscle In' On Radio

By AIRCASTER

The racketeering clans have a quaint method of weighing the importance of an industry. An industry, for instance, becomes a moneyed and therefore successful institution when it has developed a sufficiency of parasitical offshoots.

Measured by their yardstick, radio broadcasting seems to have attained the heights of affluence, prestige, or something. For, there appears to be no limit to the rackets born of the kilocycles.

Most crude, but not the least effective of the radio rackets is the slimy trick of selling "protection" to artists in the big money.

A victim pays so much to a bodyguard for the privilege of not being kidnaped or beaten.

If he fails in the pay-off, he is bruised up or maimed by way of taking a lesson. Added to that, he is later framed into situations that have blackmail possibilities.

Child Racketeering

There are, of course, some fine, honest and helpful schools where both artists and neophytes to radio may be "polished" or instructed in voice but there are others that constitute one of the meanest rackets extant. The racketeers in this case, mostly, are more or less itinerant, for obvious reasons.

Roughly, this is the way they operate—

They visit a medium-sized town, set up an office and some sound apparatus, get the lowdown on local conditions and begin a canvass.

They tell the fond mother of a school child, for instance, that they are scouts in the field, looking for new talent for a famous children's radio hour.

They have been to the public school, they say, and the school officials have tipped them off that the lady's little girl has a marvelous voice. They hint at big money and long contracts.

The child's parents are hypnotized. An audition is arranged and held. But there's the gimmick. An "expert" detects a flaw in the child's voice.

If she is to make a fortune for the family, she must take a few lessons, at so much per. The lessons begin, and when the family has been mulcted of $100 or more, the scouts fold their tents and vanish.

Big Town Lure

The filthiest of all the dirty racket tricks is that of the fake managers who lure girls from the sticks to New York with promises to "put them on the radio with a big salary."

The girls, who may have had spots on some remote station, hasten to the big city, where they are steered about and into fake auditions until they are broke and ashamed to go home.

HANDICAP

The telephone rings—who can be calling? The infinite possibilities lend spice to life. A friend, perhaps, with sprightly news . . . your next-door neighbor . . . an invitation . . . an offer of work! • But without a telephone, many an urgent message may be delayed. Many an opportunity may pass you by. • You are doubly handicapped. For the usefulness of the telephone is not limited by the calls you get. Even more important to remember are the calls you make!

Compare the value of the telephone with its small cost—less than 10 cents a day—and then ask yourself: "Can I afford to be without a telephone in my home?"

FULL TIME—FULL PAY FOR ALL OUR SALESPEOPLE

With conditions constantly getting better, we think it is our duty—as well as sound business—to put our people back on full time. When we were forced to cut down we did not follow the almost universal practice of cutting wages, but instead reduced working hours. Now we are more than glad to be able to put the whole salesforce back on full time and full pay. Your splendid support of our efforts to improve our store, to carry a better grade of goods, and to set our merchandising at a faster, smarter speed, enables us to take this important step forward.

HARRIS'

624-30 Liberty Ave. to Oliver Ave.

OK, Pittsburgh! You Liked It—
We'll Give You MORE of It—

Anniversary Continued!

The weather? A daily flood! Our Anniversary values? Had the whole town licked, merchandise for merchandise! The customers? Nearly every man, woman and child who braved the elements, and took a look at what we offered, BOUGHT. Now, more than ever, we're convinced that we have what the people wanted. And because Harris' holds ONE Anniversary Sale, ONCE a year, we're determined to give everyone a chance to make the saving we know is here, weather or no.

Silk is Up 25%, Cotton 15%, Wool 10%

—and they're climbing higher. This time it's no wolf cry, but the cold facts of inflation. Everything you touch in this sale is irreplaceable at the prices we bought at. Everything you buy is marked, in addition, at the enormously low once-a-year Anniversary prices. There are no seconds in this sale—we handle ONLY first quality merchandise. Come and have a time. While we have the goods, they're yours at prices that unquestionably will soon be just a pleasant memory!

WESTINGHOUSE TO PROFIT BY WORKS PLAN

of every dollar to be spent, 30 cents will go for payroll.

"If that public works program goes through, the Navy will get a $240,000,000 appropriation, and $3,000,000 or $4,000,000 will go to the Westinghouse firm."

All increased activity through governmental action will be reflected in Pittsburgh's basic industries, Sells declared.

Coupled with this optimistic report from Washington is the finding by the Philadelphia Federal Reserve Bank today that the sharpest gains in Pennsylvania's employment rise were made in Pittsburgh, Sunbury, New Castle, York and Lancaster areas. Factory employment increased one per cent and wage payments jumped five per cent from the middle of March to the midpoint of April.

The advance was seen from a study of reports from 785 manufacturing concerns employing more than 200,000 workers.

GLASS PICKUP

Encouraging reports of growing activity in the district's glass and steel industry today were received from many sources. Thirty-nine open hearth furnaces are in operation in the Mahoning Valley, bringing steel production in the region to 40 per cent of capacity, the highest in two years, it is reported.

Heavier demand for steel in automobile manufacture is ascribed as partly responsible for the pick-up.

With nearly 100 per cent of the glass bottle blowers returned to work in the Pittsburgh region, according to Albert C. McLaughlin, a director of the Glass Bottle Blowers' Association, five plants of the Knox Glass Bottle Company have announced voluntary pay increases averaging $1 a day for 200 workers.

WAGE INCREASE

Plants affected by the wage increase are located at Knox, Sheffield, Marienville and Oil City, and Parkers Landing, all in Pennsylvania.

McLaughlin gave out this statement at the Fort Pitt Hotel where he arrived today to negotiate a new wage scale with a large Pittsburgh tube sign concern employing glass blowers. All other local tube sign companies have agreed to a new wage agreement to replace the old scale, which expires today. A protest will be made before the Central Trades Council against the Pittsburgh Brewing Company using non-union bottles, McLaughlin said.

VAUCLAIN SEES REAL UPSWING

PHILADELPHIA, May 15.—(AP.)—Samuel M. Vauclain, who has "been through every depression since the one of 1873," says a real upswing from the present one has been started and "it is going to swing more rapidly than the average person would expect."

Vauclain, chairman of the board of the Baldwin Locomotive Works, declared in an interview that there is "no bunk" in current reports of business improvement. He asserted:

"This is a real beginning. It is not one of those abortive flurries we had in 1930 and 1931."

Vauclain, an ardent Republican, stated he did all he could to defeat Franklin D. Roosevelt for President but now is "thoroughly loyal to him," because his efforts "have begun the upswing."

CATTLE PRICES UP 25-50 CTS.

One of the sharpest increases in the Pittsburgh live stock market in years occurred today with cattle prices up 25 to 50 cents a hundredweight.

Calves led the list with an advance of around 50 cents, hogs were up 25 to 45 cents, sheep 25 to 50 cents and cattle 25 cents and more.

The market here had been comparatively inactive during the later part of last week, and the sharp advance is in the nature of a catching-up with rising commodity prices.

Big Orders Placed By Taxi Builder

DETROIT, Mich., May 15.—Thirty carloads of taxicab material, including Continental motors, frames, axles and transmissions, have been shipped by Continental Motors Corporation to the M. P. Moller Motor Car Company, of Hagerstown, it is reported by W. R. Angell, president of Continental. M. P. Moller Motor Car Company is one of the largest manufacturers of taxicabs in the East.

Blame Lamont, Jr., For Auto Smashup

DENVER, May 15.—(AP.)—Robert P. Lamont, Jr., of Larkspur, Col., son of the Secretary of Commerce in the Hoover cabinet, was charged with speeding by Denver police after his motor car collided with another at a street intersection.

Irene Macqai, 23, of Denver a passenger in the other machine, suffered a broken collarbone. Lamont was not injured.

'Hope in Air,' Woodin Says, Visiting Home

NEW YORK, May 15.—(AP.)—William H. Woodin, home for a breathing spell for the first time since he became Secretary of the Treasury, said:

"Now, thank God, I think I can say that I really feel hope in the air. The banking situation seems to have settled down, and I feel real hope. Prophecy is a little out of fashion, but I do sense it."

800,000-VOLT X-RAY IN FIRST CANCER TEST

CHICAGO, May 15.—(INS.)—Man's most formidable agency to combat cancer, a giant X-ray machine, whirred into action for the first time today at Mercy Hospital.

John Mulcahy, suffering from a deep-seated cancer of the stomach, was selected as the first patient to submit to treatment under the huge 14-foot tube which develops a conservatively rated potential of 800,000 volts and 10 milliamperes. The powerful apparatus exceeds by 100,000 the working voltage of any other similar apparatus known to be in regular operation.

Four specialists in radio therapy under Dr. Herbert Schmitz gave the machine its final tests preparatory to treating the first patient. They expressed confidence that the apparatus would more than fulfill their expectations.

The machine will be used particularly for treatment of cases where cancerous tumors are deep in the stomach, bones, chest and abdomen. These are the cases which medical science has found most difficult to cure.

So powerful is the radiation from the apparatus that it is equal in curative effects to those produced by $75,000,000 worth of radium. It has attracted attention throughout the medical world.

Automatic safety devices protect the physicians, attendants laboratory workers from possible injury. In the white-tiled chamber lined with 20 tons of lead, where the patient receives the treatments, is a safety device which automatically suspends the current if the door is opened when the machine is functioning.

While submitting to a treatment the patient is bundled in rubber and metal-lined blankets, which cover all but that part of the body which the rays are intended to reach.

Hundreds of the smart set from sub-debs to grandmothers will be busy Saturday with the annual flower day for the benefit of the Children's Hospital. Hundreds literally will be selling tiny red geraniums similar to those used on the past 22 flower days.

There are so many sellers that I can't possibly find room to mention them all; so I shall only enumerate the chairmen who, with their aides will be found in all the large business houses, apartments and hotels round about.

Mrs. James B. Drew and Mrs. Herbert DuPuy, who has directed every flower day for the hospital, are in charge.

Benefit Chairmen

Others are Mrs. Hugh Rodman, Mrs. John J. Heard, Mrs. Elder W. Marshall, Mrs. R. J. Hanna, Mrs. J. H. Bialas, Anne Emmerling, Mrs. Howard H. Wood, Mrs. Robert G. Martin, Mrs. H. V. Blaxter, Mrs. Anna Stafford, Miss Mary Murphy, Mrs. F. A. Keating.

Mrs. C. E. Lott is chairman of the East Liberty district, and other chairmen will include Miss Margaret Seifert, Mrs. E. W. Judy, Mrs. George P. Bassett, Mrs. George T. Ladd, Miss Matilda Carothers, Mrs. Lewis A. Park, Miss Jane Hermeier, Mrs. William Bassett, Mrs. J. K. Everhart and Miss Bessie B. Geddis.

220 Wilkinsburg Club Women at Luncheon

One of the largest of the club spring luncheons was that of the Wilkinsburg Woman's Club which was held Saturday in the Pittsburgh Field Club with covers laid for 220.

Indeed youth seemed to figure largely in the whole affair, for the juniors were guests and an enjoyable program was given by a quartet of young women.

Miss Lucile Bauch made a pleasing impression with her soprano solos for which Miss Selma Brandt was accompanist.

Then Miss Brandt did some piano solos, one of which was a clever arrangement of her own, showing Swanee River with Bach, Rachmaninoff, Schubert, Chopin modernistic and Tin Pan Alley settings.

Congress Gives Up Time For National Broadcast

Mrs. J. H. Dickson, chairman of radio programs for the Congress of Clubs, announces that the program scheduled for the Congress broadcast tomorrow has been cancelled.

Marie Tello Phillips Appointed Chairman For Poetry Week

MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

Marie Tello Phillips (Mrs. Charles J. Yaegle) again has been appointed chairman of poetry week (May 21-28) for Western Pennsylvania by Anita Browne, national chairman.

Several local affairs have been planned for the celebration, including the Bookfellow luncheon on Friday of this week in the Congress of Clubs to which members of both the Bookfellows and the Poetry Society have been invited. Mrs. Chester F. Johnston is chairman, and Mrs. Phillips, who is national president of the Bookfellows, will be honor guest.

Next Monday evening, a Bookfellow-Poetry salon will be held in Mrs. Yaegle's home, in Darlington road, with officers of the two participating groups as honor guests. Mrs. Phillips has been asked to repeat her address on "New English Novels in the Spotlight," which she gave at the celebrity breakfast of the Miami Branch, League of American Pen Women in April. A group of her lyrics also will be a part of the program.

At the usual Poetry Society breakfast in the Congress clubhouse on May 24, Mrs. Phillips again will be honor guest and excerpts from her new volume, "The Honeysuckle and the Rose," will be reviewed.

Clayton Hamilton Asked To Be Council Speaker

The program committee for the twelfth diocesan convention of the Pittsburgh Council of Catholic Women has asked Clayton Hamilton to be one of the speakers on the evening program Thursday at the Council House.

There will be two Saturday afternoon card parties at Council House following the convention. On May 20 Miss Rachael A. Good will be hostess and Mrs. J. J. Studeny will be hostess the following week.

When Launderings Then Just "Tint As Rinse" With Tintex

The most beautiful "undie" loses its charm if the color is faded. And, of course, the color does fade from repeated laundering.

But never mind! A little Tintex in the final rinsing water—then just "tint as you rinse"—and your "undie" is as fresh and pretty as the day you bought it.

The rest of your wardrobe also quickly responds to the color-magic of Tintex. Faded sportswear, dresses, scarfs, stockings, etc., are restored to their original colors—or given different colors, if you wish.

And Tintex is so simple, so perfect. You get professional results the first time you use any of its 35 brilliant, long-lasting colors!

AMERICAN WOMEN WEAR SPORTS CLOTHES WITH DASH AND CHARM

AMERICAN WOMEN beat all others when it comes to sports clothes. We are neither as high-heeled as the French nor as flat-footed as the English. We realize that the most becoming dress on court or links is the most appropriate. We are fluffy, slinky, demure in the evening; downright and a touch mannish on the fairway.

A GOOD working example of what American girls elect as an all-round sports dress is the one in the middle. It couldn't be plainer. But it's also extraordinarily good-looking, because it's completely right. In the first place, the material is one of the freshest and best wearing of the cotton family, English broadcloth. The fine stripes alternate, blue and white, a clear and becoming combination.

AS IT'S SHOWN in the center, it looks like a one-piece dress. But not at all! The skirt unwraps, and underneath you've got the tailored shorts shown on the left. These are neither baggy nor skimpy—cut so neatly they won't shock the most dyed-in-the-wool dowager. The neck, as you see, can be worn open or buttoned high, depending on how you feel about sunburn.

ONE OF the necessities of life is the polo coat on the right. This year it's made in a fascinating cotton with a honeycomb weave. It has the same ample, comfortable look as the camel's hair parents. The deeply notched collar, deep armholes, doublebreasted front and patch pockets recommend it for wear over all your sports clothes.

The players, Mr. and Mrs. George V. Emerson, of 1315 Sheridan avenue, will take part in a presentation of "The Mender of Ruins, to be given by the Studio Group of the "Y" Co-operative Playhouse.

CEMETERY ROW SETTLED

The dispute over the management of Church Hill Cemetery, Wilkins Township, which reached the courts, apparently had been wiped off the slate today.

To comply with charter provisions to which attention was called by the court in dismissing an injunction suit against the board of managers, 10 corporators were named by the board. In turn the corporators re-elected the board of managers.

Lot holders had brought suit against the management charging that the board had violated charter requirements as to conduct of the cemetery. The suit was dismissed for lack of evidence.

Women Here to Discuss Government Finances

State Women Voters Open Convention Wednesday

Three open meetings devoted to discussions on financing of state and local governments are planned at the biennial convention of the Pennsylvania League of Women Voters which will be held at Hotel Schenley two days beginning Wednesday.

Mrs. David Chandler Prince, state chairman of the committee on education, who worked on the proposed school code of the last session of the Legislature, will be chairman of the program.

Prominent speakers will be heard. Dr. Harold W. Dodds, professor of politics and chairman of affairs of Princeton University, will speak the opening morning. Dr. Dodds, recognized as an authority on municipal governments, assisted in formulating a new law code for New Jersey.

Prof. F. W. Weaver, of Pennsylvania State College, also will be a speaker, discussing "A New System or More Taxes to Pay the Bill." Robert D. Dripps, executive secretary of the Pennsylvania Economic Council, also is scheduled to speak. A session dealing with the school situation with Mrs. Stuart L. Henderson presiding, and a meeting on economic security, Mrs. Austin Vanderslice presiding, are among program features. The closing afternoon will be devoted to a business session.

'BILL' LEARNS HOW TO START FLYING CAREER

Told of Procedure To Get Student Permit

WIN YOUR WINGS
Installment No. 1

"What do you want, young fellow?"

The question came from a broad shouldered man with tanned features, wearing the blue uniform of an airline pilot. He addressed a tall youth in his late teens, who was wandering about the airport administration building with an air of self-conscious pride derived from the khaki breeches, riding boots and brilliant orange windbreaker, topped off by a leather flying helmet and fur-collared leather coat.

The lad admitted:

"I'm not sure. You see I came out to start flying."

The older man asked, eyeing the boy's costume quizzically:

"Had any experience?"

"No, but I thought if I came out here I could get someone to teach me."

"Have you got your student permit?"

"No. What's that?"

"Say, I don't know who you are, but come on over here and let's sit down and talk this thing over."

The two wandered over to a nearby bench and sitting down, the pilot began:

"My name's Jerry Townsend."

"Mine's William Otis Reed."

Then Jerry said:

"Well, Bill, the first thing for you to do is to go and see a doctor authorized by the Department of Commerce to give physical examinations and issue student permits. The Department of Commerce has been regulating aviation since 1926, and that's one of the things they do—stop people flying who aren't capable of learning. It's one of their regulations that before you can take flying instruction you have to pass a physical examination and hold a student permit."

"Is the exam very hard to pass?"

"Oh, no! I think you'll pass. Any normal person can. What the government is trying to do is to stop people flying who might have a fit, or faint, or who have some physical defect which would make them lose control of the plane. Obviously, someone who's apt to lose consciousness at any moment is a menace."

That certainly doesn't sound too hard!"

"Well, there's a little more to it than that. For a private pilot's license the examination is a snap, but when you are trying for a limited commercial or transport pilot's license the requirements are a bit tougher."

"Why's that?"

"Because if you are going to fly for fun, you've only yourself to worry about, but if you're going to fly commercially, the government protects the public by insisting that you be perfectly fit. That doesn't mean that you have to be a super-man, but just that you must be normal and healthy. Of course, the things that cause most trouble in examinations for all grades of licenses are eyes."

Bill exclaimed, visibly disappointed:

"Oh, heck! have to wear glasses when I read or study."

"That doesn't rule you out. Lots of pilots wear glasses. Your trouble may be only in the muscles of your eyes and easily corrected. Lack of depth perception is the most serious fault, as it can have very unpleasant consequences when you are flying."

"What is depth perception?"

"It is the ability to judge distances, and especially relative distances. That is to say, when you see two things some distance off, can you tell which is farther away?"

"Well, of course, I can. So can everybody. Can't they?"

"Not everyone. Most people can, but you'd be surprised how many have no idea of relative distances.

"The thing for you to do now is to go upstairs and find out from the Department of Commerce inspector who is the authorized doctor in town and get your physical examination."

"Okay, and thanks a lot."

"WILLIAM OTIS REED" MEETING HIS FLYING INSTRUCTOR

Experienced Pilot Gives Facts to Aspirant

Answer These Questions

What are the physical requirements of a student pilot?

Who issues permits to students fliers?

Contest Rules

The rules of the "Win Your Wings" contest follow:

The Sun-Telegraph will publish in 12 installments the serial "Win Your Wings," the experiences of a student pilot. Three questions relative to aviation subjects will be printed each day, the answers to each being contained in some previous installment.

Read each day's installment and answer the questions. Thirty-six questions must be answered. When your list of questions and answers is complete, send them to the "Win Your Wings" Contest Editor, Sun-Telegraph, Telegraph Square, Pittsburgh, together with an essay of not more than 250 words on "Why I Want to Fly."

Questions and answers must be accompanied by essay.

TEN PRIZES

Winners will be selected as to largest number of correct answers and merit of essay. In case of ties duplicate awards will be given.

Second—Choice of a mechanic's course and full apprenticeship or two round trip flights to Washington, D. C., good for 60 days.

Third—Pilot's ground course or one round trip flight to Washington.

Fifth—Round trip to Cleveland.

Winners of first, second, third and fourth prizes will be subject to United States Department of Commerce regulations governing aviation students. To be eligible for a pilot's course, student must be 16 years of age or over, and, if a minor, must have parents' written consent to fly. Passenger flights to various cities as designated are optional.

Do as your dentist does...
when he cleans your teeth

Powder Cleans and Whitens Teeth—as nothing else can Outlasts Toothpaste 2 to 1

THERE is nothing known that will clean and polish teeth so quickly and leave them so gleaming white—as POWDER.

That is why your dentist, when cleaning your teeth, as you know—always uses powder.

As it is only the powder part of any dentifrice that cleans, a dentifrice that is ALL POWDER just naturally cleans best.

Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder IS ALL POWDER—100% cleansing properties. This is more than twice the cleansing properties of tooth pastes.

Dull Teeth Become White

For over SIXTY YEARS—dentists everywhere have prescribed Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder, because—teeth simply cannot remain dull and film coated when it is used.

It cleans off all stains and tartar, and polishes the teeth in a harmless and practical way that leaves them sparkling—many shades whiter.

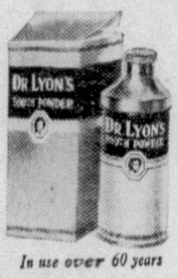
Dr. Lyon's is the only dentifrice old enough to prove it can be safely used for life. Free from all grit or pumice, it cannot possibly scratch, or injure the softest enamel, as years of constant use have shown.

Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder keeps your teeth REALLY CLEAN and clean teeth mean—firm, healthy gums, freedom from pyorrhea and the least possible tooth decay.

Lasts Longer—Costs Less

Once you use Dr. Lyon's you will never be satisfied to use anything else. It leaves your teeth feeling so much cleaner, your mouth so refreshed, and your breath so sweet and pure.

Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder is not only doubly efficient, but it costs only half as much to use. Even a small package lasts twice as long as a tube of tooth paste.



In use over 60 years

By ELSIE ROBINSON

Big Sister Is Trying Hard To End Girl's Romance

Got a Little Sister?

Or a kid daughter will do just as well.

A sweet, silly, soft-hearted youngster who's going through her first love affair with what looks to you like a Perfect Blight—yet who won't give him up for "hell or high water."

Anything like that in your scenario?

If so, what can you do about it? Joan, who's rarin' to do plenty, would like to know.

Dear Miss Robinson:

I read your column all the time and I am wondering if you can help me with a problem that is pretty serious. I hope you can. Here it is.

I have a younger sister who is keeping steady company with a young chap. When we were first introduced to him he appeared quite nice, but after we knew him a little while I began to notice things about him that weren't so good.

For one thing, he is continually telling lies, not only to her but to the entire family as well.

At first we kept still. We didn't want to hurt her feelings, and thought she would eventually see things for herself. But it seems it's no use. She believes in him implicitly, and our not talking to her has made things worse, because he thinks he has us hoodwinked.

I honestly don't think she loves him. She just thinks he needs her to live. Lately, I have hinted to her about things he has done, but she simply flares up at anything that is said about him.

She has no interests outside of him, and outside of the girls she works with, she has no friends. If she suggests ever going to a dance without him, he puts on a big cry-baby act because he can't dance, and insists she wants to go because she's "bored with him." And she stands for it! She can't resist his great big tears. (I've actually seen him shed them, so don't think it's my imagination.)

STANDS BY BOY

You can readily see that he is a weak sort, who plays on her sympathy to get things that he thinks will benefit him. I am sure she can never find any real happiness with him.

Lately we have all tried to talk to her and make her see just how worthless he is, but that only makes her madder and seemingly more determined to stick to him. Maybe it is none of my business, but she is my sister and I am fond of her. I don't want her to ruin her life, as she certainly will be doing if she marries him.

So, please, won't you tell us how to save her from such a fate? JOAN.

Of course you don't want to see her marry such a piece of tripe; but of course, after all, it is her life, and she'll have to learn for herself how to manage it. You can't manage it for her.

REVERSE PROCEDURE

Then is there nothing you can do?

Sure there is! There are always at least a dozen ways of "skinning a cat"—and maybe this one will work. You see you, yourselves, have been making a Poor Abused Martyr of the Boy Friend, by telling her his faults and forcing her to fly to his defense. Even if she secretly suspected that you were right, she'd have to stick by him, Joan, to save her own face. But in addition to wounded pride, this persecution also satisfies the love for melodrama which all youngsters have.

So, suppose you try a new tack.

Stop making a martyr of him, or giving her a chance to make a martyr of herself. Do a reverse, and be friendly, instead. Invite in a crowd of other boys and girls—nice boys, manly boys; nice girls.

Let her see him alongside them and make her own comparisons.

Bring new interests into her life, casually, pleasantly, gayly. Don't give her any hint that you're trying to scuttle his boat. If you give him room enough he'll likely scuttle it himself. If she sees him stacked up against regular boys, nine chances out of ten she'll see what he is for herself.

And if she doesn't. Why then, Joan, I reckon she'll just have to live and learn—by being sorry, as the rest of us do.

Be Happy to Be As a Child, to Your Parents, Says Fay King

I'M GROWN UP NOW AND I INTEND TO DO AS I PLEASE!
YOU STILL TREAT ME AS IF I WERE A CHILD
FOR SO MANY YEARS YOU WERE DEPENDENT UPON HER LOVE AND CARE!
FAY KING

By FAY KING

So many young persons are impatient and resentful toward parents who still persist in treating them as children.

But it takes a little time for parents to realize that the youngsters, who were for so many years little dependents clinging to them, are quite suddenly grown up.

There is need for consideration and concession on both sides. A little patience and gentleness in asserting and demanding independence.

It is not fair to suddenly wrench and uproot yourself from their hearts and leave a hurtful wound as their reward.

You cannot remember all the days of your helpless childhood as they do. Strangers were not interested in you then.

It would surely hurt you more if parents suddenly turned and drove you from them!

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Know the Symptoms of Catching Diseases

Recent reports from the health officials of the larger cities indicate the prevalence of a number of the communicable diseases of childhood. It is prudent in such a time for parents to acquaint themselves with the symptoms and the means of preventing these diseases.

Dr. Copeland

Measles, German measles, scarlet fever and chicken pox, are some of the diseases accompanied by eruptions, or "breaking out." Mumps, whooping cough and diphtheria have no outward evidence so far as the skin is concerned.

Measles usually appears about 14 days after exposure. This disease is extremely contagious. It is spread through contact with the sick, or by exposure to articles or clothing recently used in the care of the patient. The first symptoms are nasal discharge, reddened eyes, fever and an eruption. The latter usually appears the fourth day, first on the face, from which it spreads rapidly to the remainder of the body.

In appearance, the rash is made up of minute, dark red papules which have a tendency to group themselves in a crescent shaped arrangement. About the fifth or sixth day the eruption reaches its height and then gradually begins to fade.

Measles is a disease most dangerous to others before the appearance of the eruption. If you suspect one of your children has measles keep the other children away from the one with cold or a running nose. See to it that the child has good food, sufficient sleep, and also that there is proper elimination. In addition, care of the general health, avoidance of drafts, and a careful convalescence are important.

Scarlet fever is one of the communicable diseases which appears within a few days after exposure. The earliest symptoms to be noted are sore throat, vomiting and fever. The eruption is seen within the first 48 hours, appearing on the neck and chest. It resembles simple flushing of the skin, but on close examination minute points distributed over the surface of the body are found. The duration of the eruption in scarlet fever is about one week.

As a redness disappears, the skin of the entire body peels. This "desquamation," as the peeling process is called, may take a month or six weeks. Until all the symptoms have subsided and the patient is well on the road to recovery, the utmost care must be taken to guard him against taking cold. Kidney complications and involvement of the ears frequently follow scarlet fever unless every precaution is exercised.

Chicken pox is one of the mild diseases most common in children between the ages of 1 and 6 years. Occasionally there may be symptoms of general body disturbance, with headache and loss of appetite. As a rule, about two weeks after exposure small pimples or vesicles appear, first on the back and face, then spreading to other portions of the body.

In a few hours after the eruption, papules appear, showing a white center. Then within 24 hours the spots gradually dry up and scabs form. One peculiarity of chicken pox is that the eruption appears in successive crops. At one and the same time there may be papules, vesicles, pustules and occasionally scabs.

Chicken pox is invariably a mild disease. Keeping the patient in bed and giving him a light diet and a mild laxative are about all the treatment required.

Madge Suspects That Jerry Is Owen's Ally

Whoever "Jerry" might be, he certainly was a tremendous factor in the lives of Nick and Tony. I had suspected this when Nick tried to trick me into a betrayal that I knew "Jerry." Now my suspicion was confirmed by Tony's outburst, as I found the second little bag of pebbles, which was Ronald's signal, on the side road branching off from the main thoroughfare.

Tony's truculent announcement that the road led to "Jerry's" made me catch my breath in fear of something that had stirred in the back of my mind from the moment when, desperate with the necessity of trailing the car in which Marion was held prisoner, I had accepted Nick's offer of a lift.

I had knowledge, direct or otherwise, of the modern gangster. My secret service work under Lillian had brought me in contact with desperate and dangerous men and women, but they had been political conspirators, who, however dark and criminal their activities, had at least possessed the saving grace of devotion to a cause. But the thug who kills or hires killers for gain, revenge, or for flouted authority, taking human life with as little compunction as a housewife would swat a fly—this type of human being was known to me only through newspaper reading.

MADGE'S HYPOTHESIS

That I was getting first hand knowledge of that type now, in the persons of Nick and Tony, I was sure, even though I had no real reason upon which to base my conviction. The thought sent icy little shivers chasing each other up and down my spine, but even through my fear there ran a thread of thought as curious as it was hopeful.

Incoherent and chaotic as were the fancies swirling in my brain, I was yet able to evolve a working hypothesis, while I waited for Nick's answer to Tony's outburst concerning the road to "Jerry's." Marshaled, my hypothesis arranged itself thus:

Charles Owen had gangsters in his employ in the kidnaping of Marion. Instead of continuing down the main highway, the natural course of one wishing to make a speedy escape, he had turned down this unfrequented road.

Tony had said that this road led to "Jerry's." If Tony and Nick were gangsters, as I surmised, then "Jerry," whom they evidently regarded as an enemy, was also a gangster.

It was not without the bounds of possibility that "Jerry" was in Owen's employ, and that the abductor of Marion was even now hurrying her toward his lair. I could think of no other word to describe the abode of a man capable of carrying off Marion.

EXPLANATION DEMANDED

If these wild conjectures of mine were true, and a queer little intuition that has rarely failed me told me they were, then I dared to hope that in Nick and Tony I might have allies worthy the name, in the attempt to release Marion. Their open antipathy to "Jerry" might make it possible for me to secure their aid against him.

But first I must convince Tony that I had no connection with Jerry. With a rapid falling of my mental thermometer, I realized that Nick had not yet answered Tony's outburst. Would he agree with his colleague for the first time about me, or would he continue to defend me against Tony's disbelief?

"How about it, Babe?" he said at last, not deigning to answer Tony. "You told me you didn't know anything about Jerry, and yet this car you're trailing has turned down this road, where there ain't no reason for any car to go unless he knows somebody down there.

"And the person such a bird as you describe would be looking for is this Jerry lad, who happens to be a ton of arsenic to me and Tony. He's been laying for us for months.

"And now you come along on the road we generally travel, and you want us to help you trail this car that's headed for Jerry's. I'm not saying you planted this, Babe, but it will take a bit of explaining. So get started. Shoot the works!"

Correct Manners

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

Write in English

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I have read that in business letters the use of expressions such as "instant" and "ultimo" should be avoided. A friend contends that such expressions are correct and may be abbreviated, thus: "11th inst." Please tell me if this is correct? I have been taught to avoid abbreviations in letter writing.

Business Girl

Don't "mix languages" in your business letters. Use the English equivalents of the Latin words. At the same time, avoid abbreviations.

Indicate the month with its right name. Instead of "inst." or "instant," use the name of the present month.

Instead of "ult." or "ultimo," use the name of the month preceding the present one. Instead of "prox." or "proximo," write the name of the month following the present one.

And instead of "per" use the English equivalent. Don't write "per yard" or "per annum." Say, instead, a "yard or a year."

Hints for the Household

So often someone in the home is employed where his or her hands require something a little stronger than ordinary soap to remove stains. The following is splendid and can be made readily at home. Cut into chips one pound castile soap and dissolve in one-fourth pint of hot water with one-fourth pound carbonate of potash. Boil until thick enough to pour into molds. Cool and then stir in one-fourth ounce each of alcohol, spirits of camphor, hartshorn and pulverized charcoal, beating well. Pour into molds to cool.

Walter Winchell ON BROADWAY

A Columnist's Sec'y Jots Down a Few Notes

Dear W. W.: Alfred E. Smith definitely turned down $5,000 a week for a radio broadcast (a cigar, I think) although they told him he could talk about anything he liked . . . I hear that technocracy will again hit the headlines soon—this time with a wallop . . . One of the funniest gags not pulled by the Marx Brothers—but on them (accidentally) was this: The four of them decided to buy a boxer and manage him . . . He was knocked out with a punch by his sparring partner!

Why not take along one of those gadgets—"3 minute sand glasses" which are swell for boiling eggs—but better for you to time 3 minute long distance phone flashes? . . . Leon Errol may like to know this about a former co-star, Joe Tenner. Tenner, whose 5 year rap in a Fed pen is almost up (said to be via the framed route), now faces deportation. He needs legal help . . . It might please her admirers in America to know that Edith Evans who was here recently in "Evensong," returned to Britain and in an interview (despite her two flops here) raved about Americans and New York.

Uncle Don, of the radio is entertaining those orphans from Passaic by showing them the town plus a trip to the Empire State Bldg and meeting Al Smith.

Princeton has given the faculty another nice slice in wages—but deep! . . . This, after Mr. Roosevelt urged everybody to lift salaries . . . Belle Livingstone is back in town pianissimo, at East 60th. Here's a panic . . . At a meeting of Para-Publix execs, receivers, bankers, et al, they were trying to decide what to do with the theaters, and one of the execs excused himself for a moment, and went out and brought back Gene Dennis, a mind-reader! To tell them just what to do! Seriously! Of all things!

"Charley O," which ran 3d in the Derby, really should have been the winner by all rules . . . If it weren't a Derby those two horses would have been disqualified. But "Broker's Tip" is a home town horse (bred in Kentucky): so how've y'been? . . . If they had disqualified those two steeds ahead of "Charley O" (for fouling) bets on them would have been lost—and that's no good for people who travel all the way down there to see the event—catch? . . . Lew Alter and Arthur Swanstrom have a new ditty that will click—a swingy melody and easy to remember wordage—which, incidentally, uses "sitchee-ay-shun"—like this: "There goes my last year's girl (with her cute little snoot held high) Oh, I envy the lucky guy—with my old girl! . . . She must have found a new love—to take the place of true love (the sitch-ee-ay-shun makes me mighty bloo—ooh!)" . . . Cute song. Oughta go big . . . Heard the melody twice and can't forget it! . . . Squawks because you're not using enough "torchy" verse. Oh, shucks! There goes another run in my $1.95's.

Jack O'Brien, who went to the South Pole with Byrd and whose story you used on the air (after he was found shivering and hungry on a park bench), is doing fine. He's done a book for children, too, called "Silver Chief," and it's about dogs . . . That "Lady Chatterly's Lover" movie was sent to Paramount from the old country merely to show them what the leading lady could do . . . They didn't like her well enough to import her to Hollywood . . . Did you know and would you care to learn that the applause for Lily Pons (after a Rigoletto aria) in the Met, makes more noise by 30 per cent than a trolley car in full motion? Big corporations like Gen'l Electric figure out little things like this in their spare time.

I like the expression "soandso and soandso are suffering from a high-blood pressure"—use it again . . . People are writing in and saying that it is swell what Babe Ruth is doing for the orphans who saved that train and passengers from sure death—but what is the Erie Railroad doing for the kids? . . . Inez Sebastian (Mrs. George Gerhard) has a new novel called "A Wife On Leave," which is stirring up Greenwich, Conn., because a society scandal of recent date very much resembles the story . . . Anna Chandler says what you counseled her 12 years ago to get herself a female pianist for her act—as she always fell in love with her piano players . . . Well, she called to say that she finally took your advice and Melisse Ballou has the job.

The Harold Meltzers will tell it to a judge . . . Helen Morgan opens at the Embassy next Thursday . . . Lyon Mearson claims the quip you credited to Shaw—viz.: "Youth is such a grand thing. It's a pity it is wasted on the young!" or something like that . . . Mearson says it comes from his book, "The French They Are a Funny Race" . . . A half dozen Shaw experts, however, say it is Shaw's . . . Now if Mearson can get the same number to back him up—we can have a draw . . . Nothing else much . . . Faithfully yours—until chickens stop going barefoot!

Plays and Players

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

Lenore Ulric, who will open a three-day engagement in the Nixon tonight in a new comedy by Wilson Collison, "Hard-Boiled Angel," was the leading star of the late David Belasco for several years. His attention was drawn to her by her portrayel of Luana in "Bird of Paradise." For him she appeared in "The Heart of Wetone," "Tiger Rose," "The Son-Daughter," "Kiki," "Lulu Belle" and "Mima." Minnesota is her native state, and she began her stage career in Milwaukee, nearest city to her home town, New Ulm, getting her initiation as a member of a stock company. Her most recent appearances in Pittsburgh were in "Pagan Lady" and "The Social Register," the latter by John Emerson and Anita Loos. "Hard-Boiled Angel" had its premiere last week in Albany, and it is said to be set for a tour to the Pacific coast and back before it goes to Broadway. Paul Kelly is the leading man in the new play, the performances of which will include a matinee Wednesday.

"Yoshe Kalb," Yiddish drama starring Maurice Schwartz, will be given in Syria Mosque for one night only, Thursday, May 18. The production is an elaborate one, requiring a company of more than 60 persons, in which the capable star plays a wicked aged rabbi whose desire for a fourth wife results in tragedy for the young woman and the rabbi's youthful son-in-law, whose attentions she prefers. This play, the outstanding dramatic production of the Yiddish stage of the current season, has attracted art-loving gentile patronage as well as Jews in other cities.

Following the Lenore Ulric engagement in the Nixon will be Walter Hampden, coming for two days only, Wednesday and Thursday, May 24 and 25. He will give "Caponsacchi" at the two evening performances and "Hamlet" as a Thursday matinee. This will be Mr. Hampden's second engagement here this season, the first, early last November, having been in "Cyrano de Bergerac." The three plays mentioned in this paragraph form the backbone of Mr. Hampden's repertoire and have been his greatest successes. "Caponsacchi," most recent addition to his group of plays, was presented here on its original tour. It is a dramatization of the story contained in Robert Browning's poem, "The Ring and the Book," and gives Mr. Hampden opportunity for a varied characterization.

Summer stock on a new plan is the idea of Pittsburgh's Professionals, an organization of Pittsburgh actors who have had professional experience. The group will present full-length plays (comedies, of course) at the Willows, where a stage is being fitted up, Monday and Thursday evenings in June, July and August, beginning about June 15. An attempt is being made to obtain "Another Language" for the opening. The company will include B. Blanche Levy, Pittsburgh lawyer, who appeared in New York a few seasons back in "Aphrodite," and has worked in stock; also Harold Daniels, who was a student at Tech and who has done photoplay and stock work in California, and Alexander Kann, who has been a member of the Fritz Leiber Company, a dancer in the old Roxy, New York, and a player in the dramatized radio broadcast, "The March of Time." Chester B. Story, professor of English at Schenley High School, will be another member of the company.

Cermak Life Picture 'Man Who Dared'

"The Man Who Dared" is the new title for the Fox production known previously as "The American," a story suggested by incidents in the life of the martyred Anton Cermak. This film, a Sol M. Wurtzel production, which was written by Lamar Trotti and Dudley Nichols, will feature Preston Foster, Zita Johann and Irene Biller. Hamilton MacFadden will direct.

Maurice Schwartz, distinguished actor of the Yiddish stage, will head his own company in "Yoshe Kalb," Thursday night only, in Syria Mosque.

Gary Cooper to Race Against Time

That Gary Cooper means business in his proposed attempt to lower the world's stock car speed record was indicated with the arrival in Hollywood of Eddie Miller, internationally known race driver and test engineer for the Duesenberg Corporation. Miller will make ready the car for Cooper's race against time, to be held May 21 at the Muroc Dry Lake in the Mojave Desert. In preliminary tests Cooper has reached 108 miles an hour in the canary colored Duesenberg with fenders, 115 miles an hour without. Voltee, Cord Company chief engineer and authority on streamlining, has been in Los Angeles for the past week with Cooper working on further body improvements which will effect maximum air resistance.

Douglas Fairbanks to Act But Little in Film He'll Do in China

By HARRISON CARROLL

(Copyright, 1933, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

HOLLYWOOD, May 15.—Revealing plans for his new picture, Douglas Fairbanks made one statement that is bound to create a sensation. He does not intend to appear in more than 25 per cent of the film. It is possible he will not appear at all.

Since, in past productions, the star has been on the screen almost every minute, the idea marks a radical departure in his scheme of picture making.

Doug's oriental story, known for the moment as "Eternal China," will have only one character that runs all the way through. This is the Philosopher Confucius, who acts as a sort of a chorus. Doug is to play Marco Polo, who appears only in the first or prologue section. The main story is a modern melodrama with a setting in Shanghai and The Forbidden City. Only Chinese actors are to play in this.

Mr. Fairbanks

The idea back of the picture is that China moves in an eternal cycle—thought, conquest, art, disintegration, chaos—then back to begin all over again.

Along with Confucius, an ancient Chinese plough moves through the film—a log with an iron spike in the end of it. Thousands of years ago, the Chinese tilled the soil with this kind of a plough. The same instrument, Doug says, is in use today.

When I talked to him, the star was in a high state of enthusiasm. If it continues, he may be off to China in July or August—the time of the year when the air over there is clearest for photography.

There is a strong possibility that the explorer, Roy Chapman Andrews, may accompany the expedition. * * *

Honolulu is not to see Constance Bennett after all. The star canceled her vacation trip to sit in on the finishing touches of her current picture and to make an early beginning on her new vehicle, "Doubtful Lady."

Miss Bennett

The loss of the trip is quite a disappointment to Connie, as she had planned for a long time to visit Hawaii. With La Bennett, however, work comes first. * * *

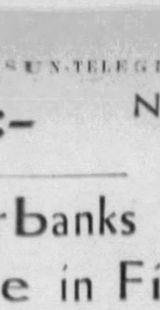
As one of Hollywood's most zealous snapshot fans, Ralph Morgan has made informal pictures of many fellow celebrities. The other day he was showing his album to Roland Young.

The comedian shook his head. He said:

"Ten years from now the women of Hollywood will murder you when they think about the hats they have on in these pictures."

* * *

Fifteen plainclothesmen were scattered through the audience when Sol Lesser and Upton Sinclair gave the first press showing of the S. M. Eisenstein film, "Thunder Over Mexico." The disputed work is photographed with surpassing beauty and is rich in moods. The action may be a bit too deliberate for wide appeal. Part of it is brutal, too. Several women left the theater when the three Mexican peons were buried to their shoulders and trampled by horsemen. If there were any hostile elements in the audience, they did not make their presence known. * * *



Mr. Eisenstein

Nils Asther will go to Sweden in June or July to bring his mother to this country. If work prevents, he will send for her . . . Now it's a grizzly bear that Clark Gable will go hunting for . . . And Richard Dix is refusing to allow his baby to be photographed. * * *

Did you know: That Jack La Rue used to be a piano tuner?

Spencer Tracy Cast As Racketeer

Spencer Tracy will once again play the virile type of role he has portrayed on stage and screen in "Shanghai Madness," the Frederick Hazlitt Brennan story which will be placed in production in the Fox Hollywood studio. Tracy plays the character of a bombastic, rough and at times chivalrous racketeer who becomes embroiled in a colorful romance against a background of the Yangtze. No actress has yet been chosen for the story which John Blystone will direct.

Richard Carle Cast For Two Films

Signing of Richard Carle for an important role in "The Morning Glory," the new Katherine Hepburn-Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., co-starring vehicle, puts him to work in two pictures at the same time. He is cast in support of Richard Dix in "Ad Man." Both pictures are now in production. As soon as Carle finishes his scenes in one, he rushes to his dressing room and changes his makeup for the other.

Cooper, Colbert Cast In 'Honor Bright'

Gary Cooper and Claudette Colbert will be co-starred by Paramount in an original story, "Honor Bright," by Jack Kirkland and Melville Baker, recently purchased by Paramount. It is the story of a shrewd confidence man, regenerated through love for his daughter.

Comedy

Sari Maritza will be seen in support of Roland Young and Alison Skipworth in "A Lady's Profession," comedy coming to Fulton screen Thursday.

Harry Green to Work For $1 a Week

Because Cecil B. DeMille wanted Harry Green for a part in Paramount's "This Day and Age," but couldn't meet the actor's salary demands and because Green in turn wanted a chance to play a tragic role on the screen, he agreed to work for nothing and signed a contract for a nominal salary of $1 a week. Green, known for his straight comedy interpretations, has long wanted a chance to demonstrate his ability in heavier roles, but would not lower his salary from the scale he had been receiving as a comedian.

Human 'Rabbit's Foot' Is Idea of Dix

Richard Dix has not carried a lucky rabbit's foot for years, but he makes one bow to superstition in every picture he appears in—he sees that Joe Hermano is in it, somewhere. Joe is Hollywood's deaf and dumb actor who has been in a great many Richard Dix pictures. Dix always says he puts him in them for good luck, but friends know better—he does it because he wants Joe to have the work. The latest casting of Dix's human "rabbit's foot" is for the part of a switchboard attendant in "Ad Man," tentative title, which J. Walter Ruben is directing at the RKO studios.

Ginger Rogers to Have Dramatic Role

Ginger Rogers' first dramatic role at the RKO Studios will be as the leading lady of Edgar Wallace's last great mystery story, "The Death Watch." She will finish playing a radio star in Maurine Watkins' satire of radio personalities, "Careless," just in time to step into the Wallace thriller. Marion Dix is writing the screen play from the original story and Irving Pichel is scheduled to direct.

Del Rio Is Escaping Native Dress

For the first time in her screen career Dolores Del Rio is planning a wardrobe of modern dresses which will be even more distinctive than those she wears when off the screen. "Evangeline," "Ramona," "Bird of Paradise" and all her other pictures called for native costumes and everything else but modern dresses, and Merian C. Cooper, executive producer at the RKO studios, feels the time has arrived when her brunette beauty should have a modern seting. Final selection of starring vehicle for Miss Del Rio has not been made but Cooper assures her that her wardrobe plans will not be made in vain.

Odds and Ends

THE VOYAGE was a rather long one and, on the third y out, some of the passengers asked me if I'd care to join m in a small poker game. I couldn't see much fun in the ing, but it did offer a way to pass a few hours. So I sat wn in a game where 5 cents was a huge bet. And if you sed the pot 5 cents, everybody dropped out.

Among the players was the captain of the boat. A Swede birth, he was an excellent commander and a fine seaman, a conversationalist and mixer, however, he was not so hot. s sense of humor was hardly what you might term excepnal and he seldom spoke unless he was called upon to do so. was seldom called upon.

The other players were not y different. This poker game s evidently a serious thing their lives, and they played though they were betting illions instead of pennies. I empted to tell a gag or two ile I was dealing, but I wasn't warded with a solitary snicker. a matter of fact, the only nment came from the cap-n.

After I had finished my sec-d gag, he looked over at me. "When we play cards," he d, "we play cards."

I said no more. Talk too ich to a guy like that and he's ble to put you in irons. Irony don't mind. But irons me no e.

After an hour or so had gone I was pretty well disgusted. ide from the usual "two pair, gs up" or "I'll take three," body said anything at all. d to make matters worse, the at was beginning to rock in e fashion. I was on the verge calling it quits, when someing amazing happened very ddenly. The captain smiled d told a joke!

Well, maybe you won't conder it a joke. But coming from at captain it sounded to me though it were a complete ree-act farce. The pot was ther large for that game, and e captain had the high hand. exposed his hand and nned happily.

"I got three queens," he asted in a strong Swedish dia-t that I cannot reproduce. There they are. Yessie, Bessie d Tessie."

That was his remark. I ughed heartily, and so did the st. The very fact that this ptain should have pet names r anything was funny enough. was that kind of guy.

With an opening like that, I unged right in and attempted prolong the conversation. nything for a chance to exerse my voice.

"Seems to me, Captain," I asted, "that we need another me. Yessie, Bessie and Tessie e good for the three queens, t suppose you had picked the urth, what would you call r?"

The captain shrugged his oulders. "I don't know," he turned. "vot you tink?"

I looked around.

"Well," I remarked, "you've t Yessie, Bessie and Tessie. e should have another name match. How about Jessie?"

To my amazement he glared me.

"You trying to be funny?" he owled. "Didn't I yust say essie?"...

INASMUCH as I'm speaking the trip again, I might give ou a continuation of a story printed here a few weeks ago.

The story as you will probably ot remember, concerned a riest who boarded our boat at hina and crossed the Pacific ith me.

The priest, a grand man if ver there was one, had been in he interior of China ever since e was seventeen years of age. He was now forty-eight, and as taking his first vacation. n other words he was returning o civilization after an absence f thirty-one years and what id the man want most of all? He told me that he longed for is vacation to end so that he could go back to the interior of China!

His name, I can tell you now, is Father Weyrat. He promised to call me when he reached New York, and dropped in to see me the other afternoon. I wanted to take him out with me in order to show him the town. But he assured me it would be quite impossible because he was leaving for Europe in two weeks.

"Two weeks!" I exclaimed. "Why, father, certainly that will give you plenty of time to go out with me. Name your own time."

He wouldn't name the time and he hasn't been out with me yet. And do you know why? It's because he has to make an automobile trip that will take him to Albany, Boston, Washington and several other cities. And it's for the same reason that the trolley conductor goes for a street car ride on his day off, or the sailor goes rowing in the park.

Father Weyrat, on his first vacation in 31 years, is visiting the families of the other priests in China to assure them that their boys are well! . . .

Song of Miriam	Rubenstein

The Young Men and Women's Hebrew Association presented its choral society in its closing concert last night. Despite the lateness of the season there was a fine audience and the chorus responded with its best music.

Mr. Lissfelt

Harvey Gaul directed and had arranged a smart program which moved along snappily without encores. The depleted ranks among the male section did not promise so well as the curtain rose, but the enthusiasm of the singing made up for numbers, and the director really accomplished many excellent effects that were absent at the previous concert.

Of unusual interest and effect were the "Three Pictures from the Tower of Babel" of Rubenstein, and Bloch's "Adonai" is certainly on a par with his other sincere music. This chorus and marvelous recitatives was as fine a contribution as we have ever heard from these singers. In the Hebrew songs we had lovely folk treasures and the Negro melodies as usual had good readings.

Dick Fulton, tenor, appeared as soloist singing two groups of rather popular music and gaining immediately the approval of the audience. He has a fine ringing voice and he adapted it well to the mood of the concert.

ONE GUILTY, SIX ACQUITTED IN RED RIOT

Sealed Verdict Opened In Heavily Guarded Courtroom

One man was found guilty of inciting to riot and not guilty of rioting, and six others were declared not guilty on both charges in a sealed verdict returned in a heavily guarded Criminal Court room here today.

The charges were in connection with alleged Communistic disturbances in front of the Courthouse several months ago in which mounted police battled with members of the crowd.

FOUND GUILTY

James Egan, 30, of 1043 Valonia street, was found guilty of inciting to riot.

Those acquitted were Joseph Egan, of 1043 Valonia street; Victor Alberine, of 1627 Alverado street; Robert Button, of 87 Flowers avenue; Bleddyn Thomas, of 520 Oakwood street, and George Simon and John Kallis, of the Helping Hand Society.

Judge I. L. Hildebrand of Lawrence County received the verdict and postponed sentence of Egan pending a motion for a new trial.

COURT CLEARED

The court room was cleared of spectators as the verdict was returned. Within the room were 35 county detectives and deputies while outside a squad of six city police guarded the doors. There was no demonstration, although about 50 friends of the accused were in the hallways.

The sealed verdict had been reached by the jury Friday night. Judge Hildebrand refused a request of the attorney for the defense to poll the jury.

SHOW NETS 50 BARRELS FOOD

More than 50 barrels of food were donated by the 5,000 persons who attended the benefit show for the poor of Sacred Heart parish at the Sheridan Square Theater yesterday.

At the morning services in Sacred Heart Church, the Rev. Father E. Lawrence O'Connell had made a plea for immediate "Mother's Day" relief and as a result many brought meat, butter, eggs, milk and bread to the theater instead of canned goods, and nearly all of this class of food was distributed before 6 o'clock last night. It was one of the most successful of the many Sunday food benefit shows of the year. Manager J. O. Hooley put on a splendid program.

Incidentally the Sun-Telegraph is the only daily newspaper that gave this affair advance announcements.

Father O'Connell said last night:

"If we have the Sun-Telegraph behind us for these benefit shows we do nit need any other newspaper."

Charles Malina, 25, of 2514 Smallman street, was in West Penn Hospital in serious condition today as result of taking poison, according to a police report. Police were unable to learn a motive.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

SANTA MONICA, Cal., May 15.
To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

I am hereby enterin this argument between young Rockefeller and the Mexican artist, for there is two things that a dub guy knows as much about as a smart one, and that's art and inflation. I string with Rockefeller. This guy was selling some art and sneaking in some propaganda.

Will Rogers

Rockefeller had to eat a plain ham sandwich, but the cook put some onions on it. Rockefeller says, "I will pay you for it, but I won't eat the onions." Now the above is said in no disparagement of the Mexican artist, for he is the best in the world, but you should never try to fool a Rockefeller in oils.

Yours,
WILL.

Evelyn Tells How Thaw, Clever and Persistent, Gained Reconciliation

SYNOPSIS

Having told of her love for Stanford White, her pursuit by Harry Thaw, and the latter's terrible jealousy of White, Evelyn Nesbit Thaw in today's chapter of her autobiography describes her reconciliation with the man she was to marry after she had returned from a European tour with Thaw, hating him and hoping never to see him again. Despite the gaiety of her life on Broadway, Evelyn found that defiance of convention leads only to agony, and this lesson she emphasises in her story.

By EVELYN NESBIT THAW
(Copyright.)

CHAPTER X.

My visit with Stanford White after my return from Europe stirred up memories — and trouble. The sentimental drama had come to an end—but things like that cast shadows before and after—and you can't—I couldn't at any rate—keep out of them.

We finally made an appointment to meet the next day—in the tower apartment, for lunch. It was nice, being there again.

In the interim, before Thaw arrived from Europe, and especially before he started his journey back, I went around a lot. I went places with Maizie Follette, May Mackenzie, Edna McClure—all old friends of my musical comedy days.

They were envious of my fine Paris dresses, furs and jewels. I was envious of their comparative freedom. I couldn't even deceive myself into believing I was free—for every day came a cablegram from Harry Thaw, every day came flowers he had ordered sent. Always something to remind me of the unpleasant fact that Harry Thaw was still thinking of me.

Vague shooting pains throughout my body now came to dampen my ambition to return to the stage. Something felt like a great weight inside me. Other girls were going into rehearsal for new shows. I had offers. I wanted to go. But always that vague internal ailment rose to halt my ambition.

White's Parties

More tower parties given by Stanford White. More dreamy music and flowers in that delightful place. Always laughter and gaiety — Stanford White parties of the first water.

Once or twice I stayed behind after the others had left to have long talks with Stanford—who by this time had really come to be fatherly toward me.

In one of these long talks I told him all about the Katzenstein affair—gave him all the details, including how Thaw came into my room that night like a wild man, and beat me unmercifully. I told him all I then knew about Thaw's bad habits.

This information seemed to tear Stanford's heart from his body. He sat on the side of the chaise longue, moaning and wringing his hands.

"Kittens," he said, "I'm not surprised to hear it, but it's awful! I tried to tell you, to warn you. But one thing is certain. You are just a kid. You have your whole life before you and you must be saved from any further contact with that lunatic.

"I think it would be a good idea for you to go to the Adirondacks, Saratoga or some place—and rest. Cut out all these parties and late hours. Then when you feel strong again you can come back to New York and the theater. Just forget everything and start all over again."

Instead of taking Stanford's advice, however, I did nothing.

My health grew worse. I grew thinner and weaker.

If I had had any sense at the time I would have gone straight to the mountains as White suggested. Then I would have got away from New York, Thaw and everything else. After all, I was still under 20.

Thaw's Return

Then suddenly Thaw returned from Paris.

I moved to another hotel. I stayed in my room as much as possible for fear of running into him. Stanford White told me to "stay out of the lunatic's way."

Then Stanford came to my hotel and told me he had made an appointment for me to see a lawyer the next day to tell of my experiences with Thaw. The lawyer—and I have never fully fathomed his "phenagling" to this day—was Abe Hummell, who later was disbarred. He was about as picturesque a lawyer, about as clever a shyster as New York ever had, I guess, but I instinctively disliked him. And

CRACKUP MAIL BROUGHT HERE

The engine of the ship, piloted by William Griffith, died 13 miles from Bedford at midnight Saturday. Griffith took to his parachute and landed on the Roger Hyde farm, where he spent the night.

The plane was found yesterday in the woods, a pile of wreckage. It had taken off from Washington for Pittsburgh and Cleveland.

MAN RESCUED AT BLAZE

Rockonell was badly burned and was taken to Pittsburgh Hospital where his condition was said to be serious.

Patrolman Henry Fornato discovered the sleeping man.

The buildings, unoccupied except for Rockonell, were damaged $1,000 according to firemen. The origin of the fire has not been determined.

FOREST ARMY RUM DENIED

WASHINGTON, May 15.—(INS.)—Stories of desertions and drunkenness in Camp Roosevelt, the government's reforestation project near Luray, Va., were denied today by Robert D. Fechner, director, who returned from the Virginia camp after checking stories of wholesale desertions and dissatisfaction.

Fechner said he found that eight of 210 men had deserted and that one had been arrested for drunkenness. Their names were dropped from the camp roll.

He declared the men as well fed and satisfied, under present circumstances.

SQUIRREL HILL HOUSE ROBBED

Jewelry and clothing, valued at $2,000, was stolen from the home of Harry Sable, 1544 Shady avenue, yesterday, according to a police report.

David Billingsley, of 2510 Market street, attendant of a garage at 3131 Forbes street, reported to police he was robbed of $7 by three white men. Billingsley said he was locked in the station's washroom.

LOCK HAVEN, Pa., May 15.—(INS.)—Dick Cooper, of Harrisburg, today nursed a bump on the chin—the only reminder of his flirtation with death at the airfield here.

While performing stunt parachute jumping, Cooper's chute was ripped to shreds by a high wind. After some difficulty in opening his emergency silk pack, Cooper floated safely to earth, uninjured save for the bruise he suffered when one of the ropes hit his chin.

'Cupid' Sees Big Increase in Marriages

Add Lee McGahey, 60, known to police as "Cupid," to the prosperity forecasters.

McGahey, who guides couples obtaining marriage licenses to someone who will perform the ceremony, was before Magistrate Leo Rothenberg today, charged with drunkenness. He was discharged after he told Rothenberg:

"The marriage business has been falling off lately but with June and Roosevelt's new deal we expect a big increase soon."

Job Seekers Want Farley to Doff Those Ear Muffs

—By ARTHUR (BUGS) BAER—

Wailing community chorus and gnashing of partisan teeth indicates that Postmaster Jim ain't handing out that patronage on schedule.

What about the old time spangled battle cry of the republic? Don't the spoils belong to the victors? Can it be possible that Stampmaster James is going to change all this?

Have we reached that Utopia in which there is no patronage and a man won't lose his job because he marched in the wrong parade?

No jobs have been dished out yet. We suspect the postponed patronage has something to do with the fast work of this year's Continental Congress.

We have no proof to link this theory. But the situation is so plainly buttoned down the front we don't have to hook it up the back.

RIVER GIVES UP LOST ACE'S KIN

ROCHESTER, N. Y., May 15.—(AP.)—The body of Richard S. Redfern, 59-year-old Rochester realtor and uncle of Paul Redfern, youthful aviator who was lost during a Georgia to Brazil non-stop flight in 1927, was recovered from the Genesee River today.

His body had been sought since April 24, when a man answering his description plunged from Veterans' Memorial Bridge.

Mrs. Gertrude Redfern, Fairfax apartments, Oakland, wife of the missing aviator, attributed the suicide of her husband's uncle to los of money incurred in financing a search for the flier. Mrs. Redfern is employed by the National Supply Company.

MAN ENDS LIFE BEFORE GLASS

Standing in front of a mirror in his home, Robert Anderson, 66, of 244 South St. Clair street, East End, fatally shot himself at 3 a. m. today, according to Coroner's deputies.

He had been ill for more than a year and had recently suffered from a nervous breakdown.

His wife was in the kitchen when she heard the shot and ran to Anderson's bedroom. His body lay on the floor in front of the bureau.

The wife and two daughters, Pauline and Margaret, had remained at his bedside last night and early this morning, during which time, they told deputy coroners, he had repeeatedly threatened to take his life. They left him after he had apparently fallen asleep.

POLICE BULLETS THREATEN BOY HALTING MAN

North Side Fugitive Held Until Pursuing Sleuths Arrive

Heedless of a policeman's threat to shoot, Frank Huber, 18, made a flying tackle at a robber suspect as he fled in the park near Cedar avenue early today after robbing a man and woman in a parked automobile.

Grappling with the suspect, Huber held him until the arrival of Patrolmen Joseph Kronz and Earl Wright, who had taken up the chase as the man made a dash for liberty. Kronz fired one shot during the short chase.

The suspect, Joseph Light, alias Lipke, alias Joseph Sibbett, 30, no home, was arrested on a suspicous person charge. He was held over in North Side Police Court.

His victims were Mr. and Mrs. Edward McLuckie, of 3826 Brighton road.

Mrs. McLuckie told police the man stepped to the running board of their automobile as her husband started to drive away. As the suspect pressed a gun to her head and grabbed her pocketbook, she screamed, she said.

Alighting the officers gave chase on foot.

As the suspect fled through the park, he dropped the pocketbook and his gun. Both were recovered later, police said.

After Patrolman Kronz had fired one shot at the fleeing man, he threatened to fire again when Huber made his flying tackle.

SCHOOL BOARD BANS PUBLIC

Because of previous heckling of board members, the West View School Board will exclude the public at its meeting tomorrow night to fix the budget for next year's school term, Dr. A. E. Torrens, board president, said today.

Asked if the board intended to admit taxpayers, as requested by a citizens' committee headed by Albert F. Rightor, Dr. Torrens said:

"Common sense would tell you that we're not going to transact business with a lot of people present to heckle us. We don't propose having people coming in while we're discussing the budget."

At a recent meeting board members were heckled until it became necessary to go into a closed session in order to conduct the school business, he declared.

BOY, 9, AIDS FATHER AS PRINTER

Hill District Youth Sets Type, Runs Shop Presses

The distinction of being one of the city's youngest printers is held by Julius Gyongyosy, 9, who assists his father, Stephen, in their printing shop at 53 Fernando street.

Julius sets type both in English and Hungarian, runs the press and does other tasks around the shop. The boy has been helping for two years, according to the elder Gyongyosy, who declared:

"Julius was so small when he started that he bobbed up and down when he ran the press, but he has grown and is now quite capable."

Young Gyongyosy is also the "handy man" around the house and has shown a marked talent in electrical work. He plays the piano, too. But with all his activities, school work is not forgotten, for he ranks near the top of his class. He is a third grade student at Franklin School.

Baby Found in Car Still Unidentified

WAYNESBURG, Pa., May 15.—A 16-day-old baby girl, found in its small bathtub in the car of Fred Yoders, was still unidentified today.

A note accompanying the child said it was American born and expressed the hope that a good home would be found for it.

Kurtz's Son Elopes; Society Wedding Off

WASHINGTON, May 15.—(AP.)—An unpretentious wedding Saturday in Rockville, Md., has canceled plans for an elaborate church ceremony here and numerous parties to honor the bride.

The principals were Ethel May Taylor and Jay Banks Kurtz, son of Representative J. Banks Kurtz, of Altoona, Pa. The wedding was announced by Mr. and Mrs. Arthur C. McUlroy, the latter of whom is Miss Taylor's mother.

After their marriage by a Methodist minister, they left for Evanston, Ill., where Kurtz is a student at Northwestern University.

Kurtz came to Washington to complete plans for the wedding, set for June 5 in St. Albans Church.

A reception was planned in the McUlroy home after the ceremony. The attendants had been selected and many parties had been planned for the bride.

Jane Tewksbury, who was to have been a bridesmaid, accompanied the couple to Rockville.

PITTSBURGH WOMAN'S FATHER, AUNT BELIEVED MURDERED

BODIES FOUND IN RUINS OF BLAZE

INDIANA, Pa., May 15.—(AP.)—An automobile seen speeding from the burning farmhouse where the bodies of James N. Allison, 74, and his sister, Belle, 76, were found, is the focal point in police investigation of the supposed slaying.

Miners who discovered the fire while returning from work told police a small machine was seen to leave the vicinity of the Allison home just as the sky was reddening with flames.

BODIES FOUND

The miners aroused neighbors and attempted to extinguish the fire, without success. The bodies of Allison and his sister were found at noon Sunday in the ruins of a first-floor room.

DAUGHTER HERE

Sheriff A. Eugene Wilson said neighbors report that the fire started in the rear of the house and the aged couple would have had ample time to escape had they been alive. He said there was evidence they had been slain and the home burned to conceal the crime.

Coroner Frederick W. St. Clair said the victims might have died from bullet wounds in the head or from a beating.

Mrs. W. M. Neel, of 2827 Voelkel avenue, Dormont, daughter of James H. Allison, found slain with his sister in their burned home near Indiana, left yesterday for the scene of the tragedy.

EPISCOPALIAN AIRS MARRIAGE HANDICAPS

ROCHESTER, N. Y., May 15.—(AP.)—Not only the spiritual, but the physical, emotional, social and economic aspects of marriage need to be included in the pre-marital instruction which Episcopal clergymen are obliged to give, a national officer of the Protestant Episcopal Church told a social service conference today.

The Rev. C. Rankin Barnes, executive secretary of the social service department of the denomination's national council, said that rectors, in advising couples about to be married, might well go into such subjects as the relative ages of the two parties, their mental attainments, how to spend the honeymoon and the relative merits of buying or renting a home. Discussing the emotional factors, he said:

"Childishness disturbs married life more than does childlessness.

"It is well to raise the question as to whether the applicants for marriage have a mental maturity sufficient to promise a successful marriage."

Concerning the economic aspect, he said:

"There should be a stern facing of the danger that exists if either party is burdened with debts or other financial obligations which would inevitably hamper the meeting of their obligations."

Age differences may or may not need discussion, Mr. Barnes said. If the bridegroom is older than the bride by 10 years or more, he said:

"It is only just that both bride and bridegroom should appreciate the fact that statistics have shown that a large age spread is not favorable to successful marriage.

"If, however, a bridegroom much older than the bride realizes his responsibility to keep young with his wife, the chances of success are far greater than if he were ignorant of the risk involved."

Recommending a frank discussion of sex, he suggested:

"The priest might well begin by giving practical counsel in regard to the type of honeymoon which the couple are to enjoy.

"It should be made clear to them that the honeymoon which is marked by much traveling and a constant round of activities is not conducive to a sympathetic beginning of the mating process.

"Such counsel is particularly sound when an elaborate wedding is involved preceded by a constant round of entertainment."

As to the spiritual factors, he said:

"The clergyman can show that the give and take which characterizes a successful marriage is not just a mathematical thing but the natural outgrowth of a spiritual union. Here the priest has an opportunity of opening up, with his young couple, their whole philosophy of life."

'CURE' DOCTORS FACING BAN

BALTIMORE, May 15.—(INS.)—Action against two Maryland physicians on charges of attempting a cancer cure upon Mrs. Cora Britton, wife of a May's Landing (N. J.) physician, was under consideration today by the Maryland State Board of Medical Examiners.

Mrs. Britton died in South Baltimore Hospital after receiving treatment from Drs. H. R. Street and Sherwood Ferris, who operated a cancer hospital near Washington. Mrs. Britton died, after which the two physicians were released under $1,500 bail each after a Baltimore Coroner's jury declared them guilty of "criminal conduct, gross malpractice and brutal treatment."

Zbyszko Kin Drops Alienation Case

NEW YORK, May 15.—(Universal.)—Wladek Zbyszko Cyganiewicz, wrestler, and brother of Stanislaus Zbyszko, also a wrestler, has withdrawn a $50,000 alienation of affections suit against his mother-in-law, Mrs. Blanche Stark.

The wrestler's move followed completion of testimony in the divorce suit of Mrs. Zbyszko, who was known on the stage as Vera Milli.

Rock-a-Bye Baby Wins Approval Of Science

BALTIMORE, May 15.—(AP.)—Harassed parents, torn between a desire to rear their infant along scientific lines and an urge to keep the child contented, may welcome this.

Dr. W. C. Beasley, professor of psychology at the Johns Hopkins University, today placed his stamp of approval on one thing mothers have been doing for centuries — rocking their children.

Dr. Beasley even went further. He said that age-old habit fathers have of swinging their babies high in the air does no harm—provided, of course, the baby is not dropped.

Cooper Urges Reform In School System

WASHINGTON, May 15.—(Universal.)—A challenge to the nation to reform the American school system to guarantee an education to every child today had come from William John Cooper, United States commissioner of education.

The entire system is threatened with a breakdown, he warned, pointing to the alarming situation in numerous sections of the country where teachers have gone unpaid and schools have been closed.

GORILLA BRAIN RIVALS HUMANS

WASHINGTON, May 15.—(AP.)—Discovery in a gorilla of a brain of higher type than ever before found in an animal—nearer the human brain weight than any similar ape's brain on record—was announced yesterday by the Smithsonian Institution.

It sheds new light on the evolution of the animal brain upward toward the human level, though giving no direct evidence of relationship of men and monkeys. The brain belonged to Okero, little 3-year-old baby gorilla that died several months ago at the National Zoo here. It was studied by Dr. C. J. Connolly, of Catholic University of America.

Dr. Connolly found besides being unusually heavy for a baby gorilla's brain, Okero's thinking apparatus was especially rich in convolutions or "wrinkles" in the upper part of the brain which is the center that in humans controls speech, thought and bodily movements.

NEW BANKRUPT BILL PLANNED

By WILLIAM S. NEAL
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, May 15.—A new corporation bankruptcy reform bill, which may include unprecedented authority for partial bankruptcy by municipalities, will be framed this week for presentation to the House, members of the House Judiciary Committee observed today.

The corporation bankruptcy measure is designed to pave the way for an agreement on debts by corporations and creditors, so that thousands of firms which have suffered because of business conditions can weather the storm.

The committee planned to consider the bill of Representative Wilcox (Dem.), of Florida, allowing all public bodies to take advantage of the bankruptcy reform plan, as a part of the corporation measure.

Under this bill three-fourths of the creditors could bind all of them to scale down the amount and interest on bonds issued by cities and other bodies during prosperous times.

TROTZKY FIRM AGAINST STALIN

ISTANBUL, Turkey, May 15.—(AP.)—Leon Trotzky, exiled Bolshevist leader, is willing to serve Soviet Russia in any capacity, but he is unwilling to recant.

At his place of exile on Prinkipo Island, Trotzky made this statement today in commenting on a Paris report that his agents were negotiating with Moscow for his return to Russia. (Russian official circles in Moscow characterized the report as nonsense.)

Trotzky said:

"The report is, I suppose, an echo of my letter of March 15 to the Communist party's political bureau at Moscow."

BLAME ARREST ON MISTAKE

Two men from Ohio today blamed a downtown hotel doorman's mistake for their being held over on a suspicious person charge by Magistrate Leo Rothenberg. Harry Marcus, 30, of Cleveland, and Richard Evans, 28, of Toledo, were arrested last week when two loaded revolvers and two suitcases were found in their car.

Fields Dodge, a salesman, stopping at the same hotel, today said the suitcases had been taken from his automobile after the door handle had been broken off. But Evans and Marcus said they didn't know how they happened to be in their machine, unless the doorman became confused.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resent a substitute. 25c at all stores. © 1931 C. M. Co.

Supreme Director Daniel A. Tobin of New York state will deliver the principal address at the convention banquet tonight.

Committees will be appointed and reports presented at the opening business sessions today. Election of officers is the last order of business tomorrow afternoon. A grand ball tomorrow night will close the sessions.

SAVE 3 POISED FOR DEATH LEAP

CHICAGO, May 15.—(AP.)—Two brothers, 11 and 3, probably owed their lives today to the threats of two special policemen to shoot their father.

The threats were shouted yesterday by Lieut. Emil Johnson and Albert Becker at Melvin McPhail, 53, as he stood poised at the end of a long pier of the Illinois Steel Company. James, the 11-year-old son, was perched atop his father's shoulders while the man had the other child, Melvin, tucked under his right arm.

With drawn pistols the officers, employes of the steel company, commanded McPhail to drop the boys. He did. Then they took him to a police station where he told a story of intending to drown the boys and himself in Lake Michigan because of despondency over loss of his job as a street car conductor.

McPhail said he had six other children. James and Melvin were taken home.

Contract Bridge -:- HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

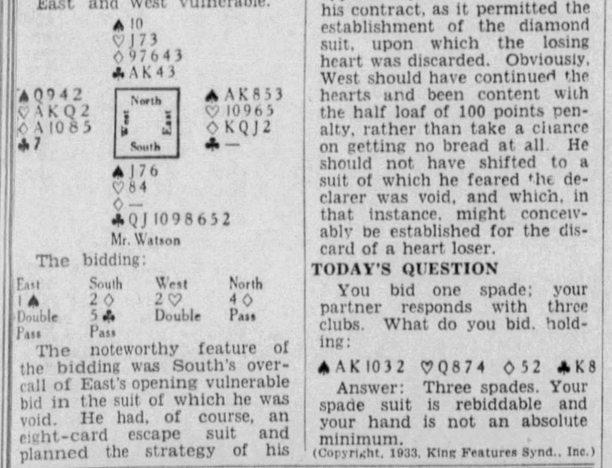
By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

Psychic Reputation

Sometimes a reputation as a psychic bidder is a disadvantage to a player, and at other times the opponents are so bewildered by the misinformation given in the bidding that the inferences they draw redound to the advantage of the one who departs from conventional lines.

Mr. O. P. Watson, of Toronto, has a well-deserved, or, rather, hardly earned, reputation as a maker of psychic bids of one kind and another. Recently, while he was playing a rubber of Bridge in a Toronto club against some of the strongest players in Canada, the hand below was dealt:

East, Dealer.
East and West vulnerable.



Mr. Watson

The bidding:

East	South	West	North
1 ♠	2 ◇	2 ♡	4 ◇
Double	5 ♣	Double	Pass
Pass	Pass

The noteworthy feature of the bidding was South's overcall of East's opening vulnerable bid in the suit of which he was void. He had, of course, an eight-card escape suit and planned the strategy of his overcall with considerable skill, he and his partner so vividly making weakness appear as strength that they were able to play a hand, in which their opponents could have made a Grand Slam, at a contract of five clubs and, miraculously enough, make it.

West's opening lead was a spade which was won by East. Inasmuch as Dummy was void of spades, East returned a heart, which was won by West, who, turning to South, remarked, "I don't believe you have a single diamond," and laid down the Ace.

His conclusion as to Mr. Watson's diamond holding was correct, and the play afforded an opportunity for South to make his contract, as it permitted the establishment of the diamond suit, upon which the losing heart was discarded. Obviously, West should have continued the hearts and been content with the half loaf of 100 points penalty, rather than take a chance on getting no bread at all. He should not have shifted to a suit of which he feared the declarer was void, and which, in that instance, might conceivably be established for the discard of a heart loser.

TODAY'S QUESTION

You bid one spade; your partner responds with three clubs. What do you bid, holding:

♠ A K 10 3 2 ♡ Q 8 7 4 ◇ 5 2 ♣ K 8

Answer: Three spades. Your spade suit is rebiddable and your hand is not an absolute minimum.

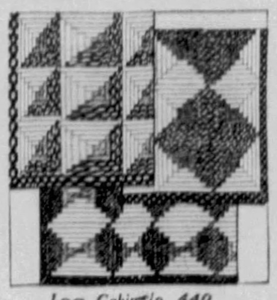
PATCHWORK QUILT PATTERN



Log Cabin—No. 440.

By LAURA WHEELER

The patchwork quilt is not alone a distinctly American product, but in it the early history of our country has been recorded. Log Cabin—Lincoln—Pioneer Days—a hardy people fighting against great odds to settle a continent, and carrying with them the culture and the art of home-making, that they had known in their homes in the East or in far-off Europe. That is what the name of the Log Cabin pattern calls to mind. As a piece of needlework, it is one of the most popular of the quilt patterns, its patches or "logs" being easily formed into a block. Possibly its popularity is also due to the fact that it can be made of scraps of material without losing any of its beauty. The blocks lend themselves to a variety of most effective arrangements, of which three alternatives are suggested, as illustrated.

The pattern comes to you with complete simple instructions for cutting, sewing and finishing, together with yardage chart, diagram of quilt to help arrange the blocks for single and double bed size, and a diagram of block which serves as a guide for placing the patches and suggests contrasting materials.

TWO CARS

AND THE STORY OF TWO MEN WHO BOUGHT THEM!

STANDARD 4-DOOR SEDAN, $510 F. O. B.

H. CURTIS ELLIOTT, 11 LOCUST AVE., NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y.

CURTIS ELLIOTT had been looking at cars for months . . . had actually driven all three low-priced cars.

He's sales manager of an oil burner company . . . and has to drive about 75 miles a day.

"Economy is important," said Elliott. "I couldn't afford to spend a lot of money.

"Then along came the new Standard Plymouth Six. A 4-door Six-Cylinder Sedan for $510. That clicked with my pocketbook. Today I'm driving the first Standard Plymouth delivered in Westchester County."

Thanks, Mr. Elliott. We appreciate your statement . . . and permission to print it.

We think there are a lot of people like yourself who are looking for just this kind of a car.

The Standard has all the features that made Plymouth famous. It's a 70 horsepowered six on a 108-inch wheelbase. With Floating Power engine mountings . . . hydraulic brakes . . . safety-steel bodies . . . Rigid-X, double-drop frame. A substantial car. It's a big, beautiful automobile . . . with plenty of room for a full-sized family of five. It's good-looking, too, with a smart new radiator and handsome interior.

And what a big thrill these new Standard Plymouth Six prices are! People used to think that Plymouth was just a little higher than the very lowest-priced cars. But that isn't true any longer.

Today . . . Plymouth prices are as low as the lowest . . . and the 4-door sedan is the lowest-priced 6-cylinder 4-door sedan on the market. A six at the price of a four!

Go look at Plymouth today. Ride in it. And see how Plymouth has again set a new pace in giving the public more for their money.

W. W. MAJOR, 2281 W. GRAND AVE., DETROIT, MICHIGAN

IN DETROIT people know automobiles! Everybody there has the latest facts about cars . . . even before they happen.

Mr. Major heard that Plymouth was going to bring out a new long wheelbase car . . . and that sounded like just what he wanted.

"I'd been driving one of the other low-priced cars," said Mr. Major. "But there's so much Plymouth talk . . . I decided to look at the new De Luxe before buying.

"And when Mrs. Major saw that car . . . it was all over but signing the order. The De Luxe Plymouth was bigger and smarter-looking . . . and that's why we bought it."

And we're glad to publish it. For we think it will probably make a lot of people who want a smart low-priced car go see the new De Luxe Plymouth.

The De Luxe is longer . . . 112-inch wheelbase. With Floating Power engine mountings . . . Free Wheeling . . . all-silent transmission . . . Duplate Safety Plate Glass windshield . . . automatic clutch at slight extra cost.

But the real story starts with style and beauty. You'll like the new smart radiator . . . with its gleaming chromium grille . . . the beautifully styled interior . . . with its deep wide seats . . . handsome paneling . . . even a glove box in the dash to please the ladies.

Everything you could ask for in a car is in the De Luxe Plymouth. There's speed, there's comfort, there's safety, there are thrills.

Isn't it smart to see the De Luxe Plymouth before you buy any car? It's the world's biggest low-priced six today . . . in inches and in value. Don't miss looking into it.

DE LUXE PLYMOUTH SIX

GIBSON OPTIMISTIC DESPITE SLUMP

NEW SPURT LIKELY DURING HOME STAY

THOUGH THE PIRATES came a cropper at the tail end of their Eastern trip, to drop three games in succession for the first time and to be forced to share first place with the Giants for the time being, local fans had every reason to feel satisfied with results up to date when George Gibson brought his ballers back to Pittsburgh today. The Bucs got an even break in the 10 games played in the East, and won six out of 11 for the trip as a whole, counting the starting victory in Cincinnati.

George Gibson

The consoling side of the defeats in New York is that only one of them was due to ineffective pitching. French should have had a shutout Saturday, and Hoyt pitched well enough yesterday to have won in a majority of cases. If the pitching stays that way, you won't have to worry about the Pirates. They won't have many off days in fielding like the last two. The club must be given credit for having done remarkably well in winning 15 out of 23 games while playing 18 of these contests away from home. Nobody dared hope for any such showing. A new spurt ought to develop now, with 18 of the next 20 games to be played at Forbes Field.

THERE IS NO stronger believer in player trading than Clark Griffith, Washington owner. He thinks it strengthens teams and maintains interest in baseball.

As Griffith explains it, trading is a science, and it takes a long time to make a good swap. You start with some absurd offer that is turned down, he says, just as you expected it to be turned down. Then you make another offer. And another. Finally your deal will involve the player you wanted in the first place.

GRIFFITH VIEWS THE trade in which he got Shortstop Roger Peckinpaugh between the seasons of 1921 and 1922 as the best he ever made. It was a complicated deal in which three clubs figured, the Senators giving Outfielder Bing Miller and Pitcher Joe Acosta to the A's and Infielder Frank O'Rourke to the Red Sox.

Then the A's turned Third Baseman Joe Dugan over to the Red Sox, and the latter transferred Peckinpaugh to Washington. Griffith says he had to pay $50,000 in cash besides, but adds that Peck was well worth the price, as he won two pennants for the Senators.

THE PITCHING FAME of a Pirate star of yesteryear may be revived in the majors one day by his offspring. A son of Howard Camnitz is causing quite a stir as a college hurler, and good judges estimate that Cammy has a fair chance to become a prouder dad than Ed Walsh, Jimmy Ring, Ray Caldwell, Elmer Jacobs, Glenn Leibhardt, Red Ames and other former flingers in the big show whose mound ability has been reflected more or less in a second generation. The younger Camnitz, a right-hander, like his sire, is pitching for the Boiling Springs (N. C.) Junior College team and making an impressive record. Recently he held Presbyterian Junior College to six hits and struck out 12 men. In all of his other games his pitching has been of a high order, suggesting that he has inherited some of the ability of his father and has a brilliant future that may lead to the majors if he decides to take up baseball as a profession.

Howard Camnitz

OLD HOWARD IN his day set a high mark for his son to shoot at in the years to come. Pittsburgh bought him from Vicksburg in 1904, farmed him to Springfield, Ill., that year and to Toledo in 1905, and then he came back to win a place among the stars of the National League. Cammy's best season was 1909, when he contributed 25 victories to the Pirates' pennant success against only six defeats for a percentage of .806, tying with Christy Mathewson for the leadership of the league. Jack Murray's famous bare-hand catch in a thunderstorm on August 16 of that year at Forbes Field cost the Buccaneer pitcher the slab championship, as it caused the game to end in a tie and saved Matty from a defeat that would have made the Giant star's record for the season 25 and 7.

AN ATTACK OF throat trouble kept Camnitz from being at his best for the 1909 world series and threw the bulk of the pitching burden on Babe Adams. Cammy started the second game and pitched part of the sixth, but lacked his usual form. He remained in the service of the Bucs until 1913, when he was traded with Bobby Byrne to the Phillies for Cozy Dolan.

Pitching ran in the Camnitz family even then. Howard's brother, Harry, also a right-hander, was tried by the Pirates in 1909. Farmed to Senator-County Commissioner W. D. Mansfield's McKeesport club, he led the O. & P. League pitchers in victories with 27, against 9 defeats, but was beaten out in percentage by 10 points by Osborne, of East Liverpool, who won 19 and lost 6. Recalled by the Bucs, however, Harry failed to show big league stuff and was dropped.

LECTURES ON GOLF are a rarity in this vicinity. Students of the game are gaining in knowledge of the rudiments of the intricate pastime from Pete O'Hara, famous pro of the Westmoreland Country Club, in a series of exhibitions being given on Monday nights for five weeks at the Guyasuta Golf Club in Aspinwall. The eagerness of golf devotees to learn fundamentals is shown by the many questions propounded to the popular pro. O'Hara, known as "Sure Shot" in the realm of stars, started Miss Maureen Orcutt on her climb to national fame. He holds several victories over high lights, notable one over Walter Hagen two years ago.

AFTER THE MANNER in which Head Play, with a capable jockey on his back, ran off with the Preakness, racing fans are convinced not only the best horse won on this occasion, but that the nephew of Man o' War also was the best horse in the Kentucky Derby. It was Broker's Tip jockey, not Broker's Tip himself, that won the Derby, by taking advantage of the faulty riding of Herb Fisher.

A horse once unwanted thus becomes the outstanding 3-year-old of 1933. When Willie Crump bought Head Play two years ago for only $550, he expected to sell him to J. W. Parrish, for whom he was training, but Parrish refused to take him. Crump had to keep the horse, and on the eve of the Derby he sold Head Play for $50,000 because it was raining and he could see no chance for his entry on a soft track. In eight days Mrs. Silas B. Mason got back her $30,000 and she still has the horse, now one of the most valuable in the country. It's an uncertain game.

THAT TINY THORNHILL, all-time Pitt tackle, is going to equal Pop Warner, whom he has succeeded as football coach at Stanford, is the prediction made by Dink Templeton, noted track mentor at the same school. After watching the varsity squad in spring practice, Templeton laughs at the reports that good material is lacking.

Tiny Thornhill

The players coming up from the freshman team of 1932 are said to be young giants, with plenty of football stuff. They beat the Southern California frosh last fall and are bent on doing the same to the Trojan varsity next season.

WHAT TEMPLETON VIEWS as an improved system and an encouraging sign is that in the spring scrimmages under Thornhill, the Stanford teams play for touchdowns, something that Warner never permitted. In fact, Pop quarterbacked both elevens in the practice sessions. Dink sees Thornhill making a great name for himself as a coach, now that he has a chance to get due credit for his work. "Get this straight now," says Templeton. "This guy Thornhill is a great coach. He proved it many years ago when he made Centre College the talk of the nation, even though Charley Moran got the credit for it. Tiny was the real head coach of that team. He has been submerged under the line-coach title ever since, but from the start of next season the football world is going to find that he is a head coach in capital letters."

TERRYMEN TIE BUCS; TRIBE OUSTS YANKS

Associated Press.

One month of campaigning in the major leagues has produced opposition from unexpected sources for the teams selected to head the pennant races. The favorites were the New York Yankees and Pittsburgh Pirates, but the New York Giants are tied with Pittsburgh for the National League lead and the Cleveland Indians are out in front of the Yanks.

The Giants, doped as a second division club, smashed their way into a tie with Pittsburgh in an impressive fashion just about the time the boys were ready to decide the Bucs might make a runaway race of it. After losing the first game of the series to the Pirates, they won three in a row, winding up yesterday with a smart 5-to-1 triumph.

PARMELEE BEATS BUCS

Bud Parmelee, freshman right-hander, let Pittsburgh down with six hits in a duel with Waite Hoyt that finally was decided in the eighth inning when a costly error by Fred Lindstrom let three runs score.

Cleveland gained a lead of a full game by beating the Philadelphia Athletics twice while the world champions were splitting a bargain bill with the seventh-place St. Louis Browns. Oral Hildebrand allowed the A's only four hits to win the first game, 3-0, ringing up his fifth victory and his third shutout. Clint Brown gave only six to gain a 5-3 decision.

Another "dark horse" of a very somber hue, the Cincinnati Reds, climbed into third place in the National with a double victory over the Chicago Cubs, 5 to 3 and 1 to 0. Exercising their famous jinx over the Cubs to its utmost, they made nine hits good for the six runs behind the brilliant hurling of Red Lucas and Si Johnson.

The St. Louis Cardinals, who could get no better than an even break with Boston, slipped a few points into fourth. They won the opener, 4-0, on Tex Carleton's four-hit flinging, but lost the second games, 8-4, when the Braves blasted Dizzy Dean from the hill with seven runs in the fourth.

HACK'S HIT WINS

Brooklyn won the other National League contest in surprising style, turning back the Phillies, 8 to 6, when Hack Wilson hit a pinch homer with the bases full in the ninth inning.

An ex-Yankee cost the New York club its chance to hold the American League lead. Satchel-foot Ed Wells subdued his old mates to win the first game for St. Louis, 5-1. The champions

EXPLANATION OF RIPLEY'S CARTOON OF LAST SATURDAY: THE GREAT EASTERN—This sidewheeler, built in 1858 (75 years ago) and launched in 1859, could accommodate 4,000 passengers, 80 first, 2,000 second, 1,200 third class. This is about 40 per cent more than the modern Berengaria. The old sidewheeler was 695 feet long and 83 feet broad, with a registry of 18,915 tons. It cost $82,500, and was disposed of for $3,660 in 1887. Contemporary literature contains the quaint assertion that the "Great Eastern" was 5,000 tons heavier than Noah's Ark.

TOMORROW: A THREE-CENTURY PIKE

NEW WONDERS FOUND BY RIP

Robert L. Ripley, cartoonist, who won fame with his "Believe It or Not" drawings, is touring South America by airplane in search of new material. What he sees and hears and learns he is cabling daily to the United States.

By ROBERT L. RIPLEY

BAHIA, Brazil, May 15.—We left Rio de Janeiro at dawn as the golden sun lighted up Sugar Loaf Mountain and tinted the huge statue of Christ, almost as large as the Statue of Liberty, which stands on the summit of Tijuca.

Soon dawn was blotted out by rain, which hung like a white curtain before the port of Victoria, in Espirito, which means the Holy Ghost.

The pilot tried four times to clear the mountains, but was driven out to sea each time. The fifth attempt spelled "Victoria."

All day long we flew over the land which Magellan called the strangest he had ever seen on his trip around the world.

He reported that here lived giants 15 feet high, with legs like birds, and heads set backwards on their shoulders.

Finally we landed in Bahia, a city which has 365,000 people and 365 churches, a church for every day in the year. Bahia is the home of oranges and pickaninnies.

The California naval orange was developed here and was taken to Riverside, Cal., by a Mrs. Snyder. Most of the slaves brought into the United States came from this port, which was the world's largest slave market.

Saturday was Emancipation Day in Brazil. Exactly 45 years ago all slaves were freed. Now more than half the population of Brazil consists of descendants of black slaves, and their love of personal liberty is so strong that a census never has been taken.

The census takers dared not ask personal questions, so they merely counted the houses and assumed that 10 people lived in each house.

MECHANIC WINS HUDSON RACE

NEW YORK, May 15.—(AP.)—Wild Bill Feldhusen, a 35-year-old automobile mechanic, conquered the stubborn waves of the mighty Hudson to win the sixth annual Albany-to-New York outboard motorboat race, a 132-mile dash down the river, yesterday.

Roaring across the finish line 3 hours, 15 minutes and 22 seconds after he left the state capital early in the morning, Feldhusen drove his Miss Staten Island, a class C boat with a handicap of slightly more than 21 minutes, past the judges with 100 yards to spare over J. C. (Cab) Walier, of Syracuse, N. Y.

Jack Maypole, 16-year-old River Forest, (Ill.) schoolboy, who was the leading outboard driver last year, was the first amateur to finish. He drove his Miss Waukegan, a class A boat, past the finish boat in third place, less than two minutes after Feldhusen was acclaimed the winner.

Three Released By Dodger Club

NEW YORK, May 15.—(AP.)—The Brooklyn Dodgers cut their squad to the 23-man limit by releasing a pitcher, outfielder and catcher.

Val Picinich, veteran backstop, who has been with the club since 1929, was handed his unconditional release; Pitcher Ray Lucas was sent to the Buffalo Bisons, of the International League, on option, and Outfielder Max Rosenfeld was sold to Chattanooga, of the Southern Association.

COLLEGE NET RIVALS PLAY

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

Battered but undaunted, college and scholastic racqueters of the district today renew battle with the weather in valiant effort to save the pieces of a season virtually wrecked thus far by rain. Three varsity squads—Carnegie Tech, Bethany and Penn State—are slated to complete their spring net campaigns on or before next Saturday, while the remainder of their confreres wind up inter-team hostilities after the stagnation of the past fortnight, all hands may well reckon the season of 1933 a washout.

W.-J. TEAM BUSY

Capt. Bill Thompson and his W. and J. adherents lead the parade with five contests slated for this afternoon and the ensuing four days. Following a home tussle with Pitt today, the Presidents swing eastward for engagements with Johns Hopkins, Navy, Georgetown and George Washington in the order given.

The Panthers follow up their invasion of Little Washington by jaunting to Carnegie Tech on Wednesday and by entertaining the Dukes on Friday, both affairs having a vital slant on the city title, which the Blue and Gold warriors have been defending successfully since 'way back in 1924. The Plaid will be at home to Duquesne on Thursday and will conclude its abbreviated bill at Grove City on Saturday.

DUKES FACE GROVERS

The Dukes precede their tilts with Pitt and Carnegie by visiting Grove City today in quest of vengeance for their 4-3 trimming by the Grovers here a fortnight ago. Meanwhile, Geneva cavorts at Bethany this afternoon and plays host to Grove City on Friday. Saturday brings the end of the road for Bethany as West Virginia treks to Bisonville and for State as Dickinson braves the Lions' den.

Interscholastic Conference aspirants, their card almost hopelessly scrambled, face final regularly scheduled tests today. The city intersectional match for the P. T. A. cup, is booked for the Pitt lot next Friday, but its play-off on that date is most improbable, as is the starting of interdivisional Conference competition three days later.

The sanction and schedule committee of the Pittsburgh Tennis Association meets today to decide on whether or not inaugural Inter-Club League activity shall be postponed from May 20 to May 27.

George Gibson, ruddy pilot of the Pirates, exuded characteristic optimism, as his Buccaneers reached Pittsburgh today. The three running defeats sustained at the Polo grounds were hard to absorb, but Gibby knows how to take the bitter with the sweet at this stage of his career.

Gibson stated truthfully it is common for any team to run into a slump at this period of the race. The strain of long Spring training trips, he believes, is felt by the players who are always pleased when a long home stay arrives on the schedule.

The boss of the Buccos stated he would inaugurate morning sessions at Forbes Field tomorrow. His players have missed these drills as they do not get a chance to work out in the forenoons when they travel. Gibson said:

WELCOMES HOME STAY

"The Pirates will be O. K. We looked like a mediocre ball club in the past few days but any team will appear that way when it slips in the field and fails to hit. The present stay at home should help us. There will be plenty of morning practice sessions.

"Tommy Padden may be given the catching job in the present series as Hal Finney is one of the Buccos in a slump at the plate."

The Giants made it three in succession over the Pirates yesterday by winning, 5 to 1. Waite Hoyt lost his second game in succession in the final with the Polo Grounders. Roy Parmelee held the Buccos to six hits, while Hoyt was nicked for nine, some of which were very timely; moreover, the loose fielding in evidence lately among the Buccos again was on display, the Pirates making three more misplays.

GIANTS START EARLY

The Giants scored two runs in the first inning on two hits and an outfield fly. The Bucs picked up their only tally in the fourth on Lindstrom's single, a walk to Traynor and Suhr's single.

Lindstrom's fumble was a potent factor in the cluster of three tallies made by the Giants in the eighth. Runners were on first and second with two out when Ryan singled

BASEBALL COMEDY

By NICK ALTROCK

WASHINGTON, May 15.—Uncle Nick has never seen Naples, but I am ready to curl up and die because now I've seen about everything else. We got a guy on our Washington club named Bob Boken, a 2nd asst. utility infielder. Well, the other day the home folks dropped over from East Burlap or wherever he was born and presented him a watch. And the usual procedure when a guy gets a public present is for him to hit into a triple play, muff 17 pop flies and throw the ball into the grandstand on an easy out. That's been done ever since Hoyle wrote up the rules of the national pastime.

Nick Altrock

Well, this Bob Boken is different. He pockets the watch with a few well-chosen mumbles and goes out to second base to play ball. And he not only forgets to foozle everything that comes in his direction, but in the twelfth inning he comes to bat and lams out a homer to win the game.

That violates all the rules of baseball, and I still can't figure it out unless he slipped that gift watch to the pitcher.

By TOM BIRKS

Hitting his tee shots long and straight, and pitching with amazing accuracy, Sam Parks, Jr., professional at the Summit Club, Uniontown, Pa., scored a great 70, two under par, to set the pace at the finish of the first 18-hole round in the 36-hole National Open golf tourney qualifying test at the Oakmont Country Club today.

Fifty-three linksmen competed for the privilege of representing this district in the National competition. Of these, seven will "make the grade."

HAS BRILLIANT ROUND

Parks, former Pitt captain and Highland amateur, played the long out nine, made even longer than usual by the soggy condition of the fairways, in a startling 34, three under par, and came home in a very creditable 36 to take the lead by a margin of four strokes. His booming tee shots left the fairway only once—at the eighteenth hole—and his short game was virtually perfect.

Pete O'Hara, Westmoreland pro who several times has qualified for the National event, was in second position with a fine 37-37—74, and Perry Del Vecchio, professional at Greensburg, another consistent winner locally, was one stroke back with 38-37—75.

LOEFFLER BREAKS 80

Others who broke 80 were Emil Loeffler, of Oakmont, with 77; Knox M. Young, Jr., Highland amateur, with a 76, and Charley Manning, of Shannopin, with 78. Among those in a good position at the start of the afternoon round were Dr. S. B. Ralston, Oakmont amateur, and Ken Rutherford, Indiana pro, each of whom had 80, and Jimmy Devlin, of Nemacolin, and George McBride, of the Pittsburgh Country Club, each with an 81.

SPECIAL RULES FOR PLAY

Because of the extremely soggy condition of the course, special rules were introduced to govern today's play. Mud-caked balls were lifted and wiped clean before putts were atempted on the greens, and balls imbedded in the fairways, or the mounds bordering certain fairways, were lifted and dropped without penalty.

The Oakmont field included virtually all district aces except Vincent Eldred, Highland professional, who, by virtue of finishing twelfth in last year's open, is eligible to compete in the 1933 championship event without being subject to a qualifying trial. Scores for the first 18 holes:

Knox M. Young, Jr., Highland ..... 43 42—85

Wagner Day Plans To Be Discussed

Acting Chairman A. K. (Rosey) Rowswell, of the Honus Wagner Day celebration today gave out the names of the members of his committee who have agreed to attend a luncheon at the Keystone Club Thursday, when plans will be furthered for the big event. The committee, in addition to sports writers, fallows:

William M. Furey, John J. Maloney, Thomas F. Ashford, Dr. John B. Sutherland, J. Herbert Hershberger, Charles J. Nieman, John K. Tener, Carl W. Ehni, Wilbur Cooper, William H. Latimer, Joseph N. Mackrell, Clifford B. Connelley, Howard Mayberry, Mike Cullen, Eugene L. Connelly, J. Rogers Flannery, Dr. William L. Marks, Harold (Pie) Traynor, Walter S. Willig, Richard Benswanger and C. H. Kerr.

LOCAL MAN ELECTED

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., May 15.—A run-off election with the two leading candidates' names appearing on the ballot, resulted in the choice of Tom Harper, Pittsburgh, and William G. VanKeuren, Watertown, Mass., as president and secretary of the Penn State Athletic Association for next year.

Firemen Mushballers

FIRE! FIRE! . . . FALSE ALARM . . . WE'RE OFF FOR THE GAME

The boys have forsaken checkers for mushball at Engine Company No. 3, downtown, and are out with a challenge to other firemen and policemen service teams. They may form a league and play games for the benefit of community charities. All togged out in their playing uniforms we see above Driver Robert Olds and Hoseman Frank Limpert. This is a Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph picture.

AMERICAN GIRL GOLFER LOSES

GLENEAGLES, Scotland, May 15.—(AP.)—Beatrice Gottlieb, of Mt. Vernon, N. Y., only American entrant in the British women's golf championship, today was eliminated in the first round of match play by B. Daniel, of Berks, 5 and 4.

The American girl made a good fight for five holes, at the end of which they were all even, but Miss Daniel, champion of Middlesex, played superb golf 4-4-3-3 on the next four holes to go 2 up and take a lead she never lost.

BUCCOS-PHILS TRADE DENIED

One of those wild trade reports had to be denied today by Pittsburgh Pirate officials. The unfounded rumor sent Pitcher Steve Swetonic and First Baseman Gus Suhr to the Phillies for Pitcher Phil Collins and First Baseman Don Hurst.

Both President William E. Benswanger and Manager George Gibson, of the Buccos, denied they had entered into any trade negotiations with the Quakers. When he learned the details of the rumor, Benswanger said:

"Don't make me laugh."

RAMEY ARRIVES FOR BATTLE AT ARENA

TONIGHT'S FIGHTS

Joe Kaminski vs. Battling Archie and Stanislaus Lauzza vs. Jerry Emard, 10 rounds each, Holyoke, Mass.

By HARRY KECK
Sports Editor.

Wesley Ramey, the classy lightweight boxer, of Grand Rapids, who scored a decisive victory over Champion Tony Canzoneri in a non-title bout a few weeks ago to serve notice that he will be around waiting when Tony gets ready to step down off the throne, is in town to finish his training for his windup bout with Harry Dublinsky, of Chicago, in the Arena, on the North Side, Friday night.

Ramey will work out daily at the Pittsburgh Lyecum, along with Abe Meyer Lichtenstein, of Rochester, N. Y., who came in with him yesterday. Abe, who, after a long layoff, came here and gave Ted Yarosz a hard fight at the Arena last fall, meets Red Bruce, of the Hill, in the semi-final.

Mike Sankovitch, of McKees Rocks, who fought some of the good heavyweights around New York during the past two years, takes on Carl Gross, of Braddock, in another feature preliminary.

Elmer Wilson, hard-hitting Negro lightweight, boxes Johnny Hazel, and Joey Chemes is in with Harry Weekly, of Alliance, O., in the other bouts.

Matchmaker Bus Vogel, of Hickey Park, is preparing the preliminary card for his Ted Yarosz-Tommy Freeman outdoor season opener next Monday night.

DAYTON TAKES M.-A. LEAD

The Dayton Ducks have paddled their way to glory and satisfactory, even if temporary, at the top of the heap in the Mid-Atlantic League.

Out-pitching Springfield in a doubleheader, the Ducks took the first game 4 to 1 and the second 6 to 5 yesterday. Springfield out-hit the Ducks in the final fray but could not break an early lead even with a home run in the ninth by Walter Cazen.

Zanesville ran up a terrific score against Huntington—13 to 9—in the second game of a double-header. The first was postponed because of wet grounds. Umpire Walker had to banish Rags Ragnow, Huntington catcher, and Manager Johnny Walker, of the Greys, who almost came to blows in the seventh.

The Wheeling Stogies play the New York Yankees today in an exhibition game. Wheeling was to have played Johnstown yesterday, but the game was moved up to a double-header which rain prevented.

The Senators, of Charleston, won the first game with the Beckley Black Knights, 5 to 4, and dropped the second, 7 to 1.

Coast Netter, 17, Wins Three Titles

LOS ANGELES, May 15.—(AP.) Gene Mako, 17-year-old university freshman from Glendale, Cal., won three titles in the Southern California tennis championship finals yesterday.

Mako defeated the favorite, Keith Gledhill, of Santa Barbara, No. 8 nationally, in singles, 0-6, 6-1, 6-3, 5-7, 6-0. He teamed with Jack Tidball in the doubles to defeat the favorites, Gledhill and Henry Culley, also of Santa Barbara, 7-5, 9-7, 6-0. The youngster gained his third crown when he and Mrs. Helen Marlowe Dimitrijevic won the mixed doubles from Dorothy Bundy and Billy Doeg, of the famous tennis families, 7-5, 6-0.

Hannon Captures Woodbridge Grind

WOODBRIDGE, N. J., May 15.—(AP.)—Johnny Hannon, of Conshohocken, Pa., won the 25-mile sweepstakes, feature event of the 1933 inaugural auto racing card at the Woodbridge Speedway yesterday, by piloting his powerful car through the 50 laps in 26 minutes 55⅔ seconds.

Ira Hall, of Terre Haute, Ind., trailed Hannon; Lloyd Broshart, of Dunellen, was third, and Billy Winn, dirt track star, was fourth.

Hannon also won the first five-mile qualifying heat, with Hall trailing him across the line in that event also.

Grove Joins A's List of Ailing

PHILADELPHIA, May 15.—(AP.)—The Philadelphia Athletics have another trouble—Lefty Grove's tooth ache.

The stellar left-hander of the Athletics' pitching staff, between the tooth ache and a lame back, will not see action until the end of the week.

He is the third pitcher of the A's to fall victim to aches and pains within a week. Gowell Claset has a wrenched side and George Earnshaw, lumbago.

TWO MEETS TODAY

Two track meets for high schools are scheduled for today. Eight schools compete in the independent county championship at Dormont, while Kittanning meets New Bethlehem High in a dual affair.

MICKEY COHEN STOPPED

TIJUANA, Mexico, May 15.—Baby Arizmendi, of Mexico, knocked out Mickey Cohen, of Cleveland, in the third round of a bout here yesterday.

City League nines will make further efforts to get the campaign going this evening, with two games carded.

At Pleasant Valley field, the Ottie Cochran club is planning quite a time when the Whitaker club with Leo Mackey in the fold, visits Wilson avenue to assist with the celebration and inaugurate its own season.

Ottie Cochran will have City Councilmen Harry Little aand C. B. Connelly on hand, with Heinie Blum, well known Pleasant Valley sportsman, as master of ceremonies.

BOOKS PLAYS THOMAS

Harry Fowler, who coaches the Cochrans, has been working hard trying to give the Wilson avenue fans a winner. It is likely that Foster or Dutch Spencer will draw the hurling assignment.

At Olympia Park the Book team, after successfully opening its season last Friday against Homewood, will meet the J. L. Thomas nine. The fighting Bloomfielders figure to give the Mt. Washington team a tough game.

CRAWFORDS PLAY TWO

A double header is carded for today at Greenlee Field between the Crawfords and the Philadelphia All-Stars. The first contests of the series, booked for Saturday and yesterday, were rained out.

Yesterday, the Homestead Grays were defeated by the American Giants in Chicago, 5 to 4.

came back strongly with an early rush that netted a 9-to-5 victory, mostly because Tony Lazzeri hit his sixth homer of the season with two aboard in the third inning.

Washington's Senators and the Chicago White Sox, scrapping for third place, split a wild and wooly doubleheader that produced 51 hits, good for a total of 74 bases. The Sox won the opener, 10-8, after rolling up a nine-run lead in the first three innings, then the Senators reversed the order, getting seven runs in two frames and finishing with an 11-9 edge.

The Boston Red Sox couldn't stand prosperity after rallying for five runs in the ninth inning to beat Detroit, 6 to 1, and made six errors, four of which figured in the scoring, to give the Tigers the second game, 3 to 2.

World High Jump Record Is Broken

FRESNO, Cal., May 15.—(AP.)—In the afterglow of the seventh annual West Coast relays, Walter Marty's performance in bettering the world high jump record with a leap of 6 feet 8⅜ inches eclipsed other results here today.

The accepted record is 6 feet 8¼ inches, set by Harold Osborne, Illinois Athletic Club, in 1924.

BOBBY JONES' GOLF

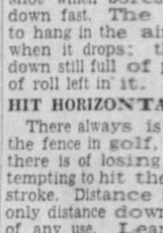
By BOBBY JONES

Only Golfer Who Has Won U. S. and British Amateur and Open Championships in the Same Year.

Irrespective of the rank of a golfer, one of the chief problems with which he concerns himself is that of getting distance off the tee. For apart from the satisfaction and pride which one feels in a well-hit tee shot which finishes out in front of the rest of the crowd, there is no denying that length affords a tremendous advantage. We console ourselves often enough by repeating the old aphorism, "They don't pay off on the drive," but the fact is that they often do "pay off" on a succession of drives if in the rest of the play you are even as good as the opposition. In the long run, it is next to impossible to concede any considerable advantage off the tee to a man as skillful as yourself in other departments.

AVOID BACKSPIN

Even when we were using the old standard 1.62 ball, in order to obtain the maximum length, it was important to avoid applying backspin to a tee shot. A great many players lost distance because they hit the ball down—that is, they struck it a descending blow much as they would play a mashie-niblic pitch intended to stop very quickly. Particularly against the wind, this shot would suffer greatly, because the backspin would cause the ball to rise abruptly, or "peak," near the end of its flight, and fall lifeless to the ground.



Bobby Jones

With the heavier ball, unless the fault was exaggerated or the wind very heavy, the loss of distance was not killing. The longer drivers were hitting the ball squarely in the back, but the fellows who were hitting it a little bit down were close enough to hold their own. But with the larger 1.68-1.62 standard the loss of the down-hitters is magnified appreciably even in relatively calm air, and against a stiff breeze the margin is of first importance.

ROLL FOR LARGER BALL

The 1.68 ball, regardless of the fact that it has been shown to carry in calm air within a very few yards of the 1.62, is not nearly so good a roller as its smaller predecessor. As a matter of fact, it has to be MADE to roll and MADE to keep its head down into an opposing wind. The sooner any player will accept this fact the better chance he will have to get his length.

Every golfer knows the difference between the drive which starts low and climbs abruptly upon an opposing breeze and the shot which bores in and comes down fast. The first ball seems to hang in the air and it is dead when it drops; the other comes down still full of pep, with plenty of roll left in it.

HIT HORIZONTAL BLOW

There always is another side of the fence in golf, and the danger there is of losing control, in attempting to hit the ball on the upstroke. Distance is valuable, but only distance down the fairway is of any use. Learn to hit them straight first, and far later. If you can learn to strike the ball squarely in the back with the club moving horizontally you will have every reason to be pleased.

Of course, it must be remembered that this applies only to distance-getting shots from the tee or from a good lie in the fairway. When the shot must be stopped, or when it must be got up from a tight lie, there is no option. It must be hit down!

Broker's Tip Not To Race Until Fall

BALTIMORE, May 15.—(INS.)—Broker's Tip, Col. E. R. Bradley's Kentucky Derby winner which ran last in the Preakness Saturday, probably will not race again until next fall, according to William Hurley, Bradley's assistant trainer. Hurley said the colt had popped an osselet last week and would have to undergo special treatment all summer.

Head Play, winner of the Preakness by four lengths, today started training for the Wood Memorial at Jamaica Saturday.

BUYER'S GUIDE AND BUSINESS REVIEW

BUSINESS

Some Steel Mills Start To Regains Basis For Profits

—By GEORGE H. SNYDER—

A few months ago the estimates of steel company officials ranged from 30 per cent to 40 per cent in naming the critical point at which they could start to show profits. National Steel is the only major producer which has been able to make money throughout the depression.

The rise in steel ingot production from about 13 per cent of capacity at the end of the bank holiday to between 31 per cent and 33½ per cent of capacity last week and a scheduled production of about 35 per cent for the present week has put several steel companies over the divide between profits and losses.

So far as National Steel is concerned, the company is expected to show profits for the second quarter more than double those of the first quarter when net profit was equivalent to 13 cents a share.

Republic Steel On Profit Basis

REPORTS FROM Youngstown state that the Republic Steel Corporation, third largest steel company in the country, probably regained a profit-making basis last week for the first time in two years. Operations were well above 35 per cent of capacity with an expectation that they may reach 40 per cent of capacity by June 1.

It was declared that the corporation earned its monthly depreciation charge of around $600,000 in April and added to its cash holdings in that month on an operating average at least a fourth lower than the current rate.

Inland Nearly Out of Red Ink

A DISPATCH from Chicago declares that steady improvement in its operating rate since early in March has brought the Inland Steel Company closer to the pay point than it has been since the fall of 1931. The rise in operations has been coupled with an improvement in the price of its principal products. Currently, however, the company is almost wholly dependent on its lighter lines for volume and a renewed activity in the heavier lines, principally rails and structural steel, would be needed to assure profitable operations for this quarter.

Half the second quarter has been passed. Most companies were not able to show profits in April although their volume was increasing. Some steel companies have achieved a profitable basis this month. The trend of operations during the remainder of the quarter will have much to do with the results to be shown on income accounts. If the improvement continues several companies may be expected to report profits. The remaining ones will materially reduce their losses.

STEEL FOOTING DEEP ROOTED

CLEVELAND, May 15.—(AP.)—With steel works operating at 36 per cent of capacity, the highest since June, 1931, the magazine Steel said today that iron and steel interests are convinced the present improvement is deeper rooted than a belated spring rise.

New bookings for finished steel last week were sufficiently heavy to push the operating rate up three points, moderate backlogs in some products and defer deliveries, the magazine said in its weekly summary. The magazine added:

"Persistent buying by steel makers in their efforts to accumulate stocks of basic materials indicates the foundation is being laid for a long upswing in operations, which seasonal conditions this summer will not vitiate."

Operations in the Wheeling district last week led the country, with a rate of 65 per cent, up four points. Cleveland was second at 54 per cent, a gain of six points; the Youngstown district advanced 10 points to 43; Chicago one and one-half to 31; Pittsburgh two to 24; Birmingham six to 20; Philadelphia one to 16½, and Detroit and Buffalo held at 38 per cent. Some tin plate mills were operating at 100 per cent, the average for all being 60.

Producer Declares Prices at New Low

Production economies and newspaper advertising have brought the price of the Douglas shoe to the lowest level since 1876, company officials say. Union officials in Brockton, Mass., where the Douglas factories are located, have co-operated with the company in bringing down costs to enable buyers to secure 1933 quality and styles at prices popular more than half a century ago, shoe manufacturers say.

STEEL LEADS UPSURGE IN BUSINESS

NEW YORK, May 15.—(AP.)—Led by steel, the business procession last week again marched forward to higher territory.

Definite improvement was recorded by the vital indices of steel and motor car production and retail sales, while electric power production crossed the level of a year previously for the first time in nearly three years.

Steel, fed largely by orders from motor makers—but with an increasing amount of miscellaneous demand—chalked up the best score during the past week. Production stood at 36 per cent of capacity, a gain of three points over the preceding week, according to the magazine Steel.

With output now estimated at the highest point since June, 1931, it is significant that steel interests believe that the present improvement is more deeply rooted than a belated spring rise. Orders indicate that there is a desire to accumulate stocks of basic materials which is considered the foundation for a long upswing in operations.

AUTO OUTPUT GAINS

Automobile production for the week, as estimated by Cram, totaled 51,671, a gain of 235 over the preceding week and the highest weekly figure attained since the period ended June 27, 1931. It was the eighth consecutive week when production has shown an improvement over the preceding period.

Electric power output, amounting to 1,435,707,000 kilowatt hours for the latest week, was 0.5 per cent over the corresponding period last year.

While carloadings as reported for the week ended May 6 did not better last year's traffic volume, they were only 1.8 per cent under the like period of last year, the smallest divergence since 1930. The total of 523,819 cars was 11,887 under the preceding week.

RETAIL SALES UP

Reports from the important centers of distribution emphasized the gain in the weekly volume of retail sales. Mercantile executives asserted that the buying cannot be attributed solely to belated consumption, but represents very largely actual requirements, with of course, some anticipation of future needs.

The prospects of higher prices have frequently led purchasers to cover their needs as far ahead as possible. Dry goods, hardware, food products and shoes were listed as taking the lead in retail activity.

In the wholesale markets, commitments are being placed for several months ahead. Staple goods for fall consumption is being ordered in large volume despite the difficulties being met in the way of price guarantees, it was reported.

TO MARKET OIL BURNER

DETROIT, May 15.—Kelvinator Corporation will go into production May 24 with a new type of perfected oil burner for home heating, to be distributed largely through the company's existing sales organization, it was announced by George W. Mason, chairman of the board and president.

Addition of an oil burner to the Kelvinator line follows several years of experimental work and testing of burners of various design, it was announced. Tooling up for production was started only after a burner was developed which Kelvinator engineers feel meets fully the needs of modern home heating.

The manufacturing and sale of oil burners, which has its heaviest season from June to October, inclusive, fits in exceptionally well with the program and will do much to smooth out the seasonal production and sales curves which always accompany any exclusively refrigeration operation, according to Mr. Mason.

Present plans call for sale of the new Kelvinator oil burner through distributors in a limited number of selected key cities during this year. No effort will be made to get national distribution for the new product until a year of merchandising experience has been passed through and future merchandising policies set.

Investment Trust Average Price Hits High

The investment trust average as compiled by Allied-Distributors, Inc., registered further recovery during the past week, with both the leverage and non-leverage groups establishing new high records for the current year to date. The average for the common stocks of the five leading management trusts, influenced by the leverage factor, stood at 14.70 as of May 12, an increase of 5.6 per cent, compared with the average of 13.92 on May 5 and compared with the average of 8.22 reported as of March 31, the low point for 1933. The average of the non-leverage stocks stood at 13.92 as of the close May 12, an increase of 1.9 per cent compared with 13.65 at the close on May 5. The average of the mutual funds closed at 9.70 compared with 9.93 on May 5.

Forbes

'We're on Our Way' Becomes The Verdict

—By B. C. FORBES—

AMERICA appears very definitely to have ended deflation and to have embarked on a forward, upward movement.

LAST WEEK was a humdinger. It brought:

Mr. Forbes

AN ADVANCE in stocks not only to a new peak for this year, but above the high point touched last fall. Transactions in the New York Stock Exchange averaged better than four million shares a day, whereas not so long ago a "million share day" was news.

"100 per cent" gains from the low levels touch this year by many stocks, including higher grade issues.

Notable increase in railway car loadings, with indications that the total will shortly pass that of 12 months ago.

IN SHORT, trade, industry, agriculture, transportation all have experienced an about face. Expansion has displaced retrenchment. Forward buying has supplanted hand-to-mouth buying. A sellers' market has taken the place of the long protracted buyers' market. Optimism has overcome pessimism.

CONGRESS continues to pass legislation investing the administration with extraordinary, not to say dictatorial powers. The proof of these novel Washington puddings will lie in the eating of them. Conservatives in finance, in industry, in railroading are uneasy over how far political absolutism may be carried—but for the most part they are keeping mum.

On the whole, however, the disposition is to repose faith in President Roosevelt's judgment, to co-operate cordially, to act constructively, to hope for the best.

International developments are causing uneasiness in high places; but it is considered politic in high circles to soft-pedal criticism.

"AT LAST we are on our way," is the comment now frequently heard.

SHORTAGE SEEN IN COMMODITY MARKETS

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
Universal Service.

NEW YORK, May 15.—As in previous weeks, the security and commodity markets in the first half of May continued to respond to facts and fantasies.

It is difficult at this juncture to segregate the inflationary from other types of economic motivation. Unquestionably, the lapse of nearly four years since business touched its peak in June, 1929, accumulated real shortages in many lines. The formal abandonment of the gold standard on April 17 last constituted warning that the policy of flight from securities and commodities into money would no longer be profitable.

Mr. Rukeyser

STOCKS DEPLETED

Accordingly, there was a new orientation. Relieved of fears of endless price declines and deflation, business men and speculators made a fresh survey of conditions. Inventories in many places were found to be abnormally low. Resumption of buying found existing stocks inadequate.

With raw staples until recently selling vastly below the average cost of production, markets were ready to respond to the threat of higher prices through inflationary means, as contemplated in the Thomas amendment to the farm bill.

Furthermore, the deflationary effect of tieing the dollar to gold was removed as soon as the new monetary policy got under way.

DECLINES RESISTED

In attempting to differentiate between natural conditions and artificial ones, observers recalled that for nearly a year business has shown irregular resistance to further declines. Late last summer and early in the autumn there were evidences of a pickup, but banking troubles and a political campaign of fear aborted the rise.

The climax of the secondary reaction occurred with the national bank holiday. Public opinion characterized that event as the bottom, and became more confident of this diagnosis when it became apparent that President Roosevelt intended to deal expeditiously and adroitly with the basic causes of continuing depression.

EUROPE BUYING U. S. DOLLARS

LONDON, May 15.—(AP.)—Continental buying resulting from the European situation helped today in the recovery of the American dollar from Saturday's quotation of $3.96½ to the pound to $3.95.

The beelief also prevailed in some quarters that President Roosevelt's inflation policy might be more moderate than at first thought and this helped in the betterment.

PARIS, May 15.—(INS.)—The dollar fluctuated only slightly on the Paris market today, opening at 21.79 francs and closing at 21.80. The pound sterling lost, opening at 36.12½ and closing at 86.05.

MY OWN LIFE STORY By Evelyn Nesbit Thaw

what he did to the story I told that next day was later to plague me in the Thaw trial.

Stanford wanted me to take Edna McClure with me, but she wouldn't go, because her old Irish grandmother had a notion that seeing lawyers meant trouble.

The next day saw me in Hummell's office. He was a tiny, undersized man with a warty face and rheumy eyes. He looked like a gnome.

Someone else apparently told him about my experience with Stanford White. Mind you, not a word of that had passed my lips.

Early the next day, however, Stanford came to my hotel room, quaking with emotion.

"What did you tell Abe Hummel about me?" he demanded.

"Absolutely nothing," I replied. "We did not discuss you in any way."

"Well, he soaked me $1,000. I had to pay him a thousand-dollar fee!" he exclaimed.

"Well, gee whiz," I said. "Why didn't you have an understanding with him about the fee in advance? He's your lawyer. Didn't he represent you in the Edna Goodrich case?"

Seeing the Light

Here Stanford began to see the light.

"Ah," he said. "Ah ha."

"Now listen," I said. "I don't want any trouble about this Katzenstein business. I thought you advised me to forget it. You sent me down there and stirred this all up. I hope to goodness there isn't going to be any lawsuit."

"Good heavens, no!"

"Well, why did I have to go there in the first place? What's the object? If you want the thing forgotten, why did you want Edna McClure to go?"

"Well," Stanford said, "Thaw has been visiting her. He's been going to her house a lot. He's been trying to find you. He's bound to find you eventually, because one of those girls will sell him the information, if nothing else."

I didn't reckon with Thaw's persistence and his detectives when I thought I could keep away from him. Not being able to put detectives on my trail, because he didn't know where to start them, he put detectives on Stanford White—and presto! There I was!

Agony again. As if I didn't have enough troubles, Thaw was on my trail again.

A long campaign to get me to see him and talk to him.

One girl emissary after another appearing at my hotel with invitations and propositions. I don't mean money. He bombarded me with begging notes.

An example:

"Please:

"Her angel, her tum-tums, her tweetums, her boofuls." (Orchids always came with this folderol.) "Let poor mans see her boofuls."

Such drivel! But I loved those tiny yellow orchids that grow on long stems, six or eight of them on one stem—and Thaw knew it!

Girls Aid Thaw

One girl I knew well came. She needed a warm coat. Thaw would buy her the coat if I would go to lunch with him!

This kept up for days. The girls reported to Thaw that I wat not feeling well—not strong enough to work and worried about the future. They were playing me right into his hands.

I didn't know it then, and I was full of sympathy for them.

After a while Thaw himself began to call at the hotel. He would sit downstairs in the office, sending bellboys up one after another. Even the manager and the desk clerk came up with the inevitable message:

"Will you see Mr. Thaw?"

I didn't know what to do.

Then Thaw sent a lawyer—not in a business capacity, but as a friend. This lawyer was a clubman, a bachelor and gave many parties. He was interested in one of my girl friends, who was present when I was first introduced to Thaw. He said he came as a friend—as an ambassador of peace.

"See Harry," he urged. "All he wants is to see and talk to you. Go ahead and see him and then we can all have some rest and peace. He's after me night and day to try and affect a reconciliation.

"All you have to do is to shake hands and speak to him. Really, it's pitiful. Thaw is terribly in love with you!"

Well, to make a long story short, I made a terrific mistake. I let myself be persuaded to see Thaw.

Only a few minutes later, Harry, breathless, rushed into the room. He fell on his knees and kissed my hand. He sat like a graven image for a few minutes, then crushed his hat between his hands and said:

"Please let me come and see you, angel."

Chase Goes On

Thaw is very clever. He had learned the value of persistence. Opposition only encourages him. When he reads these lines, probably in that estate of his own down in Virginia, he may smile in that cunning way of his. He was wise enough not to see me, or try to see me, every day after his first success. He kept up the game of chase.

That girl came to see me again. She still wanted that coat. If I would go to lunch with Thaw—he would take both of us—she would have her coat as a reward for arranging the meeting.

Now I always regarded her as a swell little person. And I was always a good-natured, happy-go-lucky girl myself, always willing to do a favor if I could. To help her get her coat, I agreed to go. I was sorry almost immediately afterward. A most embarrassing scene resulted—in the fitting room of a very fashionable Fifth Avenue store.

Thaw was so delighted over taking me to lunch that he insisted on buying her coat before we ate.

She was trying on coats. I was sitting on a chair.

Thaw got down on his knees in front of me. At first he said nothing, simply knelt there for five minutes, silently.

The roar of laughter! I think the entire personnel of the store found some excuse for passing through that coat department just to get an eyeful of Thaw, who was making such an ass of himself.

Then, within earshot of only about 200 people, Thaw began begging me to forgive him for all his mistakes and to go to dinner with him.

I was never so humiliated in my life. I would have given anything to be able to leave gracefully, to get away from all those grinning employes. There was no way for me to get out gracefully. I found the quickest way out of the dilemma was to promise to go to dinner with him and the girl. And so it began all over again.

Sorry for Thaw

Slowly but surely he worked his way back into my good graces. I did feel sorry for him. You couldn't be human and not feel sorry for him.

Thaw's strategy was to be sorry for me. He took me to see a doctor, who said I was suffering from a bad case of adhesions and needed another operation. The doctor advised Zurich, Switzerland.

I didn't want to go. Thaw, anticipating my objections, offered to take along a mutual friend named "Sport" Donnelly, who had been a famous football star—at Yale, I think.

We sailed, the three of us, on board the Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse.

Back in Pittsburgh was my mother. Back in Pittsburgh, too, although I did not grasp it at the time, was another mother with a plan—Mother Thaw, prim and proper, plotting to cure her son's weird life by having him married.

She made up her mind that "Evelyn Nesbit will marry my poor dear Harry," and she knew the strength of her will and the power of the family.

SILVER PRICE TAKES DROP

NEW YORK, May 15.—(AP.)—The price of spot silver today dropped 1⅜ cents to 32⅛ cents an ounce. Silver futures on the Commodity Exchange, Inc., were similarly weak, ranging about 1¼ cents below Saturday's levels.

NEW YORK, May 15.—Copper buying in Europe is in fair volume, with prices ranging from 6.95 cents to 7.23 cents a pound, c. f. i. Hamburg, Havre and London.

LONDON, May 15.—Tin for immediate delivery broke 4 pounds 5 shillings in the London metal market today, being quoted 183 pounds, 7 shilling, 6 pence. Futures were off 4 pounds 2 shilling 6 pence to 184 pounds.

Goodrich Sales Trebled Over March

AKRON, May 15.—Announcement of a 200 per cent increase in tire production over March in the Akron factories of The B. F. Goodrich Company was made today by President J. D. Tew. For the first time since October, 1929, Goodrich tire departments will operate six days a week, 24 hours daily, beginning today, as the tire industry responds to the present upturn in general business conditions. The 200 per cent increase includes a 40 per cent boost in tire production April 1. New schedules will bring re-employment for a number of former tire division workers.

STINSON GETS NEW ORDERS

WAYNE, Mich., May 15.—With $100,000 worth of unfilled orders on hand for its new Reliant four-passenger cabin monoplane, recently introduced, the Stinson Aircraft Corporation here is working on the largest schedule in its history.

This announcement was made today by B. D. De Weese, vice president and general manager, following the return of J. C. Kelly, Jr., sales manager, from a sales trip throughout the East.

Powered by a 215-horsepower Lycoming motor, the Reliant plane has a cruising speed of 115 miles per hour and a high speed of 135 miles per hour. Its complete standard equipment includes an electric starter, a 12-volt storage battery, cabin heaters and ventilators, dual controls and adjustable pilots' seats, an adjustable pitch alloy steel propellor, ball-bearing controls and many other features and refinements.

Shoe Makers Test Public Honesty

Faith in the fundamental honesty of human beings will be tested in a unique selling plan to be sponsored by Pittsburgh shoe dealers from May 15 to 27. Verners, McCreery's and the Arch Preserver Shop, local distributors of Selby Arch Preserver shoes are inviting Pittsburgh women to buy a pair of shoes, wear them for 30 days, with a money-back guarantee if complete comfort is not enjoyed. This experiment is based on a factory assertion that 98 per cent of the buying public is honest. Pittsburgh was selected for the test, as typical American city.

Aluminium, Limited, Bond Tenders Asked

The Union Trust Company of Pittsburgh, trustee of Aluminium, Ltd., 5 per cent sinking fund debenture gold bonds dated July 1, 1928, has given notice that it will receive tenders until noon, May 23 for the sale to it of such bonds to an aggregate of $300,258 at prices not exceeding 105 and interest.

STOCKS BRACE AS PRESSURE SLACKENS

NEW YORK, May 17.—(AP.)—Financial markets began the new week rather feebly today, but improved as trading progressed.

Early selling in stocks and some of the staples was attributed in part to international tension resulting from the German attitude on armament, but it soon dwindled. Stocks lost fractions to a point pretty generally, but recovered here and there during the middle of the day. Cotton broke $1.50 to $2 a bale, then came back about half way. Wheat lost about a cent.

In stocks, the alcohol issues were given another whirl, as it was the first day of the more liberal prescription regulations. National Distillers jumped 5 points. Motors held up well, with Nash and Chrysler getting up fractions.

Wall street awaited with keen interest for Chancellor Hitler's message to the special session of the Reichstag on disarmament on Wednesday, and financial quarters were hopeful that a means would be found to save the disarmament conference, inasmuch as the hopes for the London economic conference have been regarded as hinging on progress at Geneva.

With the approach of summer, the time for the usual seasonal lull in business, the week's business news and statistics were awaited with intense interest. Optimistic quarters express the hope that the inflationary fillip which business has received has been sufficient to keep the forward movement in progress. While recession in freight carloadings, as reported Saturday, was a little larger than some quarters had estimated, it was pointed out that they could still recede a little further in this week's report, and actually cross the level of a year previously, in view of the sharp decline a year ago.

COTTON FALLS ON SELLING

NEW YORK, May 15.—(AP.)—Cotton futures opened easy, 24-34 points decline under heavy general selling on reports of delay in some of the farm bill provisions, lower Liverpool cables and rains in Texas. May, 8.35; July, 8.50; October, 8.75; December, 8.96; January, 9.03; March, 9.15.

Heavy selling at the opening sent July off to $8.44 and December to $9.00, making declines of about 40 to 54 points from the highs of last week, which attracted a renewal of trade and commission house demand. Offerings were readily absorbed and the market rallied several points from the lowest with active months showing net losses of 15 to 20 points at the end of the first half hour.

The market held fairly steady later in the morning on trade and commission house buying, while offerings were much lighter after the first rush of liquidation had subsided. July sold up to 8.68 and was holding around 8.65 at midday when the general market was 16 to 20 points net lower.

LIVERPOOL, May 15.—Cotton, 3,000 bales, American nil. Spot in fair demand; prices 22 points lower; quotations in pence; American strict good middling, 6.71; good middling, 6.41; strict middling, 6.11; middling, 5.96; strict low middling, 5.81; low middling, 5.61; strict good ordinary, 5.41; good ordinary, 5.11. Futures closed quiet and steady. May 5.73; July, 5.71; October, 5.70; December, 5.72; January, 5.73; March, 5.76.

CORPORATE EARNINGS

Reading Company report for the March quarter shows net income of $288,817, after taxes and charges, equal, after allowing for dividend requirements on the 4 per cent non-cumulative first preferred, to one cent a share on 839,412 shares of 4 per cent non-cumulative second preferred. This compares with $220,744, or 39 cents a share on 550,824 shares of first preferred in the first quarter of 1932.

Metro Goldwyn Pictures Corporation reports net profit of $956,173 for the 28 weeks ended March 16, equal to $6.11 a share on the 7 per cent preferred stock, compared with $1,910,807 or $12.10 a preferred share in the same period of the previous year.

United Gas Corporation and subsidiaries in the 12 months ended February 28, 1933, earned $2.22 a share on $7 second preferred stock, after first preferred dividends, against $5.80 earned on the second preferred in 12 months ended February 29, 1932.

Middle States Petroleum Corporation and affiliated companies consolidated, and the Louisiana and Northern West Railroad Company for the year ended December 31, 1932, shows net loss of $346,203 after interest, taxes, depreciation, depletion, abandonments, minority interest, etc., compared with net loss of $495,513 in 1931.

Crosley Radio Corporation and subsidiaries for the year ended March 31, report net loss of $291,061 after all charges, against net loss of $139,091 in the year previous.

Mountain Producers Corporation report for the year ended December 31, 1932, shows consolidated profit of $1,430,530, after expenses, Federal taxes, etc., but before depletion compared with profit of $1,471,561 in 1931.

Panhandle Producing and Refining Company and subsidiaries report for the March quarter shows net loss of $118,443 after expenses, depreciation, depletion, amortization of undeveloped leases, interest, bad debts and all other charges, against net loss of $148,175 in the first quarter of last year.

Columbian Carbon Company and subsidiaries report for the March quarter shows net income of $242,333 after depreciation, depletion and federal taxes, equal to 49 cents a share on 538,420 shares, compared with net income of $277,954, or 51 cents a share, in the first quarter of 1932.

Century Ribbon Mills loss for the March quarter was $62,189 against net profit of $32,014 in the March, 1932, quarter.

STOCK MARKET NOW LOSING MOMENTUM

By LEWIS HANEY
Professor of Economics, New York University.

NEW YORK, May 15.—Regardless of fundamental merits of the current stock market, any careful student can now detect a little loss of momentum and a considerable deterioration in quality. Increased caution in buying stocks is therefore an obvious suggestion.

The series of lifts or jumps, which have carried the averages up to the September high level, has shown signs of less spontaneity. The last one, which came last Wednesday, had to start from a larger reaction than the first; and it has shown signs of trouble earlier.

While the trend established for this move can still be said to be upward, one can begin to detect indications of a tendency to round off. It is not yet conclusive, and fresh news of a bullish character could yet bring response, but it is there.

INDIVIDUAL WHIRLS

As to the quality of the move, I consider the outstanding indication to be the tendency to degenerate into a series of miscellaneous plays, such as the manipulated run-up in Auburn of Saturday. Individual issues are being given whirls, being marked up rapidly, only to stop suddenly or fall back as though the sponsors had unloaded.

I fancy that there has recently been a little tendency toward a narrowing of the spread between "asked" prices and the actual market, which suggests less exalted notions on the part of operators for the rise.

Of course, the appearance of "brokers' loans" in the news is a warning. The market may not yet be overbought, but the expansion in margin trading has now become apparent, and is leading up to an inevitable shake-out.

DIFFICULTIES SEEN

As to the fundamentals, one can detect indications of growing misgivings concerning the further development of socialistic schemes now being adopted. Thoughtful men are beginning to look ahead toward certain difficulties, and the public is on the edge of sensing the fact that government activity must be paid for.

A "re-employment tax" is still a tax. Somebody has to pay. We can't get rid of the costs and risks of business by shifting them to the government. They merely come back to us as taxes.

Then there is the idea of a partnership between the government and business. If corporations are going to take the government in as a partner, what capital is the latter going to put in? It may tax us; it may take our money away by hoarding our gold and cutting our dollars in two. It may borrow from us by bond issues. But it has no capital to contribute that it does not first take away from business.

Then which of the partners will decide on business policies?

DEBT QUESTION

What about the balance sheet of a government-business partnership? The large bond issues proposed become liabilities of the partnership, do they not? And of course each partner is personally liable for the debts of the partnership.

These considerations have a bearing on the value of business equities, or the stocks of what are now private corporations. The government partner is proposing to add a large funded debt as its contribution. This will come ahead of our equities.

If the government really wants a participation in business, why not have it buy stocks at present prices? By swapping its bonds (debt) for our equities, and then retiring one or the other, it would reduce the enormous total capitalization of American business.

The whole thing comes down to this: at the same time that equities in American business are being bid up, we are about to issue billions of bonds secured by American business. How can we figure that the equity is increased, if the bonds are good?

Stewart-Warner Proxy Fight On

CHICAGO, May 15.—(AP)—Oscar U. Zerk, chairman of the opposition committee of stockholders of Stewart-Warner Corporation, today made public a letter mailed to stockholders charging "many disturbing conditions" in the management of the company and asking proxies to elect a new board of directors.

The letter said that the corporation has lost millions of dollars through continued manufacture of unprofitable lines, and that "even in the depression year of 1932" that four directors as officers had "paid themselves salaries totaling within 1½ per cent of the total paid them collectively during the boom year of 1928."

Refractory Goods Prices Advancing

The Harbison Walker Refractories Company stated today that the volume of refractories business, fire brick, etc., both in order and shipment, is showing a considerable improvement over April and May, 1932, and for 1933 to date. Prices are firm but there have been no advances as yet in fire clay or silica brick although magnesite and chrome refractories products have been advanced about 5 per cent, effective July 1 on third quarter business.

THOMAS SEES FASCIST RULE FACING U. S.

NEW KENSINGTON, Pa., May 15.—Norman Thomas, standard bearer of the Socialist party, said here last night the United States has embarked on a course of "state capitalism."

He asserted the danger of Fascism faces the nation, although President Roosevelt does not wish it.

The deep-voiced Socialist, who said he was better at quoting the Scriptures than at getting votes for President, talked in what he described as "Mellon's aluminum city" before a crowd that all but filled the Liberty Theater.

CARRIES BIBLE

He brought a Bible along, he said, in the event there were protests against his Sunday address. Dr. William J. Van Essen, Allegheny County chairman of the party, said the rental of the theater had been boosted $40 after the purpose of the meeting was learned.

Thomas said President Roosevelt's new deal "means well," and the program for government operation of Muscle Shoals "looks like" Socialism.

He deplored, however, "subsidizing" of the banks and use of the power of government "to assist a rotten, broken-down system." He added:

"If the government had taken over the banks, we would have had a step toward socialization."

'CHANGERS' BACK

Referring to President Roosevelt's inaugural address and his reference to the "money changers in the temple," Thomas said:

"They took the money changers out of the temple all right, but only to the backyard to wash their faces. Now they are back and in the choir."

He said the new deal "possibly will give us a little grace," but added that capitalism is doomed. He said:

"I rejoice at what has happened in Washington, because it sounded the death knell of the old system."

Thomas will speak at Carnegie Music Hall, Pittsburgh, tomorrow night. He is on a tour to strengthen the Socialist party organization in Western Pennsylvania. He will speak tonight at Erie. He appeared yesterday afternoon in New Castle.

CHURCH PETTER STIRS PASTOR

EASTON, Conn., May 15.—(INS.)—Tongues wagged here today over a minister's charges that the Central Methodist Church hall has been used o' nights for clandestine love meetings and liquor quaffing.

As a result, it was expected trustees of the church, whom the minister, the Rev. Carlton F. Hubbard, charges with responsibility for conditions, will order new locks put on the windows. The hall is in the rear of the church proper. Said the preacher:

"Let me review the facts. About all the cups in the hall have been used for drinking—not tea, but something stronger! Footprints of a man and woman have been seen leading up to the door."

The minister gave no names, and said afterwards he believed a sermon would put a stop to invasions of the hall.

DAUGHTER HELD FOR SLAYING

FAIRMONT, W. Va., May 15.—(AP.)—Accused of fatally shooting her stepfather after a quarrel, Mrs. Beatrice E. Bryant, 24, is held in jail.

Police said the shooting occurred early yesterday in Monongah, after an argument about the noise Dennis Awill, 54, the stepfather made while building a fire.

Police said Mrs. Bryant claimed she shot because Awill abused her.

Besides Mrs. Bryant, police also are holding her mother, Mrs. Ada Awill; her husband, Okey Bryant, and John Rupp, who lived with the Bryant and Awill families.

Mexicans Lynch Man In Church Theft

MEXICO CITY, May 15.—Universal.)—Accused of stealing the host and sacred vessels from the village church, Fructuosa Concha, was seized by a mob, tortured and lynched on the public plaza at Apazco, Tlaxcala.

Federal troops were sent to Santiago, Tetla and Apiaxco to restore order.

OBITUARY

Leslie Funeral.

Funeral services for Harry C. Leslie, killed in an automobile accident in Long Beach, Cal., Friday, will be held in that city tomorrow. He was a city detective during the administration of the late Mayor Joseph G. Armstrong, and was a nephew of the late Max G. Leslie. After leaving the city service he became an agent in the Department of Justice, and was transferred to California seven years ago.

He leaves his widow, an adopted son, Wilbur Leslie; two brothers, Millard F. and Gilbert Leslie, both of Pittsburgh, and a sister, Mrs. George Armstrong, of New Kensington.

The Flapper's Daughter

By BEATRICE BURTON

CHAPTER XLVII.

Her mother was waiting for her, lolling back in her armchair in front of the gas logs with her slippers off and a cigaret in one hand. She sat up, every line in her body tense, as Sharlie opened the door of the flat and stepped into the room.

"Well," she said in a voice that was as tight as the string of a ukelele, "how did things turn out?"

Sharlie laughed. She knew that she was in for a few most unpleasant moments, but she had made up her mind to carry them off with as much matter-of-fact cheerfulness as she could. "I sent him about his business, as Grandmother Dunn would say," she answered. "And I'll say this for him—he took it very calmly."

She shook her head and went on hurriedly as she saw her mother's lips open. "If you could have seen him and Edna this afternoon, Dodie, you'd understand this whole thing. Why, I couldn't marry Mr. Collins after that any more than I could run away with a married man——"

DODIE ANGERED

"As for a thing like that—a thing that you imagine!—you're throwing away the only chance you'll ever have to make a decent marriage!" her mother cried out, interrupting her. "Because this man who loves you wants to have Edna as his office girl. Why, he could have divorced his wife years before she died if he'd wanted Edna! You little idiot!" Without warning she burst into sobs that shook her small body. She put her head down on the fat arm of the overstuffed chair and began to talk and cry at once.

Sharlie had seen her hysterical so many times before that she was not at all alarmed now. Her only thought was that the neighbors mustn't hear the noise of her weeping as it mounted higher and higher. She went to the open window of the dining room and quietly closed it, as she had often seen her father and Edna do during one of Dodie's "tantrums."

As she turned away she saw Edna, in her white toweling bathrobe, standing in her door between the dining-room and the rear hall. She had the bottle of aromatic spirits of ammonia in one of her hands and a tumbler of water in the other.

"What's the matter, Dodie, dear?" she asked, crossing the room and bending over Dodie's chair.

ACCUSES EDNA

"Matter? You dare ask me what's the matter?" Dodie jumped to her feet with amazing swiftness, her voice coming loud and clear from her throat that had been filled with sobs a second before. "Just because you can't land that man, yourself, you've made up your old-maid mind that Sharlie's not going to have him! Making yourself out a pathetic figure to her, just so you can keep her from marying him—Telling her that he's lost all his money—Lying to her—Well, I'll show you a thing or two, my lady! I'll march down to that office of his tomorrow and lay the whole thing before him! I'll tell him how you've worked on Sharlie's feelings—I'll tell him! I'll tell him!"

She pushed her way past the two girls and marched out of the room, still talking at the top of her voice. The door of the rear hall slammed after her, shaking the walls of the little apartment.

At 11 the next morning Sharlie was standing at the water cooler in a corner of the office when she saw the door open to admit a small, blonde woman dressed in a suit of vivid blue, a blue hat, lined with white velvet and a beige fox scarf. Dodie in her best bib and tucker, with her hair smooth under her hat brim and no rouge on at all. Dodie, looking like a mother who is concerned about her daughter's future. Dodie, portraying what she herself would call "the heavy mother."

HAVE LUNCH TOGETHER

It was half-past 11 when she came out of the office and across to Sharlie's desk. Her lips were pursed up and she looked as grim as a small blue-and-gold-and-white woman could look.

"Get on your things," she ordered. "I'm taking you out to lunch."

She did not speak again until the two of them were in a restaurant with white tile walls, and a white counter surrounded by high stools. She spoke then to the waitress who came up for their order.

"Two ham sandwiches, two cups of coffee," she said briefly to her, and then she turned her head toward Sharlie. "Now, listen to me! I've told him the whole story. Told him how crazy-cracked Edna's been about him for years. Told him how jealous she is of his wife, and how jealous she is of you now. I think he understands that it's because of her that you gave him up—"

"But I'm just so glad to be over my crush, Dodie! I'm so glad things have turned out this way," Sharlie said with a groan. "I WISH you hadn't gone to see him. If I'd dreamt last night that you really meant to go—but I thought you were just raving—"

"Raving?" Her mother repeated. "That's a fine way to speak of me, isn't it?" Her blue eyes glistened with sudden tears. "Perhaps I was raving. I don't know, really. But some day, Sharlie, when you have a daughter and you are trying to move heaven and earth to provide her with a husband who can take care of her, you may know what I feel now."

JIM'S GIRL FRIEND

Sharlie had been looking at her as she spoke, but now her eyes went beyond her to the mirror that lined the room. In it she could see the reflection of the door of the restaurant. It was opening, and two people were coming in to the small white-tiled place. A tall young man, and the prettiest girl that she had ever seen—a red haired girl with green eyes and dimples and a smiling red mouth parted over perfect white teeth.

The man was Jim Barnum.

The two of them moved around the end of the horse-shoe shaped counter and took two stools just opposite Sharlie and her mother. Jim's eyebrows went up in recognition as he caught sight of them and he grinned.

"What do you want to eat?" Sharlie heard him ask the girl as he took her handbag from her and put it on a hook above the mirror.

The girl half-turned and smiled her lovely smile at him. "Now, Jimsie, you know what I always eat for lunch," she said in the husky sort of voice that Sharlie had always wished for herself. "A great big combination salad and some whole wheat toast."

"'A great big combination salad and some whole wheat toast'," Jim repeated the order to the waiter.

"I wonder if he knows how silly he sounds," Sharlie murmured to her mother in an undertone. So this girl was the reason why Jim Barnum came home on Sunday night at half-past twelve! He wasn't in love with Edna—safe, harmless Edna—but with this red-headed person.

She had a little pad in her hand, and as Sharlie stole a look at her, she reached over and took Jim's pencil out of his top coat pocket.

Sharlie looked quickly away. It made her—not angry, but depressed, somehow—to see that girl delving into Jim's pocket for a pencil exactly as if she owned him. She felt suddenly as if Jim had not played fairly with her in never telling her about the girl.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

The majority of men who are successful have been assisted either directly or indirectly by a woman—a mother or a wife.

Usually the wife is entitled to credit, because she is the companion at a time when the rough road to success is being traveled.

It is undoubtedly true that many men in prominent places would never have reached their goal if it had not been for the help and understanding sympathy given by wives.

But there must be something within the man's makeup, or he would not respond to help given to gain and maintain a higher position.

Many persons don't and won't give credit to one who has forged ahead.

These persons seldom speak of him without injecting the thought that his wife is responsible for his success, and not infrequently they say that she lays out or actually performs some of his work for him.

It is true that often opinions expressed by a wife and deductions made by her are used by the husband to good advantage—and why not?

Two intelligent, thinking persons should be of great assistance to each other. Both should develop to a greater degree of efficiency, and be able to do better and more worthwhile work.

THE FALL OF MALACOF, THE KEY TO SEVASTOPOL (1855)

With Fort Malacof's fall, the Russian attempt to expand into the vast Turkish territory was frustrated. The defeat was accomplished with the assistance of the English and French, who suspected in this particular Russian expansion a political and economical danger to their own interests. Inset: Czar Alexander II, who ascended the throne during the Crimean war.

ASSASSINATION OF ALEXANDER II, CZAR OF RUSSIA (1881)

After the defeat in the Crimean War, Alexander turned to internal reforms. Russian ports were opened for foreign trade and the number of students admitted to the university was increased. By the Act of 1861, the mastery of landlords over the peasantry was checked; peasants could purchase land henceforth. Russia, though expanding, was doomed to internal unrest. The Polish insurrection (1863) is memorable, resulting in atrocities by the Russian Gen. Muravief, who suppressed it. After that "Nihilism" arose, the creed of a party aiming at the destruction of everything belonging to the existing society and order. Alexander became a victim of Nihilism. He was assassinated by a bomb explosion in 1881. (World's History.)

EARLY RING ARMATURES

The winding on the Gramme ring shown above forms four coils parallel connected. The generated currents in windings are directed toward A and B, connected to commutator segments in contact with the two positive brushes; vertical to these are the negative ones. Ring armatures are difficult to wind.

DISCHARGING AN ELECTRIC FURNACE

The cleanest way to refine steel (without admission of coal-ash or gas) is in an electric furnace that is perfectly controllable. It is used for producing high-grade tool steels, free of bubbles and slag. (Chemistry.)

AN ELECTRIC FURNACE

SECTION OF A CUPOLA (Chemistry)

The cupola is a furnace to make cast iron. Starting a wood fire on the sand bottom, coke, pig iron, scrap and limestone are dumped in layers through the charging door. Air is blown in through the tuyeres. The molten cast iron is tapped into the "bull ladle," from which it is transferred in smaller ladles and poured into the sand-moulds. Cast iron contains from 2.7 to 3 per cent carbon, somewhat less than pig iron. It is brittle and weak under shocks, enduring only steady pressure. (Stoughton: Metallurgy.)

HEART COMPARED WITH A PUMP

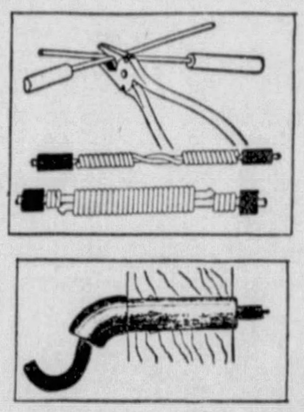
(1) Carbonless iron made by burning out all the carbon. It is pure, soft iron (ferrite). (2) Steel containing 0.3% carbon. Black spots are hard pearlite (a mixture of ferrite and cementit, Fe3C). (3) Steel with 1.47% carbon. Pearlite content in steel increases with carbon content; white streaks, free cementit, appear. (4) Cast iron with 3% carbon. Pearlite (black) decreased; free cementit (white) increased. (Rosenholtz: Ferrous Metallurgy.)



OPEN WIRING (Science)

DRUM ARMATURE

This is more effective than the ring armature; a greater part of the loops (except the sides like 1-6 or 3-8) cuts the lines of force when rotating. The coils, ready formed, are placed into the armature grooves, their ends soldered to the corresponding segments of the collector. (Thomalen: Electrical Engineering.)

Shade Trees for the Army

How about that reforestation recruiting sergeant who patted the weeping mother on the shoulder and said gently:

"Don't cry, ma. Your boy ain't going away to fight. He's going away to plant trees."

That's our idea of an army. And the work is pleasant. Not only outdoors, but when you plant a tree for the government you have some influence in back of you. The tree must grow.

It ain't tough, dangerous work guarding an acorn. Or doing sentry duty around an apple orchard. You have your choice of reforestation. If you like plums you can volunteer for the canning detail.

When the general unfolds his American Automobile Association road maps it will be a tense moment. Two tense moments are 20. He will say:

"Boys, there are trees to the right of us, trees to the left and trees to the center. We are surrounded. Is there a hero here who can climb a tree?"

The army stepped sideways as one man. If the country was in danger they were willing to spend a week-end there.

Think of getting your first message from the war front.

"Dear ma," it will read, "I am safe. I climbed a tree. Then I dug a trench for rain water. That was safe. We had [illegible] in the woods with a keg of beer on third base. I am still [illegible] send me any warm underwear. We are wearing silk. [illegible] danger. When this cruel reforestation is over it is ju[illegible] be too bad for your loving son."

So you can see the sergeant was correct when he cheered up the old folks and told them not to worry about their boys.

There wasn't even an eye test for the war. You don't have to know one tree from another. The seeds will take care of that. They didn't even look at your teeth. You ain't eating bark.

The writer couldn't get into the tree army because of conscientious objections. He likes strawberries. They ain't planting them this year.

Foreign Trade Ballyhoo

The United States is Less Dependent on Exports for Prosperity Than Other Countries.

The professorial approach to the tariff problem is especially unfortunate at this time.

Changed monetary and trade conditions in fact tend to make the tariff we now have an old fashioned and ineffective instrument.

Specifically, depreciation of foreign currencies takes the initiative for fixing actual tariff rates out of the hands of the tariff making country.

For example, when the Hawley-Smoot Tariff Act was passed in June 1930, some of the rates were outrageously high, yet these very rates in some instances became too low after the wholesale retreat of competing foreign countries from the gold standard.

The relative premium of the dollar, which has only recently been partially removed, tended to nullify tariff rates, which were formerly considered high.

Recognizing the current realities, France, for example, desiring to deal with the problem of protecting the home market directly rather than indirectly, set up embargoes, quotas and restrictions.

Secretary Hull in seeking to reduce the American tariff is thinking in terms of the last generation, when conditions of international trade were vastly different before all the great countries had become industrialized competitors.

Business has been concerned over the report that the administration would ask for the discretionary right to reduce tariff rates 50 per cent, WITHOUT ASKING FOR EQUAL DISCRETION TO RAISE RATES IF NECESSARY AND DESIRABLE.

Without going into the constitutional question of the desirability of shifting such discretion from Congress to the President, it seems to us wholly unscientific and prejudiced to ask for one-way discretion, instead of two-way discretion.

When industry speaks and the debits and credits of international trade have been set up, the politicians are likely to be gravely disappointed in the opportunities for raising actual net trade volume through tariff reduction.

As a matter of fact, the United States is less dependent on exports for its prosperity than any leading country in the world.

It has found during the current period of debt repudiation and defaults that the so-called favorable balance of trade, which we have enjoyed, is largely unrealizable.

The excess of American exports over imports was predicated on our continuous willingness to supply our customers with purchasing power in the form of partly uncollectible loans, tourist expenditures, emigrant remittances, and other invisible imports, including shipping and insurance services.

The ballyhoo for international trade is based on alien propaganda and domestic ignorance.

Bomb Outrages

That the Perpetrators Are So Seldom Punished Is Cause For Grave Concern.

Hardly a week passes without its bomb outrages in Pittsburgh.

Two last week, regarded as racketeers' warnings, were particularly flagrant. Both the explosions occurred in the East End and were apparently directed at persons active in politics.

There was a time when bombs were rarely exploded in Pittsburgh except in Black Hand quarrels and other kinds of internal warfare in our foreign colonies. Those whose houses were blown up almost invariably refused to give the police any information, and indeed made it plain that they did not welcome police interference. The police accordingly did nothing about it.

The effect of police inaction may be seen in the adoption of the bomb as a weapon for use not only against foreigners but also against Americans. Bombs are being exploded not only in the slums but in the best residential districts.

This is bad enough in itself, and what makes it still more alarming is the fact that the police appear to be helpless. The perpetrators of these outrages are seldom punished.

It is high time that some bomb throwers were sent to the penitentiary.

Are dynamite and other explosives sold so largely and so promiscuously that clews cannot be obtained from the dealers?

Uncertainty a Drag

President Roosevelt Can Expedite Recovery With a Statement on His Monetary Policy

The philosophy behind the Thomas inflation amendment, which Congress has accepted and President Roosevelt has approved is that it is advisable to make the use of the new powers discretionary rather than mandatory.

Yet the very flexibility achieved creates uncertainty as to what course the Executive will take.

Uncertainty penalizes sober stable classes in the community, including savers and business people, and puts a premium on speculation.

Uncertainty also tends to retard impulses toward recovery by creating a disposition to wait and see.

President Roosevelt can clear the air by announcing at his first opportunity the general trend of the new monetary policy.

Obviously he cannot anticipate all contingencies, but he can clarify the situation by taking the public into his confidence.

The merit of the new legislation lies in the fact that it takes the country out of a monetary straightjacket, and permits human leadership to function.

The new legislation is a challenge to the capacity and skill of the administration.

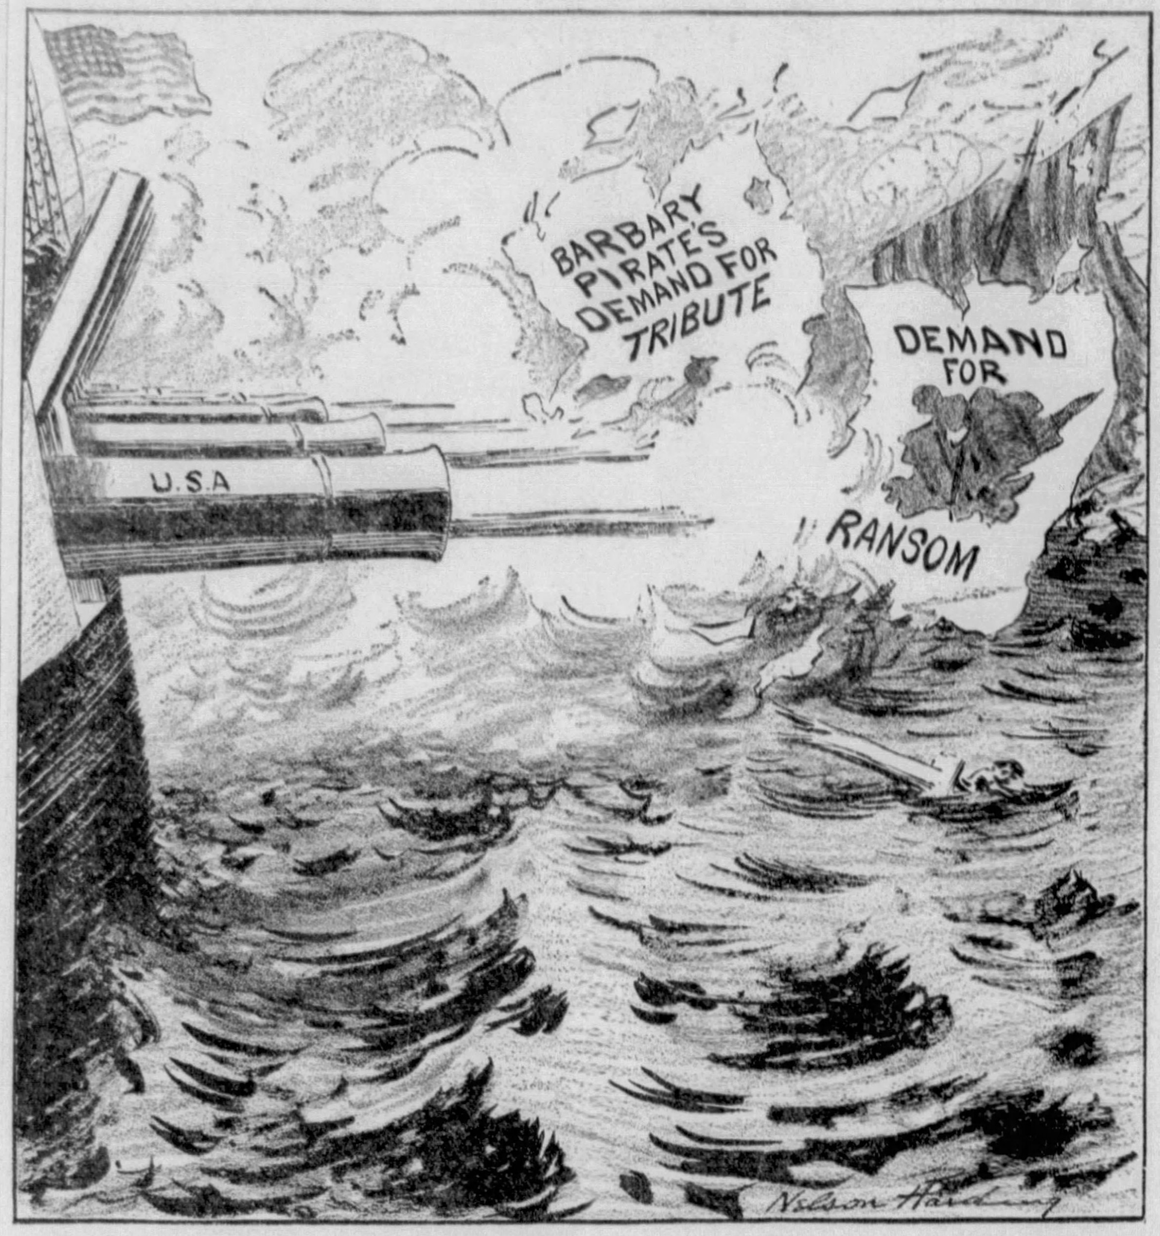
How We Answered Gangsters of 1803 -:- By Nelson Harding



At the beginning of the last century all the maritime nations, including the United States, paid tribute to the piratical powers of Tripoli and Algiers. The blackmail was paid that merchant ships might be "protected" from pirate raids in the Mediterranean; and ransom was exacted for crews captured by the Corsairs.

Our young republic, although still weak, did not long submit to these outrages. Our little navy, under Bainbridge, Preble and Decatur, answered the demands of the racketeers of those days from the mouths of cannon, and fought the powers that prayed until piracy received its death blow. These were the days of "wooden ships, but iron men."

What Men Don't Know

It is pretty safe to say that it was a woman—because most men have not discovered it, YET. They don't quite know what love IS.

It was probably after the first caveman had given the first cavewoman a particularly hard clout on the head, that she looked up admiringly into his eyes and exclaimed, "Why that must be LOVE, darling! Hit me again! Do you really love me?"

And he stared down at her, wonderingly, and grunted, "Sure—what've you got for supper?"

Primitive man knew what hunger was, what pain was, and what sex was. But it never occurred to him that strange mixture of desire, tenderness and spiritual exaltation, which got him on moonlight nights, was a totally different emotion—or anything but a touch of liver. And modern man still seems to be in the same vague, unconscious state of mind.

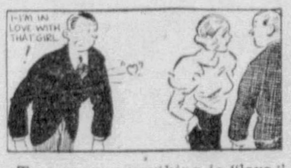
No, it was woman who found love, put all the frills on it and gave it a fancy name, just as she does with a new salad. It is woman who needs and demands a special brand of affection, more spiritual than sex and much warmer and closer than friendship.



To a man, everything is "love." Everything, from a slender summer dalliance to a mad infatuation, passes under that label. He has never psychoanalyzed himself. So he never can be sure whether a girl's attraction for him is just a momentary spark struck out by curiosity, novelty and vanity, or the abiding affection that makes him want her for life.

* * *

But, to a woman, love is EVERYTHING—which is quite another matter. She can take the tawdriest flirtation and glorify it to the point where it becomes a glamorous romance. She can believe that a man, who browbeats and bullies her, and comes home only for his meals actually does it "for love." She can even convince herself that the man who borrows money from her would never ask her if he didn't love her. And she is never perturbed by the fact that a gigolo's kisses are always more tender and intensive the night before she hands him the check than on the day afterward.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, May 15.—Diary of a modern Pepys: Up and in pet over the state of the world and to call on Verne Porter. But found him jouking in a dark corner as glum as I. So to say farewell to the Watterson Rothackers and Virginia against another cruise, and to see Will Rogers.

At my typing and with my wife to the pier to greet Win Larkin who has been living abroad these eight years and looked forward, more than all else, to a glass of American soda water. Nor did he seem impressed by the giant spires flung up since he departed.

In the evening to Will Hamilton's birthday dinner and came the Isaac Marcossons, Esmond O'Brien, Ann Kirkpatrick, Lois Long and others and much foolery until the clock chimed 12. Then walking the avenue until it came on to rain and many bench sleepers in Madison Square did not stir.

Madison Square in moonlight suggests that era Russ Cole describes as "the day of the mansard roof, the porte cochere, iron deer and little parasols flowering above victorias in the park." Movie scenarists should idle there in still hours of traffic desolation. Perhaps it would inspire them to pause in their strain for cocktail hour witticisms and again regale us old fogies with the simple charm of the picket fence, spreading elm and youngsters who set off to impress the world outside.

* * *

Grover Whalen is one of the few spectacular figures in the passing parade who retired from public life without dimming the glow of his celebrity. He continues to be seen at auspicious first nights and notable dinners, gardeniaed and top-hatted, and stirring as much side line interests as in the hey-dey of his police commissionership. He is still besieged by the autograph hunters as though he dominated the first page headlines. They catch the first shadow of eclipse.

I walked from a first night lobby one evening with an actress who had her day. Everywhere signature seekers were popping out of the hyena half circle with outstretched albums and pencils. At the curb she pursed her lips while her eyes misted and stepped into a taxi with the quick blurt: "They didn't ask me!"

This is another one of those dotty days when a name buzzes through the head with the haunts of a catchy tune. This time it is Andre Maurois, pronounced in the French manner, "Awndray Moorwah." It has already driven my wife out for the day and conscious of a peep through the kitchen door I heard a voice say: "He's still muttering." It is more fun—slipping into a dotage.

I wish Irving Berlin would get back to the sprightliest, danciest and happiest tunes that ever tickled the human ear. He has sunk into a rut of maudlin, nostalgic sentimentality approaching bathos. His lugubrious ditties seem to ask in windy ramble: "Is it possible I have made the mistake of loving you too much?" or "I have stopped eating and sleeping because of the pain my unrequitted love gives me." Somebody should shake this oft-time talented composer out of what seems to be incurable romanticism.

Lord Birkenhead puts a spoonful of coffee in his after-dinner hooker of brandy . . . Paderewski employs his spare time playing bridge . . . Jacobus Goelet, founder of the family in America, ran a stationery shop called "The Sign of the Bible."

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

If it's the last thing I write—and the chances are fine that it will be—I'm going to say it—

I BELIEVE AMERICAN MALES HAVE GONE SISSY.

This isn't a snap judgment; nor am I blowing off steam from a temporary peeve. I've spent 50 years forming this conclusion. During those 50 years I've seen plenty of males. Been daughter, sister, wife, mother to an assorted bunch of them; farmed with them, mined with them, cooked for them, written about 'em; listened to their boasts and bewailn's. And I'm still strong for the sex.

But believe me, world, it has certainly deteriorated.

Strong, weather-beaten old Amazon that I am, I weep big wet tears when I compare some of the old livery-stable and drugstore gangs of the 90's with the Luncheon Tenors of 1933!

And right here, as well as I know, I'm about to lose several thousand Nice Boy Friends. All right; let 'em go. Nice Boys never were any comfort to me, anyhow.

AND I STILL INSIST THE SISSIEST SIGHT ON EARTH IS A TWO-FISTED MALE HUMAN SINGING LYRICS AT A WEEKLY LUNCHEON.

Does that include Important Citizens like Rotarians, Kiwanisans, Lions, etc.?

Yes, dearie, it does.

It also includes Presidents, Senators, Captains of Industry—if they ever happen to get that way.

For why—with the air full of a thousand good, fighting topics, and a dozen regular he eating places on every block—should anything calling itself a male herd around a bunch of fruit salad and warble ditties at high noon?

In the first place, most of them can't sing, anyway. And in the second place, why in heck should they want to?

Yes, I know; they sing "America." And a hot lot of good that does America! As a matter of fact, that sort of fruit-salad patriotism is largely what ails America.

Too many tenors—that's what has us down. If our patriotic proletariat would lay off on the national anthem and wise up, instead, on Wall Street and the International Bankers, we might, maybe, see once more the America which our fathers knew.

But not a chance! All that fruit salad has gone to their heads. Why bust a banker in the eye when you can strut your stuff quite as heroically over a couple of ounces of fried chicken?

Well—I bet some day we'll be sorry. And if you think I'm kidding, you're foolish. Any nation that turns tenor as we have is headed for the cosmic dumps, pronto!

And I wonder what History will say when it surveys the remnants. Nero fiddled when Rome burned—and that was a bad day for Rome. But at that, the old town didn't reach the lowest depths of ignominy. Nero may have fiddled—but at least the rest of the males weren't playing "musical chairs" and singing "Sweet Adeline!"

ISN'T IT SO?

When men speak ill of thee, live so that no one will believe them.

We often inconvenience others, when we fancy we can never possibly do so.

We are very far from being acquainted with the whole of our will.

The Descendant of Irish Kings

DONNA DEGNA MARCONI

Marconi, the inventor of wireless telegraphy, is one of the world's really great men, and these pictures of his lovely daughter, in evening dress and in day costume, will interest everybody.

They will interest those of the Italian race who take great pride in the achievements of their fellow countryman, Marconi, and interest non-Italians, those of the Irish race, especially.

The mother of this charming young girl, Marconi's first wife, was, before her marriage, the Hon. Beatrice O'Brien, descendant of Irish kings of Munster and of Clare. The last of them, Murrough O'Brien, King of Clare, surrendered his authority to King Henry the Eighth, who made him Earl of Thomond and Baron Inchiquin in 1543.

From that old Irish king and British-made Baron, this beautiful daughter of Marconi is a direct descendant of the thirteenth generation in the female line.

It is easy to speculate on the further development of this line that began among ancient Irish kings, was transferred to Italy and carried on there. What will later descendants of this family achieve, having on one side the genius of Marconi and on the other the fine qualities of a great Irish race?
